Mayor Promises to Remedy Situation in Sixty Days if Legislature Passes Measure.

RETINUE APPLAUDS HIM

He Assails "Traction Ring," Transit Commission and Opposing Civic Bodies.

DAVISON ALLEGES PLOT

Railway Counsel Declares the Bill Is Drawn to Wipe Out Surface Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—Leading a delegation of 600 composed largely of officeholders, Mayor Hylan came to the Capitol this afternoon and appeared before the Public Service Committees of the Senate and Assembly as the chief advocate of the Walker-Donohue bill which would give to him and the Board of Estimate absolute control of transit in New York City, would abolish Governor Miller's Transit Commission and give to the Mayor the right to appoint a Transportation Commission to take over all its powers and functions.

The transit ills of the City of New York, according to the Mayor, would vanish as if by a magician's wand, if his transportation bill became law.

"I pledge you that if the Walker-Donohue bill becomes a law and I have the power to appoint a Transportation Commission we will give relief to the people of the City of New York within sixty days," said the Mayor in ending a long speech.

Everyone who appeared to argue on his side was an officeholder, with the exception of three speakers representing civic organizations and they had barely more than a chance to arise and have their appearance noted.

Next to the Mayor's speech that of Controller Craig was listened to with the most interest. The Controller said little or nothing about municipal operation, but he did complain that for sixty years the city had been deprived of the power to manage its own transit affairs.

"And during all those years," he added, "there has been a deadlock between State and city while transit lines have been run from a stock market point of view and conditions have grown worse, until by this time the people of the city are up in rebellion and demanding this relief."

With the exception of the Third Avenue Railway Company, not a transit corporation was represented among those who spoke in opposition to the measure. The Chamber of Commerce, the Citizens' Union, the City Club, and some real estate organizations sent representatives who sharply attacked the Mayor's bill.

Charges Plot Against Surface Lines.

Alfred T. Davison, general counsel for the Third Avenue Railway Company, charged that the transportation bill had been drafted for the deliberate and almost sole purpose of enabling Mayor Hylan to encompass the ruin of the surface lines and substitute for them the operation of city buses.

Mr. Davison received close attention while step by step, reading sections of the bill, he showed how the various provisions fitted into the alleged scheme to wipe the surface roads off the city's transit map. He followed Leonard M. Wallstein of the Citizens Union, who, in his speech, had alluded to the graft from which Tammany politicians had profited that had been disclosed in relation to the granting of permits by the present City Administration.

By the time Mayor Hylan made his way up Capitol Hill with his numerous retinue, the four buses sent up from New York by the aid of much natural horse power, and some man power supplied by farmers as well, had managed to free themselves from huge snow drifts that had held them captive on the Albany Post Road, north of Hudson, for many hours. They were drawn up as an object lesson outside of the Capitol Building. Mayor Hylan pointed to them with visible pride, but Albanians who saw them failed to be impressed.

"We have better buses here," was the general comment.

Opposition Heard First.

Senator Twomey of Kings as Chairman of the Senate Public Service Committee presided and announced that the opposition would be heard first. William McCarroll, representing the Chamber of Commerce, then filed resolutions which had been adopted by the Chamber, protesting against the enactment of the transportation bill.

"Upon our arrival here," said Mr. McCarroll, "I was very much impressed when I noticed a number of New York City buses outside the building, which had plastered all over them posters calling for home rule for New York City. Just before coming up I had read in a newspaper that there were pending before the Legislature some 500 bills affecting New York City, and most of them representing interference with the affairs and property of the city.

"Some features of this bill are inoperative. Others are unconstitutional. This bill, in fact, appears to me not only a most singular but also a most unconstitutional measure. It seems to me to be singular to ask the Legislature to delegate its power in public utility matters to a body elected for an entirely different purpose, and in addition to give to that body the right to redelegate that power to another body which would be a party to the very business it would be called upon to adjudicate. That feature would seem to me to be clearly unconstitutional.

"The State is the creator of the corporations that operate public utilities. Having that in mind, we very wisely

Bars Two Judges as Klansmen From Louisiana Appeal Court

BATON ROUGE, La., March 14.—Governor Parker declared today he would not consider appointment of either District Judge Robert Roberts of Minden or District Judge J. E. Reynolds of Arcadia to the vacancy on the Louisiana Court of Appeals because he believes they are members of the Ku Klux Klan. He reminded delegations of their supporters who called on him that he had made a public declaration that he would not appoint a member of the Klan to office, and he said this applied especially to Judges.

"A lawyer knows the majesty of the law," said the Governor, "and a Judge on the bench must enforce it. I certainly will not name a man who has taken the Klan oath as Judge to enforce the laws of the State."

The Governor was said to have produced the membership list of the Minden Klan and to have read the name of Judge Roberts as a Klansman. Governor Parker then asked Mr. Reynolds if he had joined the Shreveport Klan and it is said he admitted he had.

HETTRICK INDICTED ON HIS INCOME TAX

Federal Complaint Is That He Paid $221 Instead of $5,370.49 in 1919.

BROOKLYN MAN ACCUSED

Authorities Say Czieslik's Income in 1920 Was $3,000,000, but His Tax Insignificant.

John T. Hettrick, twice convicted author of a "code of practice" for use among contractors in the building trades, was indicted yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury for perjury in connection with his sworn statement appearing on his income tax return for 1919. He is charged with having paid a tax of $221 on an income he swore amounted to $24,560. It is alleged that his real income in 1919 was $30,661.95, and the payment to the Government should have been $5,370.49.

At the same time the Federal Grand Jury in Brooklyn indicted Frank Czieslik, a real estate operator, for failing to make a proper tax return. His income in 1920 the authorities estimate at $3,000,000, on which he is said to have paid a trifling tax.

The Hettrick indictment resulted from information that reached the Federal authorities through the revelations of the Lockwood Committee, followed by an inquiry made by Assistant United States Attorney William A. Millard and Hugh McQuillan of the internal revenue office. The specific charge is violation of Section 125 of the Criminal Code, referring to false statements as to income as affecting returns to the Government. The penalty for violation is five years in prison or $2,000 fine, or both. Hettrick will appear Monday for pleading.

Hettrick, a former court stenographer, newspaperman and in recent years a lawyer, was one of the first individuals on whom the Lockwood Committee focused its attention when it began work in November, 1920. It appeared during the course of the investigation that Hettrick, who had a law office at 165 Broadway, acted as counsel for a group of limestone contractors who bid for the construction of the new County Court House. The disclosures caused the bids to be rejected. Convicted of conspiracy to violate the Donnelly Anti-Trust act because of the "code of practice" he originated for the Plumbers' Association, Hettrick served one year in prison and was paroled. Subsequently he was tried with several officers of the plumbers' union and the indictment was dismissed because of former jeopardy. He was placed on trial a third time, charged with conspiring to restrain trade in steam fittings, and was convicted and fined $500. Last December he was suspended from practice for three years by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

Last January Hettrick caused a mild sensation by submitting to the Board of Estimate "as a citizen" a plan to relieve the housing shortage. He admitted that the Lockwood Committee had done some good, but said it had not solved the housing problem. It was reported at the time of the examination of his affairs before the Lockwood Committee that his annual income was from $80,000 to $100,000.

As the result of an investigation which the Federal authorities say has

BITTER ENDERS TAKE NEW STEPS TO DOOM WORLD COURT PLAN

ONLY HOPE IN DEMOCRATS

Unless They Support the Harding Proposal It Faces Long Delay, or Even Defeat.

BUT THE SLATE IS IN DANGER

Radical-Progressive Group Threatens to Smash the Standpatters' Committee Program.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, a League of Nations irreconcilable, is to be one of the new Republican members of the Committee on Foreign Relations. This will give the irreconcilables a clear majority of two among the Republicans of the committee. Unless the Republican minority can command the support of the Democratic members it would apparently indicate the defeat of any effort to report out the President's plan to have the United States assume membership in the International Court set up by the League of Nations.

Counting Senator Pepper as an irreconcilable gives the anti-League element six and the Administration four of the Republican members—that is, four based on the supposition that the other two Republican vacancies will be allotted to Senators who favor the International Court. The vacancies to be filled are those caused by the defeat of Senators McCumber, New and Kellogg, all of whom were supporters of the Administration's Court plan.

The irreconcilables on the committee will be Messrs. Borah, Brandegee, Johnson, Moses, McCormick and Pepper. Senators Lodge and Wadsworth, it is understood, may support the President.

The present Democratic quota of six members of the committee is also short three members owing to the defeat of Senators Hitchcock and Pomerene and the retirement of John Sharp Williams. It is the understanding that the new Democratic members will not be announced in advance of the assembling of Congress. There is, however, a generally credited report that Senators Walsh of Montana and Underwood of Alabama will be two of the new minority members and that Mr. Robinson of Arkansas or Mr. Harrison of Mississippi will be the other.

There is no hint as to the identity of the Senators who will be named for the remaining Republican vacancies.

Slate in Danger from Progressives.

A phase of the situation that must be taken into consideration is the fact that the Republican majority in the next Senate will be 10 instead of 22, as it was in the last Congress. Furthermore, this "paper" majority includes Borah, La Follette, Norris, Frazier and Brookhart, none of whom will respond to the whip of the Old Guard. Then there are Ladd and Howell, who are not listed as as enthusiastic Administration supporters. The defection of these Senators would wipe out the Republican majority so far as the organization is concerned.

The question is being asked whether these Senators or any considerable number of them will support Lodge, Watson, Lenroot and the other organization leaders, and whether they will vote to ratify committee assignments, which will make more secure the Administration control of the chief committees, such as Finance, Appropriations and Foreign Relations. With their big majority in the last Congress, the organization group increased the Republican membership of Senate committees to proportions which, it was admitted, made them unwieldy and the records will show that the so-called Radical-Progressive group was not the subject of much consideration when the plums were doled out.

La Follette, Norris, Brookhart and the other anti-Administration Senators on the Republican side are alert and all the signs are that they will have much to say when the time comes for the Senate to ratify the committee appointments, which everybody knows are going to be dictated by Lodge, Watson, Curtis, Lenroot and the other tried and true organization spokesmen. A turnover of six Senators in the event that they can form a coalition with the

George J. Gould Jr. Wins Divorce at Nice; Wife, Former Dancer, Takes Children

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 14.—A divorce was granted to George J. Gould Jr. in his suit against Laura Carter Gould three weeks ago, according to an announcement made today by Charles Woolrych, a Nice attorney.

Mrs. Gould today admitted that the divorce had been granted. She is living in an apartment in Passy with her two children.

"I thought it took six months to get a divorce in France and you were living with your husband until several months ago," she was told.

"Oh, it does not take nearly so long as that at Nice," she replied.

She confirmed a statement that the custody of the children had been awarded to her.

She said that she would not resume professional dancing.

George J. Gould Jr. and Laura M. Carter of Ardend, N. J., were married quietly in Philadelphia on July 5, 1917, a few days after Kingdon Gould was married in the city. The three weddings in the Gould family preceding those of Kingdon and George Jr. had been society events, but that of George Jr. was so quiet that some persons called it an elopement. He and his bride were 21 years old at marriage. The wedding was soon followed by reports that the match displeased his parents and that he would not inherit any of the family fortune.

While George J. Jr. was in Oil City, Pa., working for the Galena-Signal Oil Company their first son was born, in July, 1918. A second son was born in January, 1920, in this city, where the father was working with Liggett, Drexel & Co.

Reports of a rift in the family had been heard here for several months and it was also reported that Gould's father was attempting to bring George Jr. and his wife to a reconciliation. They have been abroad for several months.

DUBLIN, March 14.—What amounts to a proclamation by Eamon de Valera and his republican associates against the holding of the Siki-McTigue fight on Saturday was issued tonight.

P. Rutledge, described as "Minister of Home Affairs" in de Valera's "Cabinet," announces that in view of "the murder" of prisoners of war, executions, and so forth, and in consideration of the bereaved families, "it is hereby decreed that until further notice the present be observed as a time of national mourning, all sports and amusements be suspended and places of amusement and resort be closed, and in particular all horse racing, hunting, coursing and outdoor sport be discontinued."

WORRIED BY CRITICS, CRAMER TAKES LIFE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Charles F. Cramer, 43 years old, who until last Thursday was general counsel of the Veterans' Bureau, committed suicide this morning by discharging a bullet from a .45 calibre revolver into his right temple. The body was found on the floor of the bathroom of his home at 2,314 Wyoming Avenue, at 8 o'clock, when the police were summoned by servants who had been unable to arouse Mr. Cramer. Mr. Cramer retired during the attacks on the management of the bureau, and his associates attribute his action to worry over this criticism, together with the illness of his father and recent financial reverses.

For some time past a number of officials of the bureau, including Mr. Cramer, have been under fire, attacks against their administration of the bureau's affairs having been made by members of Congress and by representatives of the American Legion. It was only recently, also, that Colonel Charles R. Forbes, director of the bureau, who selected Mr. Cramer as general counsel, tendered his resignation to President Harding and left the Government's service.

Mr. Cramer was an aspirant for appointment as Assistant Secretary of War to succeed Assistant Secretary Wainwright, who was elected to Congress. There were reports that he had the support of National Committeeman Babler of Missouri and other strong backers. Again the American Legion and other opponents of Mr. Cramer took up the fight against him, and he withdrew his candidacy for the post.

Mr. Cramer appeared to be in excellent health, although some of his friends said that he had given evidence of worry and strain since leaving the service of the Veterans' Bureau. He accompanied his wife to the Union Station late last night, where she took a train for New York, intending, it was said, to return here late today. He returned to his home and went to his room. When last seen alive by a colored maid servant he was seated before a writing desk. He asked her for two stamps and these were found on the desk this morning. There were no letters found.

Find Clipping on Investigation.

On the desk in Mr. Cramer's room the police found a book of Oscar Wilde's poems inserted in which was a clipping from a Washington newspaper dealing with the proposed investigation of the Veterans' Bureau by a special committee of the Senate. The article also contained an account of the resignation of Col. Sam Alexander, recently appointed successor of Commander C. R. O'Leary as director of supplies, which was not accepted by Acting Director Ijams.

The house in which Mr. Cramer lived was formerly owned by President Harding, from whom Mr. Cramer bought it in the Spring of 1921, when he came here to open a law office, and so it now appears, to seek a position in the Government.

Mr. Cramer was graduated at New York University in 1899. When the United States entered the war he came to Washington and endeavored to obtain a commission in the army. He was kept out of the military service by a crippled arm and poor eyesight and he served here as representative of interests which were supplying the Allies with toluol and also with aviation supplies for the French army. He continued in this work until about a year after the signing of the armistice. For some time before he came to Washington in the Spring of 1921 Mr. Cramer lived in San Francisco.

The attacks which have been carried on against the conduct of affairs of the Veterans' Bureau under the directorship of Colonel Forbes reached a climax when the Senate voted to make an investigation, appointing as a sub-committee Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, Senator Walsh of Massachusetts and Senator Oddie of Nevada. Major Gen. O'Ryan of New York was selected as special counsel, and there was assigned to him the task of obtaining from the bureau the data necessary to the work of the sub-committee.

Legion Attacked Management.

The American Legion carried on its fight against the conduct of affairs in the Veterans' Bureau on the ground that there was mismanagement and confusion, which prevented the best work being done for the veterans. In an article in The American Legion Weekly of

BRADY LET ESTATE LOSE ON B.R.T. STOCK; SOLD OWN HOLDINGS

ADMITS LOSS OF $7,000,000

But Declares Total Value of Estate Was Enhanced by Gains in Other Deals.

SALES FOR "TAX PURPOSES"

Estate Money Also Was Used for Personal Purchases, but Is Called Matter of Bookkeeping.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 14.—James Cox Brady, son of the late Anthony N. Brady, traction and public utility financier, testifying in the Surrogate's Court today, in defense of his accounting of his father's estate, was compelled to reveal some of the secret methods used by "insiders" in Wall Street to speculate in the securities of their own corporations.

Questioned practically all day long by Isidor Kresel, attorney for his three sisters and a niece who are objecting to the accounting of Mr. Brady and his brother, Nicholas F. Brady, for the years 1920 and 1921, Mr. Brady told all about his transactions in B. R. T. stock in Wall Street while he was a Director of the company and a member of its Executive Committee.

He admitted that he had bought and sold B. R. T. stocks in Wall Street during a period of five years and justified the practice by saying he believed he had a perfect right to do it. He objected to the use of the word "gambling" by Mr. Kresel and the attorney changed the term for "trading" in stocks." The attorney for the objecting beneficiaries elicited from Mr. Brady that he had accounts with many Wall Street brokers and that some of them were "dummy accounts," labeled by numbers instead of names, for the purchase and sale of his own stockholdings.

The witness also admitted that he and his brother had sold their thousands of shares of B. R. T. in 1917, 1918 and 1919, prior to its headlong crash that took it from 87, its market value when Anthony N. Brady's heirs acquired it in 1917, to less than $8 after the company went into the hands of a receiver.

Mr. Brady also acknowledged that his position in the company made it possible for him to know everything about its financial status at that time, but he denied that either he or his brother had foreseen the catastrophe. He said he had always believed that it was a good property and would come back to the position in which his father had placed it. It was foolish, he conceded, for him and his brother to have retained their faith in it for so long.

Mr. Kresler examined the witness particularly on his reasons for not selling the B. R. T. stock held in trust, under his father's will, for the four heirs who are now objecting to the accounting. These heirs are three sisters of James C. and Nicholas F. Brady, and a niece. The sisters are Mrs. Francis P. Garvan, wife of the head of the Chemical Foundation and former Alien Property Custodian; Mrs. Carl Tucker of New York and Mrs. James C. Farrell of Albany. The niece is Mariana Gavat of Santa Barbara, Cal., whose father was a brother of John Palmer Gavat.

Declare Trust Values Increased.

The witness admitted that he and his brother, who are executors and trustees of the estate, liquidated their own holdings early in the game at an average of about $40 a share, and were only able to realize an average of about $11 a share for the stock held in trust for the four women. He also admitted that the lowest he sold any of his own stock was $13.81 a share, while he let some of the trust stock go for as little as $5.88. However, he insisted that he and his brother had lost more than the four women. He said his brother's loss was $1,500,000; his own, $1,300,000, and each of the four trusts lost about $1,000,000.

By the last day of December, 1919, Mr. Brady admitted, he had sold out all his B. R. T. holdings except one-sixth of a share, and his brother had sold everything but 426 shares. The witness said that both for himself and for the trusts he had sold B. R. T. stock heavily at the end of 1919 in order to establish losses for the purpose of deductions from income tax returns. By so doing, he said, he had saved the trust funds in his father's estate 70 per cent. of the losses they sustained because of the drop in B. R. T. stock, and had also offset profits that had accrued from successful speculation in other stocks.

Mr. Brady admitted that at times he used money belonging to the estate to make purchases of stock for his individual accounting, but intimated that this was only a matter of bookkeeping. He said this was done only when he was making purchases for himself at the same time as he bought for the trusts.

Admitting that he and his brother once organized a pool to take some Maxwell stock off the hands of the estate, Mr. Brady denied that they had ever taken any part in pools to pick up the B. R. T. stock or other securities which the estate was forced to liquidate. He also denied that he had made a ten-point profit in 1920 by selling 3,000 shares of Southern Pacific stock to the estate at 107 which he had bought at less than 96.

Following the examination of Mr. Brady, former Governor Nathan L. Miller, who appeared as chief counsel for the Brady brothers and for the Central Union Trust Company of New York, which is a trustee of the estate, said that it would be shown that each of the

BERLIN NEGOTIATING FOR RUHR SETTLEMENT; BRITISH AND ITALIANS THE INTERMEDIARIES BUT THEIR GOVERNMENTS NOT COMMITTED

Says German Declaration for Settlement Is Near; The Plan Involves Guarantee by Industrialists

LONDON, March 14 (Associated Press).—Germany is about to make a declaration that she is willing and ready to produce a plan for the final settlement of the reparations question, provided that she can rely on the plan receiving the attention and consideration of the allied Governments, says The Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent, upon whose information The Daily Telegraph says editorially the fullest reliance may be placed.

According to the correspondent the plan, which involves a material guarantee by the German industrialists, will not be disclosed until the German Government is assured that it will not be brushed aside without serious examination, as happened to Karl Bergmann's proposals in London in December and in Paris in January.

Unofficial or semiofficial envoys from Berlin, says the correspondent, recently caused inquiries to be made of the British Cabinet whether the Cabinet would not take the lead by suggesting that a concrete offer from Germany would be welcomed in London, but that the British statesmen were reluctant to commit themselves.

This attitude of reserve, says the writer, disappointed not only the German Government but other Governments which had been looking to Great Britain for the lead. The correspondent gathers that Germany is fully prepared to accept far-reaching measures of international control of her finances and to participate in some international guarantee to France respecting France's treaty frontiers.

According to a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Berlin, Baron von Rosenberg, Minister for Foreign Affairs, intends to speak in the Reichstag Tuesday, when some persons expect a pronouncement showing that Germany has a constructive policy on reparations which would lead to a settlement of the Ruhr situation.

LENIN AND TROTZKY BOTH INCURABLY ILL

C. R. Crane, Just From Russia, Says War Minister Has a Malignant Malady.

PREMIER CONTINUES WEAK

Moscow Bulletin Announces That Defects In Speech and Motion Persist.

LONDON, March 14 (Associated Press).—Russia's leaders, Lenin and Trotzky, are doomed to die, according to Charles R. Crane, former American Minister to China, who has just left London for the United States after a five months' stay in Europe.

Mr. Crane, who has visited Moscow and Petrograd periodically in the last decade, said that the Soviet Premier was unquestionably in a dying condition. Trotzky, he said, was suffering from an obscure malignant abdominal trouble and was obliged to remain in bed for long periods. The War Minister's malady does not yield to medical treatment.

MOSCOW, March 14 (Associated Press).—The afternoon bulletin issued by the physicians in attendance on Premier Lenin today was:

The difficulties in speech and the weakness of the right arm and right leg, reported in yesterday's bulletin, are in the same condition. The general health of the patient is improved; temperature 37 centigrade (about 98½ Fahrenheit), pulse 90 and regular.

Crowds on the streets are eagerly watching the posting of the bulletins, and the most intense interest is displayed throughout the capital in the condition of the patient.

Deputy President Rykoff of the Council of Commissars announced to the audience at a big public meeting that Lenin was in a serious condition, but not fatally ill. He promised that bulletins would be issued daily. Lenin's recovery, he said, might be hoped for.

There have been many rumors recently of the Premier's serious illness, but yesterday's announcements were the first official confirmation of them.

MOSCOW, March 14.—Interesting reminiscences about Lenin are published in today's Pravda by his old friends Semashko and Osineski, late Minister of Agriculture.

Cycling, says Semashko, to which Lenin was devoted while in exile, nearly caused his death one evening in 1907 or 1908 in a small town near Geneva. An automobile driven by a too festive party suddenly charged right at Lenin in a narrow street. The future master of Russia kept his head and flung himself instantly from his machine to the sidewalk. The bicycle was smashed to fragments but Lenin picked himself up none the worse.

The resourcefulness and rapid, courageous action which, Semashko declares, are among Lenin's chief characteristics, have changed the destiny of Russia. According to the Marxist doctrine revolution is not made by a man but by

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLOGNE, March 14.—In spite of repeated denials, it is now possible to say that negotiations were begun last week by the Berlin Government which it is hoped may shortly lead to a public opening of discussion with France of the terms on which evacuation of the Ruhr will be begun.

The intermediaries who have placed their services at the disposal of the two Governments are, it is understood, the British and Italian members of the Committee on Guarantees of the Reparation Commission, who in this matter are acting unofficially and simply as a medium of communication.

Both Berlin and Paris have accepted the offers as being preferable to those of a strictly neutral power as the members of this Committee are more fully acquainted with the situation of the two Governments and in closer touch with the matters in dispute than any outsider could be.

Furthermore, as they are officials and not strictly diplomats, their action does not commit either Government, and should the exchange of conversations not lead to any immediate result an appearance of a rupture can more easily be avoided than if some personality, such as Premier Benes of Czechoslovakia, were taking part.

No Immediate Accord Looked For.

Though this attempt is being made to get the opponent countries to meet on common ground, it is believed in competent circles here that it is too early to hope for any immediate settlement. For this belief the reason given is that neither country can yet claim to have obtained any distinct advantage over the other in this complicated tussle.

While the French can claim to have crippled German industry severely, to have shut off the Ruhr coal supply and prevented any export of manufactured goods, their advantage lies more in the possibility of doing far greater damage to Germany than in what has been accomplished. The Germans on the other hand can point with satisfaction to the fact that France has herself derived no direct advantage from the occupation of the industrial district.

With immense difficulty and at enormous cost she has obtained a mere fraction of the amount of coal which would normally have been delivered. She has collected little or no revenue and she has suffered almost as great an immediate loss by closing the Lorraine blast furnaces as have German industrials by the prohibition of exports. Further, the Germans are arguing that while they have begun stabilization of the mark at an average of 20,000 to the dollar, the French exchange situation has grown worse proportionately.

In these circumstances it is proving difficult for the negotiators to obtain from either side any concessions which might be interpreted as a sign of defeat. The best they can hope to do is to bring about a settlement which will have the nature of a peace without victory, and that kind of peace, it is pointed out, is always the most difficult to obtain.

Situation Now at Critical Stage.

The situation today is for this reason at a most critical stage. While the French have only to wait to secure a larger measure of success in the ruination of German industry, the Germans have almost exhausted the possibilities of resistance.

Moreover, though the first large-scale attempt by the French to requisition coal at Westerholt is somewhat fantastically disproportionate in its results to the expenditure in men and trouble necessary, it is being used and will be extended with the intention of showing that in the last resort the French are in a position to obtain coal and coke in sufficient quantities to keep their industries going.

To this measure the only possible reply the Germans can make is by declaring a strike at the mines, as has been done at Westerholt, and by allowing the passive resistance of the last two months to become active and maybe by encouraging armed resistance.

There are signs, however, that neither the Government nor the local industrials and employes wish to proceed to these extremes. Though the men have stopped work at Westerholt, they are not allowing the coke ovens to go out, as it was yesterday feared they would do. And there is reason to hope that the amalgamation of the two Frenchmen at Buer last Saturday night and its swift avenging will prove to be an isolated affair.

There is little or no likelihood of any

DISASTER PREDICTED BY LLOYD GEORGE

Bonar Law Is Drifting Toward a Catastrophe Involving All Europe, He Says.

SEES BRITAIN DISREGARDED

In the Midst of Grave Crisis, He Asserts, Europe Acts as if Empire Did Not Exist.

LONDON, March 14.—Bitter denunciation of the impotence to which he declared the Conservative Government had reduced Great Britain in the councils of Europe marked a speech delivered by ex-Premier Lloyd George today at the luncheon given him in the House of Commons by the National Liberals.

He was arguing for the reunion of the two wings of the Liberal Party and the necessity of their agreeing on a program that would strike the imagination of the country, and he was speaking of the way in which the present Ministry had disappointed its supporters. It had declared, he said, for a more friendly attitude toward France and for a rest from domestic reforms—a program which he prophesied was doomed to disastrous failure.

"The recent elections have shown what it means" he continued "so far from that policy weakening the revolutionary forces, it has given them new strength. A labor victory with such a program as the Socialist candidates put forward at Mitcham and Edgehill would have been absolutely impossible six months ago. I view the future with despair.

"There has never been a Government within recent experience that so rapidly and in so short a time lost its prestige. Even its most ardent supporters are discouraged. The men who created it look at it, and they do not say it is good; they say it is rather feeble.

"It is not pleasant to see that Europe is now conferring and acting as if the British Empire were not in existence. As far as I can see, we are not even consulted when questions are being settled which profoundly affect the whole future of Europe and our own future, questions for the settlement of which the British Empire sacrificed a million lives and 10,000 millions of its gold. I cannot recall a time when Britain was in that position before.

"This tragedy is developing—because that is what it is—so that if it is settled day after tomorrow there is trouble, if it is settled later there will be catastrophe. No longer this thing goes on the greater the catastrophe in Europe. There is no doubt that trouble is being built or that trouble is brewing that will conceivably bring such catastrophe on Europe as we have hardly ever seen, unless this thing is settled quickly.

"While this tragedy is developing, we are here wringing our hands in helpless impotence, and no one is thinking it worth while making us even for a suggestion of how the problem is to be solved. This is unpleasant to me as a Britisher when I remember the glorious part which Britain played in the last seven or eight years."

In home affairs, the ex-Premier argued, the Conservatives were equally ineffective, and their failure was giving the revolutionaries a great opportunity. He added:

"You must have strong Liberalism if you are going to resist those subversive forces, which are becoming more and more powerful. That is why we have been working for a united Liberalism with a policy of peace in Europe and peace at home."

He went on to consider the attitude to be taken toward labor.

"If it is asked," he said, "would I treat labor as an enemy? I would say, 'Certainly not. Not labor.' The revolutionary elements in the Labor Party? Decidedly yes."

Then he passed on to consider in detail the National Liberals' relations with the Asquithian group and urged that the former had the right to ask to be treated with courtesy, and that their record of liberal measures since the war fully entitled them to rank as members of the Liberal Party.

guerilla warfare such as happened in Upper Silesia, and to compare the state of the Ruhr to Ireland is to exaggerate grossly both the events which have happened and the spirit of the troops and people involved. Nevertheless, the possibility exists that, spurred by fear of losing, the German nationalists may by their propaganda excite some hotheads among their number to more assassinations, which, after the decisions of Brussels, is certain to lead to immediate reprisals.

Industrials Pressing Berlin.

The strongest factor for hope that mediation of the British members of the Guarantee Committee may lead to some early result lies in the fact that the Ruhr industrialists of the more conservative kind, like Krupp and Thyssen, have joined with smaller firms in urging the Berlin Government to come to terms. There are unconfirmed rumors, which of course are denied at the Krupp factory, that even this great concern may be shortly compelled to shut off a section of its employes under the guise of giving them a month's holiday, and whether or not they are forced to this extremity it is known that, like all others, they are feeling badly the effect of the blockade and especially the prohibition of exports.

The confidence which was shown two months and even three weeks ago in their power to resist indefinitely is fast disappearing, and though the struggle might be continued much longer the industrialists are admitting now openly that it would be a losing effort and ultimately useless. Like the French effort at requisitioning coal at the pithead their resistance has become more a matter of form than a real effort to break the French hold.

Both sides are losing more than they can ever hope to gain, competent observers think. The best the French can hope for, they say, is the establishment of their right to continue occupation of the industrial district to the extent that Germany fails in her payments. The best the Germans can hope for is that France will accept a figure and conditions of payment within their capacity, and that the outside world will help to contribute the means necessary for mobilization of the debt.

The time when the two countries will come to make some such attempt at an arrangement seems inevitably near. Both the French mining experts and the German industrialists are admitting their respective failure and that it is time to get together.

Ruhr Subscribing to Reich Loan.

Even in the Ruhr, where work has been largely brought to a standstill and in any case rendered unprofitable, subscriptions have begun to the Reich's dollar loan. The banks record big application, and the curious situation is developing here, as brought out in Germany, of subscriptions to a national loan in foreign currencies which it is forbidden by law to any German to hold.

Both for the loan and for the deflation which the German Government has begun the moment seems extraordinarily well timed in the view of financial experts. All holders of dollars, pounds and other good foreign currency are seeing their holdings depreciate every day in value and they are arguing that the terms of the new loan are far more advantageous than would be the immediate or even possible subsequent changing of their dollars into marks.

At the same time every one is complaining bitterly of the result of deflation in increased cost of living, but instead of the blame being placed on the Government's operations it is laid entirely on the Occupation.

To the French the whole operation remains a mystery. All predictions which accompanied the occupation have failed to come true with regard to the value of the mark and there is much uncertainty as to whether other predictions may not take the same course.

Ruhr Troops to Total 100,000.

PARIS, March 14.—Within a few days the number of French and Belgian forces in the Ruhr will reach 100,000.

As the result of decisions at the Brussels Conference 15,000 more French troops and 5,000 more Belgians have been ordered to join General Degoutte's command, and their movement has begun. That will bring the total troops to 100,000, which, plus 10,000 railroad workers the French have mobilized in the Ruhr under the military regime, brings the total forces to 100,000.

The Allied force which marched into the Ruhr numbered 18,000, which at the end of the first two weeks had been increased to about 40,000.

According to the Ministry of War the Government does not intend to increase the forces which will be in the Ruhr after the new detachments arrive there.

DUESSELDORF, March 14.—Additional troops are to be sent into the Ruhr, it was announced today, to assist in the coal seizures which will begin tomorrow. More troops will be dispatched if it is necessary to augment the forces attached to the Engineers' Mission.

M. Fransen now is chief of the Mission, M. Coste having resigned.

Must Pay Tax Today or Lose Mines.

DUESSELDORF, March 14. — The French have given the German mine-owners another twenty-four hours in which to pay the German tax of 40 per cent. on the coal produced last month in the occupied territory.

This tax already has been collected by the Coal Syndicate. No operator has offered to pay the tax again to the French and it is not presumed that any will do so.

At the expiration of the time limit the French will begin the confiscation of coal and coke properties and the personal prosecution of officials of the companies. Under a notice which General Degoutte, in command of the French forces, issued two weeks ago, they will be liable to imprisonment by court-martial if the tax is not paid.

In preparation for seizures on a grand scale the French strengthened their position about the large inland harbor Ruhrort, where they have anchored forty tugs and two barges which will move the coal to France. Also they have taken over the coal harbor of the Thyssen works at Rheinaune.

Hostages Put on Locomotives.

ESSEN, March 14 (Associated Press). —Sixteen thousand coal miners of the three Government mines in the Recklinghausen district of the Ruhr are on strike in protest against the occupation of the State coke plant near Westerholt, according to German estimates today. The plant was seized yesterday by a party of engineers escorted by a battalion of French infantry. The French authorities, express belief that the strike will last only a few days.

German hostages were today for the first time placed on the locomotives of trains operated by the French and Belgians. This move was the outcome of repeated sabotage operations. The hostages so employed were in most cases Burgomasters or other municipal officials of the various districts. Relays of them will ride on all trains both day and night.

The most serious case of sabotage reported today was the destruction over night of a section of railroad trunk near the town of Steele, east of Essen.

FUNERAL OF BUER VICTIMS.

Bodies Sent to France With Imposing Military Ceremonies.

COLOGNE, March 14.—At Buer today the bodies of Lieutenant Coltin and M. Joly, the railroad stationmaster, who were murdered Sunday, were taken with all military pomp from their resting place in the Kathaus to a train for interment in France. General Degoutte and four other Generals present made the customary speeches and a Bishop conducted the funeral service.

Almost everywhere along the route of the procession the Germans paid the full tribute of respect to the victims, but where this was not the case, or there seemed any slowness in uncovering as the bodies were borne past, the soldiers were quick to notice it.

Like all military and most police forces in the presence of resistance, they showed truculence. But in the presence of a hostile population and their dead comrades they behaved probably as well as any other troops would have done.

Newspapers all over Germany continue to assert that the murdered men were shot by French and Belgian soldiers, and an incident last Autumn at Obermeiderich when a Belgian was shot by one of his own company is taken as confirming this possibility.

It should, therefore, be repeated that the evidence of the bullets used, as well as other circumstances, proves without doubt that the shots were fired by some one accustomed to the use of a firearm called a parabellum which was used by the Security Police.

BUER, March 14.—The bodies of the two Frenchmen who were assassinated here Saturday night were conveyed to the railroad station today for transportation to France. There was an imposing demonstration of 5,000 troops. The cortege, where the bodies lay heaped with flowers, was flanked with tanks and infantry with fixed bayonets and cavalry with drawn swords were massed in the square fronting the buildings.

General Degoutte, the French Commander, was followed by the relatives in the funeral procession, made a brief speech at the station. All the shops were closed by order of the French authorities.

ACCUSES FRENCH MARINES.

Girl Forcibly Taken From Her Fiance, Muenster President Asserts.

MUENSTER, March 14.—Dr. Haslinde, District President of Muenster, has addressed a protest to General Denvignes, the French commander at Duesseldorf, in which he charges that a German girl was forcibly taken from her fiance while walking with him along the country road near Essendellwig and mistreated by six French marines.

Dr. Haslinde charges that the couple were on their way to Essendellwig with a pushcart filled with furniture, to be placed in their honeymoon home, when the French marines, accompanied by one Belgian soldier, stopped them.

One of the Frenchmen, at the point of a pistol, forced the girl's fiancé to turn back with the furniture, while the other soldiers compelled the girl to accompany them, threatening otherwise she would be shot.

Later the girl was released, with a threat that she would be shot and thrown into the river if she told of the occurrence.

MME. KEMAL'S CLOTHES ARE PLEDGE OF REFORM

ANGORA, March 14 (Associated Press).—One of the most laudable aims of the Nationalist regime in Turkey is to emancipate the Turkish women, who enjoy none of the freedom or privileges accorded other women of the world. The foremost exponents of women's rights in Turkey are Halide Edibe Hanum, a graduate of the American Girls' College at Constantinople, and Mme. Kemal, the pretty 19-year-old bride of Mustapha Kemal Pasha. Halide Edibe Hanum is already well known in the United States for her work as head of the Angora Ministry of Education and for her advocacy of more rational customs affecting Moslem women. Two of her sons are students at the University of Michigan.

But Mme. Kemal is a new element in Turkish civic and political life. Angora got its first glimpse of the young reformer when she came here from Smyrna with her brilliant husband. Her sister Mohammedans were amazed when they saw her step from the train dressed as a man, with riding breeches, high boots, spurs and a jaunty outing cap. It was evident that from the moment of her arrival she wished it to be emphasized that Mustapha Kemal Pasha, in his campaign for the emancipation of Turkish women, could count upon the full and active support of his wife.

It is not likely that Turkish women will discard their black skirts and shawls and their impenetrable veils for the unconventional attire of Mme. Kemal, but it is certain that her advent will modify or greatly curtail the restrictions and obsolete customs prescribed for the women of Turkey by Mohammed. Mme. Kemal insisted that the rules of conduct and dress prescribed by the founder of the faith centuries ago are not practicable today, and she intends to inject some western customs into Turkish feminine life.

Before the inception of the Nationalist movement Turkish women were kept in the closest seclusion and were forbidden by their men to visit friends, dance or appear in public. Their literature consisted of a cookbook and a Koran, and they even glanced at a man in public they were roundly chastised by their husbands. The severest orders of nuns could not have led more restrained lives. The Turkish woman was permitted out of her home only when she desired to visit a mosque. Her horizon was limited to the four walls of her home.

But with the growth of the new Turkey all this is changing. Turkish women are gradually being released from their domestic bondage and now and then are getting a glimpse of real life. They now appear on the streets and in places of entertainment in Constantinople in almost as great numbers as foreign women. The time-honored veil, or yashmik, is disappearing. Turkish girls no longer cast furtive glances at the young men of the capital, but meet them socially. And the modern Moslem woman insists that her husband shall have only one wife, instead of three or four, as formerly.

POINCARÉ DEFEATED, BUT WON'T RESIGN

PARIS, March 14 (Associated Press). The Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 490 to 80, refused today to follow the Government on a question having to do with the 1924 elections, but as the Government had not made the vote one involving confidence, its defeat will have no sequel.

If the law passed in 1919 is not modified before the elections there will be only 530 Deputies in the Chamber instead of the present number, 625. That law provided that the number of Deputies should depend on the population, and the 1921 census showed such a diminution of population as to eliminate 95 Deputies.

The Government introduced a bill which would have left the number of Deputies unchanged until the next census in 1926, but the Chamber refused to discuss this bill.

LONDON, March 14.—Rosenbach was again the principal purchaser of Britwell books at Southby's today, spending £7,507 of the day's total receipts of £9,239.

Among his purchases were Gosynhyll's "The Prayse of All Women Called the Mulieri Pean" for £246, Robert Greene's "The Myrrour of Modestie," dated 1584, for £750, the same author's "Arbaste, the Anatomie of Fortune," 1584, £560, and "Praise of Turtle Doves," 1606, £200, and Mathew Grove's "Most Famous and Tragical Histories of Pelops and Hippodamia," 1594, of which only one other copy is known, £310.

David Gwyn's "Certain English Verses," which states that Gwyn was for "eleven years and ten months in most grevous servitude in galleys under the King of Spain," and that the volume was presented to Queen Elizabeth in 1582, was secured by Rosenbach for £1,050. It is believed to be the only copy in existence.

Rosenbach also bought Ben Johnson's "Fountain of Selfelers, or Cynthia's Revels," 1601, for £350, and "Pier's Ploughman," from the Heber Library and ascribed by Heber to William Roy, believed to be the only copy known, for £350.

GUNO AT MEETING HEARS PLEA OF HATE

RESOLUTE STAND IS VOTED

By CYRIL BROWN.

BERLIN, March 14.—The National Association of Employers, meeting in the chamber of the former Prussian House of Lords today, adopted a resolution declaring that "for better or for worse all German employers are bound up with the Rhineland, Westphalia and their fate. Regarding the subjugation of this economic heart of Germany under foreign authority and force, there can be no discussion, no negotiation."

Chancellor Cuno was a guest of honor at the meeting.

Geheimrat Kirdorf, the aged dean of the Ruhr industrialists, made a fiery speech.

"The seeds of hate sown by the French in the Ruhr," he said, "have entered German hearts and sprouted the tree of national unity. All who want to stand with the Ruhr in this fight should let the seeds of hate enter their hearts, for hate against the enemy is the best means of mobilizing all the nation's forces in national unity. The fight can only be waged successfully with the slogan 'hate against the enemy, love for the Fatherland.'"

Appeal for Hate Is Cheered.

The keynote sounded by Kirdorf evoked a storm of cheers and applause lasting many minutes, unprecedented as to enthusiasm in any gathering here since the Ruhr occupation began. He continued:

"Unifying hate against our foes, unifying love of the German Fatherland! May we all, even we old fellows, live to see the Fatherland grow strong again! With this I call out to you gluecklauf (the miners' 'good luck')."

"A determined united spirit of defense against the superior force of the foe animates the whole of the Ruhr coal region. The sadistic vindictiveness of our foes is only explainable by French hate of their German neighbors bred through centuries."

Workers' Loyalty Praised.

Dr. Sorge, a Reichstag member and leader of industry, who presided, said at the meeting:

"We Industrialists are proud that leading business men are in the front rank of the Ruhr fight and that squarely behind them are workers of their mines and plants. The quiet, firm attitude of the employes proves their approval of their chiefs. They are a model for the whole nation.

"All controversies must be relegated behind the thought of united resistance until we are again masters in our own house. Together with the Chancellor we warn all that passive resistance will be continued along the present lines. Our just cause will win if we stand united."

Buer Protest Sent to British.

BERLIN, March 14 (Associated Press). —Foreign intervention to obtain the release of Mayor Zimmermann of Buer, whom the French are holding as a hostage, is sought in a telegram from the German Democratic Party to the English League of Nations Union.

"This unprecedented, inhumane and most crass breach of justice demands immediate intervention," says the telegram. "We hope for action aimed at the release of this innocent, threatened German."

"Thunder hangs in the air between the Lippe and the Ruhr," writes the Elberfeld correspondent of the Allgemeine Zeitung, "and if it ever breaks woe to the French and woe to all Europe."

The correspondent says the Westphalian is a man of few words, but when he does begin to speak action is not far off, and adds that until recently the Westphalians have kept their feelings to themselves, realizing that the whole country is swarming with spies.

The correspondent cites as an instance of this espionage the alleged fact that heading and directing the recent raid on the Bochum Chamber of Commerce was a civilian who had lived two years in Bochum as a merchant. But now, the Westphalians are beginning to speak from their hearts, and he warns that this bodes ill for the occupying forces.

Dynamite Threat to General.

The inhabitants of the Ruhr, he declares, have even gone as far as threats, which is evidenced by an incident which he relates as follows:

The labor unions at Bochum protested against the sharpening of the state of siege. The French General invited them to the City Hall to explain their reasons to him and to hear vindication of his measures. Thereupon they interrupted him abruptly, declaring they did not care anything about that—all that made no difference to them, they told him, and added:

"We have borne it long enough now. It will not go much longer. And one thing is certain: For you, General, it is turning out badly. Do not forget that we have dynamite in our mines. Remember that, and if it ever goes off—good-bye."

A German freight train proceeding from Wanne to Bottrop, in Westphalia, was fired upon by French sentries while ignoring orders to halt by rushing through at full steam, according to the Lokal-Anzeiger's Gelsenkirchen correspondent. The fireman of the engine was seriously wounded. The train was stopped, but later was allowed to proceed, after the locomotive and baggage cars had been searched.

ASSURANCES BY PARIS ON TRADE IN RUHR

France Promises American and British Governments All Possible Business Facilities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Informal assurances were received today by the State Department that the French Government has taken comprehensive measures in the occupied regions of Germany to prevent any discrimination whatever against foreign business interests there.

The department was informed that a system of regulations has been installed throughout the Ruhr and the Rhineland calculated to prevent payment by foreign business men engaged in the export trade of double taxes or export tariffs.

German business men engaged in the trade, it was explained, would be required to obtain licenses, but these licenses would be issued promptly upon application, and once the licenses were provided every facility would be given to expedite the traffic in question.

Special precautions would be taken, it was stated, to facilitate the movement of metallurgical products and the general business of American concerns.

Notice also was given that the French Government could not be held responsible in instances where German concerns declined to obtain licenses. In such cases business alone would suffer, it was stated.

LONDON, March 14 (Associated Press). —In the face of speeches in the House of Commons characterizing the Rhineland situation as most serious, the British commercial world today took fresh encouragement from the receipt by the Foreign Office of French assurances that every effort will be made to protect British firms and remove the difficulties hindering commercial activities in the occupied district.

The French pronouncement was in reply to notes sent by Great Britain to the French and Belgian Governments informing them of the numerous complaints received from British traders. A similar favorable reply has been received from Belgium.

The British Labor Party is sending an official deputation to the Ruhr and other parts of Germany to report upon the situation, the Daily Telegraph says today. The four Scottish Laborites who recently went to the Ruhr, issuing a statement on their impressions of conditions, acted on their own initiative, it is pointed out. Labor executives subsequently made it clear that the four spoke only for themselves.

SAYS FRANCE LEADS BRITAIN IN THE AIR

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 14.—Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for Air, in a speech introducing his estimates in the House of Commons today, revealed that Great Britain has been left far behind France in the development of air defense.

At the end of the war, he said, Britain had 3,300 service airplanes and France 3,000. The position now was that Britain had 371 first-line planes and France 1,260. Last year 200 semi-military machines were built in Great Britain, as against 3,300 in France. Sir Samuel agreed that France had a long land frontier to defend, but even so, he said the disparity was overwhelming and the question must arise if the country possessed such a big an air force and another had so small an air force, which was right?

While two-thirds of the British machines were overseas, he said, all the French machines were in France. In 1922 France would have 2,157 machines and Britain would have only 573.

A one-power standard air force would mean an increase in the present estimates of over £5,000,000, Sir Samuel said, and an eventual increase, in order to keep pace with the programs of other powers, of £17,000,000. The one-power standard would cost £35,000,000 a year net.

From every point of view, the Air Minister said, they sought to avoid, if it be humanly possible, another new lap in the race for armaments.

DEFER PARIS HEARING ON RHINE ARMY BILL

Allies Expected Hughes's Reply Yesterday, but It Is Not Yet Formulated.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 14.—The meeting of French, British and Italian representatives called for today to hear the reply of the United States Government to the Allies' offer for the settlement of the American claim for the expense of the Army of Occupation, did not take place because the reply of Secretary Hughes had not reached Eliot Wadsworth, the American negotiator.

Friday has been set as the day for the next meeting, and Mr. Wadsworth hopes to have his Government's answer ready soon.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The reply to the Allied proposals relative to payment of the costs of maintaining the American Army of Occupation in Germany probably will be forwarded tomorrow to Eliot Wadsworth, United States representative in Paris, for presentation to the Allied delegates meeting with him there on Friday. It was stated today that the reply had not yet been formulated, and that published reports that the Allied suggestions had been flatly rejected were without warrant in fact.

At the same time State Department officials explained that they did not intend to give the impression that the proposals would be accepted. Their attitude indicated that the utmost consideration was being given to them with the result that some features might be approved in principle and others rejected.

One of the objectionable points was believed to be that suggesting that the $250,000,000 claim should be reduced in amount equal to the valuation of ships seized at the time this country declared war on Germany. On the other hand, it was thought possible that the provision that reimbursements be made in twelve annual installments would not prove altogether unsatisfactory to the Washington Government.

Presiding Harding has received a copy of the proposals. It was transmitted to him by telegraph to Florida.

CALLS UPON HARDING TO EXPLAIN DISMISSALS

Civil Service Reform League Also Ask Reports on Bureau of Engraving Discharges.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—President Harding is called upon for an explanation of the dismissal of twenty-seven employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing a year ago, in a statement issued today by the Executive Committee of the National Civil Service Reform League. Publication of reports from two official investigations of the bureau following the dismissals also is asked.

The committee declared the "public has a right to these reports, which hitherto have been withheld from the press, and some explanations why capable persons long trained in the service to which they have devoted their lives, should be summarily dismissed, with a stigma that hampered them in securing other employment."

Cardinal Visits Roman Capitol.

ROME, March 14.—Cardinal Pompili, Vicar of Rome, today returned the visit made to him on Monday by Signor Cremonesi, the new Royal Commissioner of the Municipality of Rome. Signor Cremonesi was absent from his office in the Capitol, however, and the Cardinal left his card. Some importance is attached to the fact that the Cardinal visited the Capitol, which is emphasized as giving official character to the visit. On the other hand, it is asserted that Signor Cremonesi called on Cardinal Pompili as a private citizen, and that the Cremonesi and Pompili families have been friends of long standing.

four trust funds has increased $3,000,000 since they were established, in 1915, and that they have paid 7 per cent. interest annually, despite the losses in B. R. T.

Former Justice George L. Ingraham of the Appellate Division is associated with Mr. Miller for the trustees, and former Attorney General George W. Wickersham and Lewis E. Carr are associated with Mr. Kresel for the complaining beneficiaries.

At the end of today's hearing Surrogate George Lawyer adjourned the case until April 9 and directed that the case should be concluded at continuous daily hearings commencing on that date.

Didn't Expect B. R. T. Collapse.

Mr. Brady was the only witness of the day. Subjected to the searching examination of Mr. Kresel, he had an ordeal on the stand lasting continuously from 10:30 A. M. to 5 P. M., except for a recess for luncheon.

Mr. Brady said that after his father's death the estate was divided into six equal parts. He and his brother Nicholas each received a part, and the other four parts went to the three sisters and the niece who are now objecting to the brothers' accounting as executors and trustees. Besides other securities, each of the six trusts contained large blocks of B. R. T. stock. When the trusts were established he said the stock was selling in the market for 87. Two years later, he went on, it fell to 40 and in 1918 to 35. Dividends were 8 per cent. annually until 1918, when they were passed with a final quarterly payment of 1¾ per cent.

In reply to questions, Mr. Brady said he was a Director and member of the Executive Committee of the B. R. T. and therefore familiar with its financial situation.

Reading from annual reports and other documents, Mr. Kresel then sought to show and to make Mr. Brady admit, that he had foreseen the collapse and receivership of the B. R. T. The attorney recited figures showing that the operating charges increased from $10,960,383 in 1915 to $15,693,908 in 1916, to $16,741,417 in 1917 and to $18,111,806 in 1918, or 20 per cent. in three years. He also showed that the company's tax payments had increased almost 30 per cent. in the same period, from $1,700,000 in 1915 to $2,437,000 in 1916; $2,351,000 in 1917 and $2,443,000 in 1918. The fixed charges, Mr. Kresel pointed out, were $6,389,000 in 1915, $7,081,000 in 1916, $7,695,000 in 1917 and $8,000,000 in 1918.

During the same period, the attorney showed, operating charges per passenger increased so much that the earnings dropped from eight-tenths of a cent per passenger to one-half of a cent. The surplus out of which dividends could be paid, Mr. Kresel also pointed out, decreased $1,400,000 from 1915 to 1918, falling from $5,612,000 to $4,112,000.

Mr. Brady admitted all this, but insisted that he had not realized the seriousness of the situation. "We thought we were making a fairly good showing," he testified. "We were paying off, but did not think we were heading for a receivership."

Followed Father's Wishes.

"Under the terms of my father's will, and in view of the expected increase in earnings, we thought we were doing right in holding on to the stock," Mr. Brady testified. "We handled it in the way we were convinced my father wanted it handled. We felt he wanted us to hold on to the properties he had built up. We stuck to them because we believed in them. Had it not been for the very short money market due to war conditions, the B. R. T. would now be a very valuable property. We felt that there was a chance of refunding the money advanced by the War Finance Board and thus restoring dividends."

Mr. Kresel asked the witness if he knew how much his brother Nicholas still had on the same date. The reply was that Nicholas had only 426 shares.

"Now, when you sold those 6,200 shares of your own stock in 1917," Mr. Kresel asked, "did you sell them because you thought they were a good investment?"

"My real reason for trading in the stock was that I bought when I thought it was low and sold when I thought it was high."

"The fact is that you were gambling in B. R. T. stock; isn't that right?" the attorney demanded.

"When I needed money, I sold when I thought it was high."

"I said it when you needed money."

"When you sold stock because you thought it was high, why didn't you sell it for the trust?"

Mr. Kresel then read from documents to show that Mr. Brady averaged $40.42 a share for the sale of his B. R. T. stock, while the trust averaged $11.50.

"Do you deny that?" the lawyer asked.

"I don't deny it, because I never had it figured."

"Do you mean to tell me that you haven't had your accountants figure out how you came out?"

"My accountants have figured out that my loss in B. R. T. stock was $1,300,000 and my brother's was $1,000,000, while each of the trusts only lost $1,000,000."

Mr. Kresel insisted that the averages showed the trusts fared worse than the brothers. And Mr. Brady admitted that the best price he got in liquidating the trust stock was $37, while he got from $38 to $42 for his own stock.

"What was the lowest price you ever realized from your own stock?" Mr. Kresel asked.

"$13.31."

"And the lowest the trust fund got?"

"$5.58."

Made Profit on Tobacco Stock.

Mr. Brady was then asked about the relation of his sale of a large block of American Tobacco Company common stock for the trust in 1919 at a big profit to the sale of B. R. T. stock at a loss.

"Was the only reason you sold the B. R. T. trust stock at a tremendous loss," Mr. Kresel asked, "because it would benefit the trust by offsetting the tremendous profit on the tobacco stock?"

"Well, we believed it was wise thing to do. There had been protests from Mr. Garvan against holding the stock, and that influenced us. It was not until December that we knew we could offset our losses by selling the trust stock and establishing losses against gains in principal. When Collector Edwards made this announcement we had to hurry to get under the wire. That was the reason we sold the stock so low as we did, and at that particular time it offset our gains almost to a penny."

"Do you remember how much American Tobacco stock you threw on the market on Oct. 10 and 11, 1919?" Mr. Kresel asked.

Mr. Miller objected to the characterization "threw onto the market," and the examiner withdrew it, asking how many shares had been sold. Mr. Brady testified that 22,626 shares had been sold for the four trusts on the two days. He said the sales were made through a "Tobacco account" with Edey & Co. in the regular way on the New York Stock Exchange.

Denies Sales to a Pool.

"Now, isn't it a fact," the attorney demanded, "that the Tobacco stock was not sold on the New York Stock Exchange in the regular way, but was sold to a pool?"

"No."

"Isn't it a fact that you and your brother Nicholas were members of that pool?"

"No. Absolutely not."

Mr. Brady said the only pool he remembered that he and his brother had been in was one Maxwell pool. He said they had taken some trust stock in this case and sold it to the pool. "We formed a pool and sold the stock to the pool so as to get something for the stock," he explained.

"Were you or your brother ever in a pool formed to acquire the 'R. J. Reynolds stock' owned by the trust?"

Mr. Brady replied in the negative, saying he had declined an invitation to join this pool which was in 1923, following the period now at issue.

"Didn't you sell the trust stock to this pool?"

"Not all of it."

"Oh, some of it at 40?"

Mr. Brady admitted this was so, and Mr. Kresel inquired if a stock dividend of 25½ per cent. had not been declared shortly after the sale, and if the shares were not selling now at 83.

"Didn't you and your brother know when you sold the stock around 40 that a stock dividend was to be declared?"

"No," Mr. Brady replied.

"Didn't you and your brother get a share of the profits?"

"Absolutely not."

Returning to the balancing of profit on the American Tobacco sales with the loss on B. R. T. sales, Mr. Kresel asked the witness if it was not true that he had not sold any Tobacco before October, 1919. Told that this was so, Mr. Kresel then pointed out that Mr. Brady had started selling B. R. T. for the trust in May of the same year and by the time the big Tobacco profits were made the trust had already lost more than $1,000,000. Mr. Brady admitted this was so.

Asked why he had not sold all the trust stock in May, 1919, when it brought around 75, Mr. Brady replied that the stock had been deposited with a committee, and certificates of deposit had been accepted in exchange. Such a widespread change in price had arisen between the stock and the certificates of deposit, amounting at the peak to 7 per cent., he said, that it would have entailed great sacrifice to sell all the stock at the time.

"When, on Dec. 31, 1918, when a receiver was appointed for the B. R. T., didn't you realize it was your duty as a trustee to get the trust out of the investment as speedily as possible?"

Mr. Brady said he did not realize it, and, as a matter of fact, had bought some stock about that time at about 40.

Explains Deal in Southern Pacific.

Mr. Kresel then asked about the purchase of 750 shares of Southern Pacific stock by the Carvan Trust and similar lots by the three other trusts represents by Mr. Kresel, on Feb. 18, 1920. The books of the estate showed there had been a cash payment to Mr. Brady on that date of $30,281.67, less 1½ per cent. dividend due Jan. 2, 1920, of $1,125, making the net payment $79,156.87. The books also showed that stock was bought at $107.0424 per share.

"Now, Mr. Brady," said the lawyer, "Southern Pacific stock was selling in the open market on Feb. 18, 1920, at from 95⅝ to 96½ per share, and you appear to have sold it to the trust at 107?"

Mr. Brady said that this was not the case. He explained that in October, 1919, he and his brother had planned to buy 2,000 shares apiece for themselves and each trust. They did buy 2,000 shares on Oct. 23 at 100.31.

"We were going to buy more," he went on, "but we began to doubt the information we had received about the stock. We were afraid the Pacific Oil Company dividend was not going to be declared. So we didn't do anything more until Nov. 12, when we bought 3,000 shares Southern Pacific at 105.66, making 5,000 shares at an average of 107. The market went down then, and we didn't buy any more. When we allotted the stock, my brother and I took our full allotment, but only allotted 750 shares each to the trusts. In November of 1920 it became clear that the Pacific Oil dividend would be distributed, and we bought enough for the trust to make 2,000 shares apiece. We bought at 113 in November, 1920, making the average for the trust at 111 a share. On Feb. 28 the rights to Pacific Oil stock were given out, and we subscribed at 125 a share. We subsequently sold the rights for $45, making a profit that reduced the cost of the Southern Pacific, so that it is now profitable."

Mr. Brady denied that he had made any profit on the 3,000 shares sold to the trust in February, 1920. He said he had not made a penny from the trust.

Other Purchases With Estate Money.

Mr. Kresel examined Mr. Brady about his purchase on Oct. 2, 1918, of 9,831 shares of Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland, Ltd., for $41,142. The witness admitted that he had expected to pay for this purchase out of the estate money.

"It wasn't all estate money," the witness added. "Sometimes the estate owed my brother and me money, and it was carried in the estate's account."

"Did the estate owe you that $41,142?"

"I don't say that. I don't know what the condition was on that date."

On April 15, 1920, Mr. Brady bought 7,291 shares of the same Tobacco stock for $8,634. Mr. Kresel demanded, "Does that mean that the estate paid out of its funds for your account that sum to buy you those shares?"

"Not necessarily. The estate may have owed me money. I refer you to my accountants."

When Mr. Miller protested against the questioning, Mr. Kresel told the Court estate $35,945, and at the time of the first purchase James C. Brady owed the estate $25,945, and at the time of the second owed it $80,000. He went on:

"Didn't you and your brothers as executors pay for the shares for your brother and yourself as individuals?"

"Yes."

On June 1, 1920, 462 shares of Liggett, Myers Tobacco Company were bought by the witness for $46,200 out of estate funds. Mr. Kresel asked whether these purchases were for the estate, and Mr. Brady said:

"They were for my account, but had to be subscribed to by the estate, because the certificates were in its name. The estate bought all this stock and paid out the money in all these instances."

"Were the purchases for the estate?"

"Oh, no, I didn't mean that."

Governor Miller sprang up to insist that the examination was "in bad faith and can have no legitimate purpose."

Mr. Brady admitted that after he bought 2,000 shares of the Continental Insurance Company, of which he was a Director, with $170,000 of estate money, his brother and others objected that it was a bad investment. He said he got rid of the purchase a few weeks later. This was the purchase on which he received $5,000 in dividends, and regarding which he could not recall having paid any interest to the estate for the use of its money. Declaring at first that the purchase was for the estate, he admitted finally that he had no record to show this to be the fact.

BITTER ENDERS DOOM WORLD COURT PLAN

The Democrats will be heard from. They will have forty-two members of the next Senate, and as Shipstead of Minnesota is certain to oppose the Republican organization, this means 43 Republicans and 43 in the opposition, counting all the Radicals and Progressives as possible supporters of the organization program.

It is certain that the Democrats will demand increased representation on the committees and they will insist that the majority quotas be reduced in proportion to the loss in the Republican membership. In this fight, it is believed, they will have the support of some members of he "rebel camp" on the majority side.

There are four Republican vacancies on the Finance Committee, as a result of the defeat of Senators McCumber, Frelinghuysen, Calder and Sutherland, all of whom were standpatters. One of these vacancies has been filled by the appointment of Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, an organization man.

Senator La Follette is the ranking member of the committee after Chairman Smoot. He fought the committee on the tariff and debt funding questions, and rumor has it that he will make the fight of his life if the majority attempts to fill the remaining vacancies with stand-patters. There is only one vacancy on the Democratic side, caused by the retirement of Mr. Williams.

Interesting situations exist in some of the other committees. A Senator who is on the side lines expressed the view that there was "a grand old scrap just ahead."

ALLIES SANCTION POLISH BOUNDARIES

RIGA TREATY LINE FOLLOWED

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 14.—The eastern and northern frontiers of Poland, which had been in adjudication since the Paris Peace Conference, were formally laid down today by the conference of Ambassadors acting in the name of the allied powers. This action gives the official recognition of the Allies to the borders already outlined, but which had not been formally approved.

The line between Poland and Russia was laid down by the treaty of Riga in 1921 and this was the line approved today. The technical necessity of the Allies to avoid approval of a treaty signed by the Russian Government which they do not recognize was met by drafting an allied line which happened to coincide with the Riga treaty line.

The Ambassadors gave approval to the line between Poland and Lithuania drawn by the League of Nations last month, which gives the city of Vilna to Poland. Vilna has been occupied by the Poles for more than two years and recently they occupied up to the line which the league drew. Therefore today's decision really means no change.

There exists a border dispute between Poland and Czechoslovakia which the Ambassadors will soon consider.

Lithuania has not accepted the line, and at the Council meeting last month a Lithuanian spokesman declared that his country would fight rather than accept it. But the Poles have held the line for several weeks without serious clashes, and the danger of a conflict seems to be abated.

The Ambassadors received two communications on Memel. One from the Lithuanian Government gave official acceptance of the allied decision awarding Memel to Lithuania with certain provisions for the use of the port by the Poles and stated that a commission would soon leave for Paris to work out the details. The other communication was from Moscow presenting the demand by Tchitcherin that the Memel question be reopened in a conference with Russian participation. These two notes, taken together, indicate that the Lithuanians are getting away from Moscow tutelage, which, under the circumstances, is considered to be a hopeful sign.

Hearing for Colby Is Refused.

PARIS, March 14 (Associated Press).—The Allied Council of Ambassadors today finally settled one of the most irritating problems left over from the peace conference by carving up the frontiers between Russia and Poland.

The Polish Government had shown considerable uneasiness at the manifestations of sentiment that the boundary of Eastern Galicia would be definitely fixed. Count Skrzynski, the Polish Foreign Minister, who came to Paris today with instructions to declare categorically that there was no longer any Galician boundary question, as it had been settled by the Treaty of Riga, expressed great satisfaction tonight over the action of the Ambassadors.

The Ambassadors had been requested to postpone their decision in order that an opportunity might be afforded to Bainbridge Colby, former American Secretary of State, to present an argument on behalf of Ukrainia, but this the council refused. It was pointed out that the council is not a body of judicial character before which arguments could be presented, and that representatives of Poland, Lithuania and Russia were not heard before the decision was taken.

MORE CITY BILLS PASSED BY SENATE

Measures to Legalize Present Grades and Pay of Uniformed Firemen Are Adopted.

PUBLICITY BILL DEFEATED

Cotillo's Proposal to Empower Legislators to Fix Their Own Salaries Is Agreed To.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—After its long grind last night, which did not terminate until 4 o'clock this morning, and which included the putting through of the series of bills proposed by the Housing Committee, the Senate again took up a long third-reading calendar today.

Among important measures adopted was the concurrent resolution bearing Senator Cotillo's name, which proposes, for the third time in less than a decade, an increase in the salaries of Court of Appeals Judges, and another, introduced by Mr. Cotillo also, to amend the Constitution, which would give to the Legislature the power to fix salaries and allowances of members.

Measures affecting the City of New York are beginning to appear in considerable number on the Senate and Assembly calendars. The Senate, without debate, put through today the bill introduced by Senator Farrell, which would legalize present grades, ranks and salaries of the uniformed force in the Fire Department as these have been fixed by the Board of Estimate.

The Senate also put through a bill which would make New York City a party to all proceedings before the Transit and Public Service Commissions involving rates, fares, charges, service or stock and bond issues of public service corporations.

Campaign Publicity Bill Lost.

The absence of one Democratic Senator—Carroll, of Kings—led to the defeat of a bill introduced by President Pro Tem Walker, under which statements of campaign contributions and expenditures would have to be made public prior to the election and not, as now, filed with the Secretary of State twenty days later. Senator Walker moved to reconsider the vote, and the measure, which is part of the Democratic legislative program, will be taken up again when there is a full Democratic attendance, according to Mr. Walker.

A bill providing for popular initiative to bring about amendments to the State Constitution was introduced today by Senator Walker and Assemblyman McKee. Under the measure amendments to the Constitution could be proposed by petition of not less than 100,000 qualified voters. In counting the required number of signatories not more than one-third shall be counted from any one county and not more than one-half from any one city. Petitions would have to be filed with the Secretary of State four months prior to the general election.

A bill introduced by Senator Thayer appropriates $1,000,000 to give greater publicity to the industrial, agricultural, residential and recreational advantages of New York State. The measure provides for the creation of a commission consisting of the Lieutenant Governor, State Public Works Superintendent, State Education Commissioner, the Farms and Markets Commission, Conservation Commissioner and representatives of Chambers of Commerce.

A bill which would annul every service-at-cost contract approved by the Public Service Commission was offered in the Senate by the Public Service Committee, of which Senator Twomey is chairman. It would wipe out every order issued by the commission approving of such contracts.

To Prevent Double Prosecution.

A bill which seeks to prevent a person from being prosecuted under both Federal and State dry laws was introduced in the Assembly by the Committee of Codes, of which Assemblyman Duke of Allegany is chairman. It provides that where a person has been prosecuted under the Federal law he cannot be prosecuted under the State law for the same act.

Another bill aimed at chiropractors was introduced today by Assemblyman Leininger of Queens. It would give the State Education Commissioner power to regulate the practice of chiropractors. A similar bill was killed last year.

A bill to amend the conservation law of prohibiting the pollution of waters anywhere in the State with refuse from oil works, mineral oils or refuse from engines was introduced by Assemblyman Male of New York.

Creation of an Old Age Pension Commission with an appropriation of $2,000,000 to provide for pensions, is proposed in a bill introduced by Assemblyman Flynn. This is the second bill of that nature at the present session.

POINTS TO DANGERS IN CITY-OWNED TRANSIT

Board of Trade and Transportation Attacks the Walker-Donohue Bill.

The Walker-Donohue Transit bill was attacked yesterday in a report made by the Committee on City Affairs of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation. Speaking of the prospect that the city would own and operate the transit lines, the report said, in part:

"This is a prospect which will cause all thinking people much concern for the future comfort and safety of the millions who daily are compelled to travel upon these railroads. It will cause much concern for the city and the taxpayers who will eventually be compelled to pay the cost of an experiment so daring, which proposes to put the operation of these railroads into the hands of city officials, chosen without any reference whatever to their training and experience to manage and operate railroad properties carrying millions of passengers daily, and utterly ignorant of railroad management, although entrusted with and responsible for the lives and well-being of these millions of the people.

"Whether we approve or disapprove of the present municipal Government of our city, there are few, if any, who will venture to contend that these officials have in the smallest degree the qualifications requisite for the operation of these great systems of transportation.

Wants No Untrained Men.

"What syndicate or body of experienced capitalists anywhere in the world, it may be asked, would entrust the operation of any railroad systems of even much smaller proportions to a Board constituted, as the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is, of novices in practical railroad operation? The syndicate purse, however great, would not be large enough, and the greater the purse the more reluctant would the syndicate be to risk it in such hands. This is without any disrespect to our city officials as such. In the case of the City of New York, the purse is only limited by the power of taxation, for the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is to make appropriations to supply any deficits on account of losses which may result from municipal operation.

"It will, of course, be answered that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment would not themselves attempt to make the 'general plan of operation' or operate these railroads, but would compose the City Department of Transportation, which is to be created, of the best railroad talent and experience obtainable, and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment would perfunctorily approve the plan made for them. Under such circumstances, and having the last say in the premises and the power, their own notions of railroad management would inevitably influence their subordinates, the Department of Transportation, and consequently modify such plans and control the operation.

Warns of Political Rule.

"In any event the Department of Transportation would be a politically constituted affair and would function as such. This would be inevitable, and, as in the case of the United States Railroad Administration during the World War, although the Director General of Railroads gathered around him in that work the best railroad talent of the country, they worked as politically constituted organizations always do when carrying on business enterprises, and were dominated by the man at the top whose experience was inadequate to the requirements of the job and a most lamentable situation was the result.

"What may happen upon the subways and elevated railroads of this city while this new organization is being created, educated and trained and substituted for the existing organizations, is appalling to contemplate. The responsibility that the city is to assume so lightly for the lives that are to be jeopardized is appalling. One oversight by some incompetent political appointee would any day cause the death of hundreds in a single accident."

There was a long debate at the meeting of the board over the report of its Railway Committee on the mileage book question. The report took the view that the giving of a 20 per cent. cut in railroad rates to traveling salesmen would be good business on the part of the roads, because of the increased freight business produced by the efforts of the salesmen. Some speakers, dissenting for the majority view, pointed out the contention of the railroads that any such cut would cost them $50,000,000 a year.

disclosed the fact that Frank Cziesilk of 471 Irving Avenue, Brooklyn, a real estate operator and stock promoter, had an income of almost $3,000,000 in 1920, not shown in his income tax report for that year, the Federal Grand Jury in Brooklyn yesterday returned an indictment against Cziesilk charging him with failing to make out a proper return of his income.

According to figures given out by the officials, Cziesilk owes the Government, in income tax due and in penalties that have accrued, a total of about $1,952,000. After the return of the indictment Assistant United States Attorney Guy O. Walser, got in communication with William J. McDermott, attorney for Cziesilk, who promised to produce his client in the United States District Court before Judge Edwin L. Garvin today, to plead to the indictment.

The Internal Revenue Bureau, after a preliminary investigation, submitted the case to the Treasury Department in Washington, D. C., and a more extensive inquiry was undertaken by men of the staff of Hugh McQuillan, special investigator in Manhattan. The indictment charges Cziesilk specifically with having made a profit of $45,000 on one real estate transaction and of having made no mention of it in his income tax report. This, according to Mr. Walser, was a small portion of his actual income.

PUTS HYLAN TRANSIT COST AT A BILLION

Chairman McAneny Declares That City Has Not a Penny of Borrowing Power.

QUOTES CRAIG'S FIGURES

"Assembly Has Rendered a Signal Public Service," He Says, In Bringing Out Facts.

Chairman George McAneny of the Transit Commission issued a statement yesterday arguing that the so-called "Mayor Hylan Transit Plan" would involve the expenditure of a billion dollars and that the city had not a dollar of available borrowing power in sight. The statement of Mr. McAneny follows:

"The Controller's reply to the questions addressed to the Mayor by the Assembly gives very fairly, for the first time, the underlying facts of the city's present financial condition. The Controller's figures, however, if their sweeping effect upon the transit situation is to be shown, require further analysis.

"The Controller reports that the total unreserved borrowing margin within the debt limit available for specific authorization for any municipal purpose on Dec. 31 was $128,514,671. He has previously estimated that the additional borrowing capacity accruing the present year will be about $44,000,000. The first outstanding fact is that against the total of othese two figures these must be charged before anything else the following commitments of the city, to which the Controller also makes reference, and for which the Board of Estimate is bound to make provision:

School sites, ferryboats and other specific items	$15,640,000
Staten Island freight and passenger tunnel	61,000,000
Additional school requirements	64,205,000
Total	$176,445,000

"The Controller, in the absence of definite information, as he put it, did not include in his figures the remaining cost of the dual subway work. The figures inserted under this head, which are official, are those of the commission's engineers.

"It would appear that these four items alone not only offset the city's entire borrowing capacity of Dec. 31, but all that will be added to it for a year ahead.

"The Controller's statement shows that the average annual increase of borrowing capacity since 1910 has been $35,200,000. The estimate of $44,000,000, the increase for the present year, already counted as part of the capacity now available, is not far from this average. There have been no estimates from any source indicating that the annual yield for the next ten years will be greater than this year's figure.

"The Controller's figures also show that the requests already on file for various municipal purposes other than those named above—including the $25,000,000 the Mayor asks for—busses amount to $95,184,000, and this without any regard to the multiplying needs for similar purposes that naturally will arise in the decade ahead.

"Nothing could be clearer, therefore, than the fact that there will be no funds whatever available for subways, under the Mayor's program, unless the city's needs for schools, docks and other necessities are set aside or starved down, and that if these were done there would hardly be enough available to make more than a feeble start upon subway building.

"These facts are pointed out not with any controversial intent, but because it is estimated that the people of the city shall have the truth, and that they may understand that the promises of the Mayor to furnish adequate transit under the so-called plan that he is pressing, are impossible of fulfillment.

"The engineers of the Transit Commission have shown that the construction and equipment for which this 'plan' call would cost not $600,000,000, but $875,000,000, and that the cost of the recapture of existing lines, which they put at $190,000,000 more, and the Controller at $170,000,000, would bring the total well over a billion dollars.

"To meet this huge sum or any substantial part of it, the Controller's figures now show that there is not a dollar of available borrowing power in sight.

"In bringing forward all of this clarifying information, irrespective of whatever other action may be taken at Albany, the Assembly has rendered a signal public service."

The Walker-Donohue bill was termed the "most fantastic proposition of American jurisprudence" yesterday by Transit Commissioner Leroy T. Harkness while speaking at a meeting of the Neighborhood Republican Association at the home of Mrs. John T. Pratt, 7 East Sixty-first Street.

"The proposition to turn over the powers of the Transit Commission to the Board of Estimate," said Mr. Harkness, "involves the transfer of State powers never intended for municipalities. They are attempting to set up a petty sovereignty in New York City.

"The situation resolves itself into this—the city having contracts with the transit companies now asks the power to regulate these companies. This is certainly a fantastic proposition in American jurisprudence."

PENNSYLVANIA SENATE PASS DRASTIC DRY ACT

Pinchot Approves Adoption—Real Battle Coming Next Week in House.

HARRISBURG, March 14.—The Prohibition bill, framed to wipe out saloons in Pennsylvania and dry up the State and backed by all the power of the Pinchot administration, fought its way through the Senate today and shifted the battleground to the House. The measure received 30 votes, four more than were necessary for passage, while 15 Senators voted against it. There were five absentees. The bill will be acted on by the House Law and Order Committee next week.

Governor Pinchot said he was "very greatly gratified at the vote in the Senate." "It represents accurately, in my opinion, the attitude of the people of Pennsylvania on this question," he added, "and it foreshadows and assures a decisive victory in the House."

Anti-Vivisection Bills Killed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—The Assembly Codes Committee today voted unanimously to kill the Cotillo-Leininger Anti-Vivisection bills. One as designed to prevent "experimentation" on children, and the other would have prevented surgeons from making experiments on living dogs. Assemblyman Duke, Chairman of the committee, declared the real purpose of the shild bill was "to advance Christian Science" by preventing medical treatment for children unless their parents consented. The penal law now provides parents must provide medical treatment for their children.

SENATE DEMOCRATS FOR DRY LAW REPEAL

Cotillo Will Introduce Bills Soon —Sure to Pass Both Houses, He Says.

MAY HAVE SMITH APPROVAL

Albany Hears the Governor May Have Told Leaders to Wipe Out the Mullan-Gage Act.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—An announcement made this afternoon by Senator Cotillo, Democrat, of New York, and Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, that he would soon introduce three bills in the upper house to wipe out the Mullan-Gage Prohibition Enforcement act, is regarded as the first definite stand taken by the Democratic leaders looking toward repeal of the "dry" law.

Senator Cotillo said the measures which he is planning to offer in the Senate would be almost identical with the three bills sponsored by Assemblyman Cuvillier, which were killed in the Excise Committee of the lower house last week. Mr. Cotillo appeared to be confident that his measures would pass both houses.

The announcement by Senator Cotillo came after the Senate Judiciary Committee had unanimously voted to report the bill sponsored by Senator Dunnigan, Democrat, of the Bronx, which would repeal one of the three articles of the Mullan-Gage law. None of the Republican members of the Judiciary Committee was present when the vote was taken, but all of the Democrats voted in favor of reporting it.

Senator Cotillo said the Dunnigan bill would be placed on the general orders calendar of the upper house, but would probably be held there until his three measures had been introduced and reported out by the Judiciary Committee. Then all would be placed on the calendar and rushed through the Senate.

"After the bills I am planning to introduce are passed in the Senate and sent over to the Assembly, I believe that the New York City Republicans and many other Republicans from up-State cities will vote for them, because the whole background of the repeal of the State dry law will have been changed," said Senator Cotillo.

As Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, Senator Cotillo is one of the leading figures in the Senate. With him sponsoring the repeal bills it is generally believed they will be passed there without any opposition from the members of the majority party. It is even reported that there are several Republican members of the Senate who would not be averse to casting their votes for the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law, providing the repeal measures were sponsored by a Democrat.

Because of the Cotillo announcement, there was a report that possibly Governor Smith had experienced a change of heart with regard to the Mullan-Gage law and had intimated to the Democratic leaders that they could go ahead and repeal the law if they so desired. Up to the present the general impression has prevailed that the Democratic leaders were not anxious to take the first step toward repeal because they were under the impression that such action might embarrass the Governor.

HYLAN LEADS CHARGE FOR TRANSIT BILL

created a State commission to supervise and regulate the operations of such corporations. The State should not delegate that power to a body not directly responsible to the Legislature. I wonder how long capital would continue to invest in public utility securities if the State were to take its hand off entirely, as is proposed here, and turn its power over to a body subject to local and political, not to say ulterior, influences?

"I need not waste many words on municipal operation. The mixture of business and politics proved fatal in the operation of railroads by the Federal Government during the war, and users of the railroads are now paying for the mistakes that were made to the tune of billions. The same evils would be repeated in a Board of Estimate administration of utilities in New York City, because the board is a political body first of all, and the taxpayer would pay the bill and real rapid transit development be retarded."

Mr. McCarroll then introduced William J. Schieffelin, Chairman of the Citizens Union.

"This measure might truly be entitled, 'A bill to give more powers in transit matters to a Mayor who has persistently refused to use those he already possesses,'" said Mr. Schieffelin. "By cooperation with the Transit Commission the New York city administration could now have in operation all the bus lines needed in the city. But the Mayor, up to the present time, has refused to avail himself of every opportunity for such cooperation.

"The Merchants Association has made a close study of the so-called Hylan transit plan, as compared with the plan the Transit Commission is now prepared to put in operation. The report shows that the plan of Mayor Hylan is not only expensive and extravagant but that it would result in far more subway crowding that exists now; and only day before yesterday a subway car in which I was traveling had its windows shattered from the outside by the crowd that tried to board it.

"It has been suggested in connection with this legislation that it might be wise to give the Mayor all the rope he wants and let him hang himself. That would be all right if there were any assurance that the rope would not cost the taxpayers of New York City all the way from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000."

Owen J. Stevens, representing the Board of Governors of the Bronx Board of Trade, presented resolutions adopted by that body opposing the Transportation bill because what it proposed was not, financially, within the city's power to undertake if at all, without calling a complete halt on needed improvement; because municipal operation would result in waste and inefficiency and because it would keep the transit situation "in the turmoil of politics."

Leonard M. Wallstein, counsel for the Citizens' Union, was the next speaker. "The principal reason why the Citizens' Union ranges itself on the side of the opposition is the proposal to transfer the regulatory powers from the Transit Commission to the proposed Transportation Commission.

"It is too evident for argument that commissioners appointed and removable as this bill provides, will be mere puppets of the Mayor and of the Board of Estimate, necessarily responsive to their every whim and their every conception of the political expediencies of the moment.

Sees Return to "Boodle" Days.

"In its provisions transferring to a commission thus constituted the power to fix fares, to regulate service, to supervise the issue of securities and to prescribe uniform methods of accounting, this bill is the most dangerous and the most subversive of our free institutions which has been submitted for serious legislative consideration during the past generation. It takes us back to the boodle days of the last generation when public utility regulation in the public interest was a nullity but was a fertile field for the play of politics, pull and graft.

"No other State in the Union has passed from State regulation to local regulation. This is the first time that such a backward step has been even suggested in this State, for even the Thompson committee, with all its baiting of the traction companies and of the Public Service Commission, did not suggest that regulatory powers be vested in the City Government.

"Transit regulation calls for the taking of evidence, for the weighing of facts and for the reaching of deliberate judgments founded on the facts and in accordance with law.

"That the City Administration would exercise these judicial powers not as a judge but as the expediency of politics appears to indicate is shown by past performances. Notwithstanding repeated and final decisions by all the courts, including the Court of Appeals, the City Administration has persisted in its violation of law in the award of its permits without following the procedure prescribed by law. Only the other day the representative of an applicant for a bus franchise was informed by the Mayor that his company's application would be thrown out of the window simply because the company had stood behind the assertion of a legal right to have bus franchises awarded in accordance with law. More recently we have had exhibited to view the sinister play of politics and pull in the obtaining of bus permits."

Alfred T. Davison, representing owners of the securities of the Third Avenue Railway Company, called the bill revolutionary "to the point even of outdoing Russian Bolshevism." "The principal purpose of this bill is to bring about the ruin of the surface lines," he continued. "The Mayor proposes that the city shall set up a system in competition with these lines at a time when there is not enough business for two, and he proposes to take the taxpayers' money in any amounts that may be found necessary to encompass their ruin.

"Where 'safe and adequate' are terms used in existing law there have been substituted in the bill the words 'safe, adequate and comfortable,' leaving the construction to the Mayor's personally conducted commission. How the term 'comfortable' can lend itself to the issuance of orders impossible to comply with, is readily understood, and in the event of non-compliance the Board of Estimate is empowered to set up transit lines in competition operating on the same streets for the purposes of furnishing additional transit facilities, while the operating company is stopped through the bill from going into court and setting up a plea of ruinous and unjust competition. By express terms of this bill the ruin of the surface lines may be said to have been deliberately planned and provided for."

Mr. Davison pointed out another power vested in the board—to order the relocation or removal of tracks without any compensation to the companies involved.

Mayor Hylan Makes Plea.

Mayor Hylan was received with applause by his followers when he was presented by Assemblyman Donohue, as the first speaker for the bill. The Mayor smiled with satisfaction. He spoke blandly for a while about "the weakness of the opposition," which, he said, made an answer almost unnecessary. Soon, however, storm clouds gathered on his brow as he launched his inevitable attack on the City Club and the Citizens' Union.

"We don't pay any attention to what they say in New York City," said the Mayor. "They are not worrying about the people. They are afraid the companies will be compelled to give some service after my commission takes hold, and they will, too. If you give me this bill I will give New York the best transit the city ever had. The crowd which is here opposing the bill is playing very close to that other crowd which wants higher fares."

"Failure to enact the Walker-Donohue bill will leave the city just where it is at the present time—in the hands of the traction ring and of its duly appointed State agents—the Transit Commission. Failure to pass this bill means continuance in office of the discredited State Transit Commission despite universal protest against it, and to delay still longer the construction of urgently needed new subways and other transit facilities.

"Failure to pass this bill is tantamount to saying that you are in favor of the plan of the Transit Commission to foist on the people of the City of New York the antiquated, broken-down surface and elevated lines that the people do not want and would not accept as a gift, but which the Transit Commission insists shall be unloaded upon them at a cost of at least $500,000,000.

"Failure to pass this bill means that you are not willing to restore control of transit to the people of the City of New York and to those who they elected to conduct their business for them, but that you desire to continue such transit control in the traction ring and in the very men they selected as State Transit Commissioners. It also means that you approve of George McAneny as the arbiter of the city's transit affairs and that you insist on continuing him in office notwithstanding almost unanimous public protest against such continuance.

"The enactment of the Walker-Donohue bill means that the City of New York can begin at once to build new subways and that new buses of the finest type, owned and operated by the city, will be in operation on the surface of the city streets at a five-cent fare before next Summer.

"If the Walker-Donohue bill becomes a law and I have the power to appoint a Transportation Commission, my direction to that commission will be to exercise the greatest speed and diligence in providing new rapid transit facilities to relieve the prevailing terrible congestion upon the general lines of this plan that has met with practically universal favor.

Says There's No Lack of Money.

"The city has more than enough money and credit available for new subway construction, and it will have every dollar needed for the recapture of existing subway lines when the time arrives. Why not get back to basic honesty in dealing with this matter of the city's credit? Surely, if the city can pledge its credit for the benefit of private transit corporations it can pledge it for itself. It should also be borne in mind that the maximum amount of subway construction that could physically be undertaken would not exceed $40,000,000 a year. Moreover, every foot of new subway creates new values subject to taxation and makes possible additional subway construction, that is, the additional benefits in new values accruing to the property owners affected finance the new construction without any added burden upon the previous values.

"When the first portions of the construction program are articulated or joined to the recaptured portions of the existing subway systems, there will be released from the debt limit forthwith over $300,000,000 of bonds. This release will be effected by the present actual net earnings of the existing profitable portions of the subways that will be recaptured. This amount will more than offset the monies pledged up to that time for new construction and for recapture, and make available anew this vast sum of money for the balance of the new construction and equipment provided for in the development of the general plan decided upon.

"The withholding of the power to carry out the transit program that will relieve the City of New York and yet prevent the exploiting of the public by private transportation companies on the pretense that the city has not the financial means to do so is indefensible. If it were the fact—and it is not the fact—that we lack the means, then granting us the power will do no harm and will show the legislators' good faith in doing their part to meet the needs and demands of New York City. If, after having given us the power, we are unable to carry it out you will be in a position to say that you have done your part.

"The enactment of the Walker-Donohue bill will enable the City of New York to extend its present bus service, some fifty routes of which were discontinued by the order of the traction ring. The buses, acting as feeders to the city's subway systems as well as independent carriers, will be operated on a 5-cent fare and will provide complete and proper surface transportation.

"It has been said that some of you gentlemen are opposed to municipal ownership as well as municipal operation. It seems to me incredible that any member of this Legislature can be sincerely opposed to either municipal ownership or municipal operation, although the two do not always go together. Even the Legislature of two years ago in passing the Knight-Adler bill endorsed municipal ownership and operation when that principle was distorted to favor the corporations.

"You do not oppose the municipal ownership and operation that supplies water in your home cities. I do not believe that you object to the municipal operation that supplies gas, electric light and transit in many cities in the United States. Nor do I believe you would think for a moment of returning to private operation in bridges or postal service or private exploitation of the State forest.

Says Transit Was Election Issue.

"The issue in the State campaign last year in New York City was the same as the year before—universal opposition to the State Transit Commission which had not been appointed to solve the city's transit problem for the benefit of the people but solely to foist upon the people at a cost of $500,000,000 all the privately owned surface and elevated transportation junk. The result was a vote of 3 to 1 against the Republican candidates because the bulk of Republicans of New York City were of the same mind as the Democrats and showed it by the vote cast. The same issues will be met in the next Mayoralty and State elections unless you pass this bill and give to the people of the City of New York the right to choose their own mode of transit and the authority to invest their own funds in transit facilities suitable for the entire city.

"No new principle of municipal ownership is involved in the Walker-Donohue bill. Thirty years ago the people voted in referendum overwhelmingly in favor of municipal ownership, and as a result of that vote $200,000,000 of the city's funds have been invested in rapid transit lines. Since that vote was taken the power of municipal operation has also been vested in the city, under Section 30 of the Rapid Transit act. The proposed legislation merely expands the scope of municipal ownership and operation to other modern transit facilities and lodges their management in the local authorities.

"Gentlemen of the Legislature, on behalf of the greatest city in the old or new world, on behalf of every inhabitant entitled to but not receiving adequate and proper transportation on a five-cent fare, and on behalf of every woman and child subjected to the grossest indignities on our frightfully congested transit lines, I ask you to place upon the statute books of the State of New York this Walker-Donohue law, which will help us at once to relieve this intolerable condition. I pledge you that if the Walker-Donohue bill becomes a law and I have the power to appoint a transportation commission, we will give relief to the people of the City of New York within sixty days.

Craig Shows Animosity.

Divided control in transit and invasion of the city's right to manage its own affairs, according to Controller Craig, were the principal questions involved in the fight of many successive years which had culminated in the introduction of the transportation bill.

"Fears have been expressed at this hearing," the Controller said, "lest the Commissioners, with their tenure of office dependent upon the Mayor solely, would become rubber stamps and puppets. Those fears may be dismissed."

Then with a sidelong glance at Grover Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, who, the Controller some time ago advised the Mayor, should get "the air," Mr. Craig added:

"It cannot be said that the Mayor does not show restraint in the matter of removing officials. His restraint in that respect in dealing with certain Commissioners and others almost borders on abnegation. Indeed, if he were not so restrained it might be a good thing for the city."

The Mayor looked a little uncomfortable.

The Controller contended that the bill should have gone a great deal further than it did in its bestowal of power on the Board of Estimate. Surface lines were obsolete and should be abandoned, and the Board of Estimate should receive absolute and final power to say when such lines should be discontinued, he thought.

He even suggested an amendment along that line. "The city was stripped by the Legislature some sixty years ago of all its power in transit matters," the Controller went on. "A vicious circle of market rigging and receiverships, with the public robbed of dollars and of service as well, has been the story since. We have had operation of transit lines by the courts, and such operation never could be successful in the nature of things.

"The Miller Transit bill only made matters worse. It brought about a deadlock and an impasse. The State tried to take away from the city powers which could not under the Constitution be taken away. This bill restores to the city the power that belongs to it and is the first and essential step toward better transit conditions."

President Hulbert of the Board of Aldermen, Borough Presidents Riegelmann of Brooklyn, Connolly of Queens and Lynch of Richmond, Sheriff Flynn, Democratic leader of the Bronx; Corporation Counsel Nicholson, G. A. Dunningham of the Community Councils, Dr. George E. Berg of the Greater New York Taxpayers' Association, and R. L. Emory, representing the Brooklyn Welfare Association, were other speakers.

"Boys," he said, addressing the two committees, "take my advice and don't take another chance on transit. If you beat this bill and we have another referendum in the city, there won't be enough Republicans left to do the work at the polling places."

URGES BORDER ZONES TO PRESERVE PEACE

FAVORS SECURITY TREATIES

Supporter of League Will Sail for America Wednesday to Make Several Addresses.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 14.—Lord Robert Cecil will sail next Wednesday on the Majestic for a visit of four or five weeks in the United States. He is to be the guest of the Foreign Policy Association, and will deliver several addresses on the European situation, but he is most anxious that his visit shall not be supposed to be undertaken in a missionary spirit.

"I am going to visit a number of old friends," he said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today. "I have been asked to speak on several matters on which I have special information, but I hope it will not be thought that I am interfering in American politics or am coming to preach the League of Nations."

When asked about his recent speech in which he astonished the House of Commons by opposing the Liberals' proposal to refer the Ruhr question to the League, he said that his position was still the same. While he believed the League could be of the greatest service in settling the question, he did not see the use of asking it to intervene as long as some of the principals in the dispute were opposed to its action.

"I have just come from Paris," he went on, "where we had some very successful League meetings. I discussed the Ruhr problem with very many people there, and I am convinced that reparations are not at the bottom of it. It is not reparations the French want, but security. That is not wonderful, considering that their country has been three times invaded in two generations. Moreover, there is no general desire for annexation. There may be individual Frenchman who want it, but none of them are people of importance."

In Lord Robert's view there are two ways in which the League of Nations could help to give France the security which she desires. The first is by treaties of guarantee with such nations as are willing to sign them.

"Article X. of the Covenant has been a great deal criticised," he said, "but to me its chief fault is that it has not much meaning. I should like to see special guarantee treaties concluded by such States as required them with whatever States were willing to subscribe to them. These would be entirely separate from the Covenant. The trouble has been that Peru, for example, has not seen why it should have to fight for Czechoslovakia's integrity, or Czechoslovakia for Peru's. These special treaties would get over that."

Lord Robert also believes in the idea of internationalized and demilitarized border zones as affording security for France and other countries. In these the railroads would be under international control and could not be used for sudden mobilization purposes.

"What about airplanes?" Lord Robert was asked.

"Airplanes are destructive weapons, but are not much good for invasion purposes," he replied. "You can't transport armies by airplane. England, even in these days of aviation, finds the Channel still a considerable protection, and these demilitarized zones would give Continental countries something of the same kind of security."

"That is as might be, but the managers would be under international authority, and I am informed by military authorities that for successful mobilization movements the managers of the railroads must have the most complete familiarity with the lines used. There can be no doubt that strips of internationalized railroads would be a serious obstacle to sudden invasions, and—perhaps still more important—in these zones there would be no military railroads, none of those systems which Germany built before the war to carry troops to the Belgian frontier, without any connections beyond it."

Lord Robert pointed out that there were a good many borders besides that of France in Europe which would be rendered far more secure by the institution of such a zone system; and when it was objected that this would mean the internationalising of a considerable portion of Europe he replied that a strip twenty-two miles wide should be sufficient, and probably such areas could remain under their own national police, with a mere force of international inspectors to oversee them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Lord Robert Cecil will address the National League of Women Voters at its annual convention in Des Moines on April 13, according to an announcement made today at the league headquarters. He has not yet announced his subject, but it is believed that it will have to do with the work of the League of Nations.

JOKER IN BANK TAX WAS KILLED BY HOUSE

Representative Wingo Says Senate Provision Would Have Overridden New York Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—A Senate provision in the National Bank Tax act recently passed by Congress would have advised New York State to tell its courts "to go to hell," so Representative Wingo, a Democratic member of the House Banking and Currency Committee, and one of the conferees on the bill, declared today. The House eliminated this provision which dealt with the disposition of the taxes collected under New York State's 1 per cent. levy on shares of national banks, a tax which the New York State Court of Appeals held discriminatory, and whose decision the United States Supreme Court upheld last Monday.

"The Senate proposal said boldly to the State of New York, 'to hell with your courts, you need the money, so keep it all even though you have unlawfully collected it,'" said Mr. Wingo. "Instead of that provision we inserted another, and that one had an entirely different meaning. In effect our provision said to the State: 'You may keep all of this tax money which you have been ordered to refund, provided you back tax the competitive capital invested in private banking and bring it up to the level of what you have collected on the shares of stock of national and State incorporated banks. Or, if you are not willing to make the moneyed capital invested in private banking bear the same burden, then you may retain only that part which will equal in amount the taxes that you have collected from the moneyed capital invested in private banking."

12 MEN HURT IN FIRE AT MATCH FACTORY

Fall of Carton Down a Shaft Causes Blaze Which Destroys Two-Story Building.

A match factory in Brooklyn burst into flames last night, and twelve men were injured when a carton containing thousands of matches fell down a shaft from the second to the ground floor and ignited. The factory, a two-story structure, owned and occupied by the World Match Corporation, is at 238 Washington Street.

Flames spread rapidly throughout the building, which was well stored with chemicals, highly inflammable wood and finished matches. Twenty men working on the second floor were cut off from the stairway and jumped from rear windows to the yard. Ten others on the first floor fled through doorways and windows which they broke open. Four of the injured, suffering from burns and cuts, were removed to the Cumberland Hospital. Others, two of whom were firemen, were treated by ambulance surgeons and sent home.

One of the most severely injured men taken to the hospital was unable to give his name. The others were James Marino, 19, 10 Chesver Place, Brooklyn, burns; Frank Gallo, 17, 33 Chesver Place, Brooklyn, burns and cuts; Joseph Russo, 17, 270 Degraw Street, burns and cuts. Fireman Martin Clune and Joseph Noonan of Engine Company 207, slightly burned and suffering from inhaling sulphur fumes, were treated by ambulance surgeons and sent home.

Miss Margaret Lindsay Williams, the English artist who came to this country some months ago to paint the portrait of President Harding for the English-Speaking Union in London, has returned from Washington and the portrait of the President is on exhibition at Knoedlers and will be shown there through this week.

The portrait is a simple, dignified one, three-quarter length, standing, the right hand at the side and the left holding several pages of manuscript. There are three other portraits by Miss Williams also being shown at the Galleries. One is that of Mrs. Lawrence Phipps, wife of the Senator from Colorado. It is a full-length portrait. Mrs. Phipps, who is a blonde, is wearing an evening gown of red velvet under an evening wrap of black velvet with an ermine collar. There is an ornament of black jet falling from the waist at one side of the gown and the slippers are black with buckles. A feather fan of red is held in one hand, while the other holds back the folds of the wrap. Opalescent lavender draperies form the background.

Two other pictures are again quite different. One is the seated figure of a woman in an evening gown of cloth of gold, with a drapery of figured red of a bright shade and with a background formed by a drapery of red and a red lacquer table with fruits. The vivacious subject, a brunette, has both hands raised and in one is an apple. The picture is called "Eve in Eden." Another is the portrait of Señor Lorenso Babino. The canvas is much wider than the height, and the insouciant figure with the brilliant smiling face, lounges in a chair, and is seen nearly full length. It is a study in browns, a darker fur-trimmed overcoat is over one side, a hat and stick in one hand and cigarette in another.

circumstances, yet one is permitted to doubt whether the Bolshevist revolution would have succeeded without Lenin.

Osinski sums up Lenin's greatest achievement, the formation of the Russian Communist Party into an effective revolutionary machine, in the following terms:

"Lenin thrust out from the party the element of phrasemaking. He did it in order that the revolutionary energy might not be dissipated in fine, romantic words, but transmuted into action, which is directed along definite lines."

There in a nutshell is the secret of Bolshevist success. While Kerensky talked and the social revolutionaries planned and the Menheviki hesitated Lenin acted and made his party act with him. Any one who knows the Russians, who would rather talk than eat, drink, sleep or work—especially work—can understand what an achievement that was. Peter the Great made them work, too, but by brute force and Lenin by the force of personality.

"That force," said Osinski, "came from two qualities—first, the capacity to understand the real meaning of events; second, the ability to explain things to others."

In a previous dispatch I have emphasized the fact that the real secret of Lenin's "dictatorship" is precisely this judgment of events and intuition of policy. Osinski adds:

"One of the marvelous things about Lenin was his faculty to gauge situations and opinions at a distance. Alone of the Bolshevist leaders he has remained since the revolution in Petrograd or Moscow. He never went to the provinces. Yet he knew what was happening in the provinces and what the provinces were thinking far better than his colleagues, who were constantly visiting him."

Lived in Marked Simplicity.

Semashko gives his explanation of this power. He writes: "Lenin is really one with the people at heart. He has always lived in extreme simplicity—one small room, an iron bed and a work table. This simplicity is innate in him, not a demagogue trick or bourgeois hypocrisy. Later, as master of Russia, he was always annoyed and bored by pomp and ceremony."

Semashko also gives a picture of Lenin as a man. You see him, a stocky little figure, jumping from his bicycle to help Semashko's 11-year-old girl up a steep hill near Paris—he is never so happy as in the company of children—and turning furiously on a friend, who said it would do a healthy child no harm to be tired, with the savage phrase, "Parents like you should not be allowed to have children at all."

At parties—he loved parties, of which he was always the centre, says Semashko—Lenin was full of life and fun. He had the power of infecting others with his own spirit, whether he wished to inflame a great audience to passionate energy or enliven a little group of exiles with childish fun.

"Mr. Bitter (Gorki is Russian for bitter) has a sweet wife," he once cried at an anniversary party given by Gorki in Paris. The guests were exiled revolutionists, men of intelligence who had suffered much. Yet Semashko relates that they laughed until the tears came at Lenin's joke, not because it was so wonderful but because Lenin was gay and they too must be gay despite themselves.

Vigor Sapped by Wounds.

In the highest degree he is a dynamic personality, "like a steel bullet" Osinski says, "with a terrific charge of powder behind it." He was full of vigor, too, in the old days before his strength was sapped by the wounds of the girl assassin, Fanny Kaplan.

"He was strong as steel, sturdy as a little oak tree," says Osinski. "Why, that night with three bullets in his body he walked to his automobile and climbed three flights of stairs to his apartment."

Then from the fulness of his heart Osinski concludes:

"There is no one like Lenin. It is his doing that the revolutionary movement is now of world importance. Our enemies are strong and clever, fortified by long mastery and all the resources of money and science. But they have no one like Lenin."

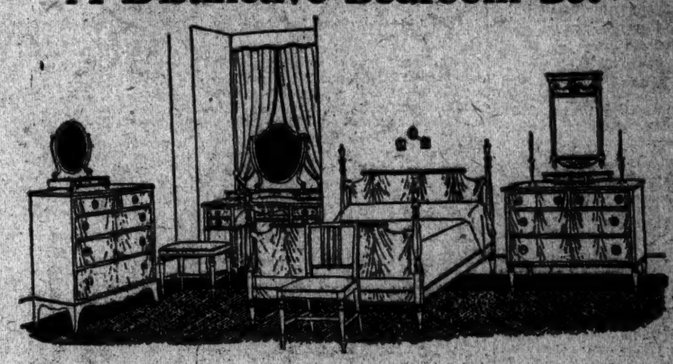
SEVENTH FLOOR

A Distinctive Bedroom Set



Too often do modern designers devote their skill to but one piece of a set of furniture—using that as a pattern from which the others pieces are built—with the result that constant association makes the furniture wearisome to the eye, even though each piece in itself be individually beautiful and symmetrical. How pleasant, then, the effect when a set is designed as the one illustrated, where each piece, though conforming to the design of the whole, bears a distinctive touch that sets it apart. A difference in mirrors, slightly varied legs, and other individual notes. The six piece set sketched, built of finely figured woods, with inlaid lines, $700, is but one of many artistic sets here.

SHOWS MYSTIC ART SAWED FROM FLOOR

CALLS IT POWER OF MIND

Mrs. Janet Singh Says Outlines Appear After Concentrated Study of Bible Text.

The Society of Independent Artists hung two strange pictures yesterday at the society's exhibition on the roof of the Waldorf-Astoria. One was a portrait of St. John, and the other purported to be a study of the head of Christ. Each was painted in a tarry substance on the hard wood of a dining room floor.

Edgar H. Cahill, who was in charge of the exhibition said he had hung them because they had a certain mystic quality which put him in mind of paintings from the catacombs and other specimens of the early Christian period. The eyes of St. John had something striking about them. The other picture was not so clear.

Both are spirit pictures produced in a new way, according to Mrs. Janet Singh of 62 West Sixty-sixth Street, who asserted that each painting had formed itself on the boards in the dining-room floor when she riveted her eyes there and concentrated on a text in the Bible. Mrs. Singh said that she had covered the walls of a room in a public building in this city with religious studies which had formed themselves supernaturally under the power of her concentrated gaze. She refused to tell where this gallery of pictures painted by "the power of mind" is to be found.

Comments on Criticism.

Mrs. Singh, a plump, bustling blonde, stood near her pictures after they had been hung and listened to the comments.

"It is very amusing," she said. "Some people say they are interesting. Others say they are ghastly. Others can't see them at all. It was the same way when I first made them, or rather, when they made themselves on the floor. Some of my friends insisted they were not pictures at all. Others insisted that somebody had painted them before I took the place."

Asked where it was that the pictures had sprung up from the floor under the intentness of her stare, she said:

"I can't tell you that, because the landlord might sue me. You see, I got a saw and sawed them out of the floor and put boards back in their place.

"The first picture appeared one night after I had been looking at one spot for a long time while I thought over a text. The bell rang, interrupting me, and when I went back there was the picture. It was the picture of St. John. The face was dead white, livid and unpleasant. I wanted to darken it, so I stared at it until it took on a yellow-brown hue, which harmonized better with the rest. The second picture painted itself without interruption."

This was several years ago, Mrs. Singh said. She added that she never exhibited the pictures until the impulse came yesterday to take it to the Society of Independent Artists. She had painted mental pictures in evanescent media such as clouds, smoke and the profiles of trees, but her only permanent work of this kind, she said, was to be found at the exhibition and at the public building where she is to pilot a few connoisseurs in the art of spirits today.

Mrs. Singh reproached herself for not having produced or called into being more impromptu sketches, but excused her neglect because of her extremely busy life. She earns her living, she explained, by painting funny faces on balloons, and puts in her leisure time as a Christian Science healer and in teaching vitalistic breathing.

Psyche Is a Chesterton.

Mrs. Singh said that she was ready last night to give a demonstration of her powerful art, but so many persons interrupted that she had no time to concentrate. She did, however, attempt an exhibition of her secondary talents. Part of the wall at the exhibition was discolored by water which had produced intermingling rusty lines on a white background. Mrs. Singh concentrated on this.

Finally she pointed out a figure in flowing robes. This was not a composition of a religious character, according to Mrs. Singh. She could make out hair done up a classic Greek lady's topknot, and a flowing robe. She took it to be a freehand sketch of Psyche. But she was obviously mistaken. A careful examination by an expert in artless compositions of this genre showed beyond any question that the figure on the discolored area was Gilbert K. Chesterton with a monocle and an obsolete type of military cap formerly worn by organ grinders' monkeys.

REJECTS PRESUMPTION OF 'WEAKER VESSEL'

Connecticut Senate Declares It Shall Not Apply to Sudden Death of Married Pair.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 14.—By a bill passed by the Senate today which is to be adopted by the House next week, the deaths of husband and wife in a common tragedy or accident are declared to be simultaneous unless there be clear evidence of the priority of death.

Conecticut, by statute law, thus rescinds the operation of the common law, which has always presumed a woman to be the weaker vessel and therefore the first to expire when she and her husband die from a common cause.

Art Committee Named.

Many well-known women, artists and patrons of art are on the reception committee for the varnishing day in the new Grand Central Art Gallery of the Painters and Sculptor's Association which is to be held Wednesday, March 21. They are: Mrs. Oakes Ames, Miss Cecilia Beaux, Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, Miss Mabel Choate, Miss Anna Fisher, Mrs. Robert W. deForest, Mrs. Daniel Chester French, Mrs. Laura Gardin Fraser, Miss Helen C. Frick, Mrs. Henry J. Fuller, Mrs. Walter S. Gifford, Mrs. Joseph P. Grace, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Miss Felicia Waldo Howell, Miss Malvina Hoffman, Miss Anna Vaughn Hyatt, Mrs. John C. Johansen, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Miss Helen M. Turner, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt. Five thousand invitations have been issued for this first view and in addition to the sculpture the first showing will be of 130 paintings. An entirely new relation between art, the artist and the people, the producer and the buyer is expected to result from this new gallery. The artists contribute their work. Erwin S. Barrie is directing the department of painting and W. Frank Purdy that of sculpture.

SAY THEY LOOTED HOMES FOR A THRILL

TRACED BY STUFFED BIRD

Burglars Had Used It as a Target in Woods—Much Plunder Is Recovered.

Two men, one of them described as a West Point graduate who served overseas as a Major, were arraigned yesterday before Justice of the Peace William R. Sutphen in Somerville, N. J., charged with plundering more than a dozen homes of wealthy persons near Bernardsville. They admitted several of the burglaries, according to the police, and said that they did the jobs for excitement, as they had ample income for their needs from a radio business in New York.

They got more than $50,000 worth of rugs, jewelry, bric-a-brac and other articles, at least half of which have been recovered from their homes in Newark and East Orange. They gave their names as Edgar H. Loveridge Jr., 27, of 170 North Parkway, East Orange, who was said to be the former West Point man, and Mark Powell, a former racing automobile driver, of 44A James Street, Newark.

About March 1 reports of burglaries began to reach Peter V. Stryker, formerly Chief of Police of Bernardsville, who as head of a private police force guards large estates in the Somerset Hills.

Most Victims in Far Hills.

Among the homes which were entered were those of Mrs. Edward W. Balbach, W. S. Lawson, John F. Degner, Clarence B. Mitchell, Charles Moran, Thomas Frothingham, Mrs. William T. Schley, Max Behr, and the clubhouse of the Somerset Hills Fish and Game Club. Most of the homes were in Far Hills.

There was no clue to the burglars except a cartridge shell which was found in the Lawson home. It was for an automatic, steel jacketed bullet. A few days ago Stryker was out on patrol when he heard shots from a clump of woods near Far Hills, and presently an automobile with two young men in it came along. He stopped them, but they answered his questions readily, and one of them, Powell, showed him his automobile license.

Stryker let them go, but followed the car tracks back and found a stuffed bluebird fastened to a tree and riddled with bullets. On the ground were empty shells of the size found in the Lawson home, and it later developed that the bluebird had been stolen from the home of Max Behr.

Traced to His Home.

Powell was traced through his friendship for a girl employed in a department store to the James Street house. In a garage in East Orange fourteen Oriental rugs were found hidden under automobile robes.

When Loveridge and Powell returned to Loveridge's home they were arrested. A search of the house revealed jewelry, tennis rackets, a banjo, bags full of clothing, whisky and five one-gallon jugs of gin. There was also a small arsenal, several automatic pistols, and a pistol with a dagger attached to it. In Powell's house they found a bag which contained $5,000 worth of jewelry and unset diamonds, and in a warehouse which the men told of were found eighteen more rugs. Two automobiles were needed to take all the plunder to Somerville yesterday.

The police say that both Loveridge and Powell admitted looting six of the houses.

£102,000,000 SURPLUS IN THE BRITISH BUDGET

Total for the Fiscal Year May Set a Record, With Hope of Lower Taxes.

LONDON, March 14 (Associated Press).—Today's newspapers hold before their readers the prospect of a record budget surplus at the end of the financial year on March 31.

The statement by the Exchequer of conditions up to March 10 shows a surplus of £102,000,000, made possible by a large reduction in expenditures and a considerable increase in revenue. The income tax has come in well. It is 1 shilling a pound less than in the previous year and it exceeds the estimate by £7,500,000. Several other revenue items show large increases.

It is recalled that last year's budget affordee a surplus of £750,000 and the surprise over the financial position of the Government this year is proportionate to the difference.

Conservative financial editors, however, warn the public that things are not always what they seem and that therefore the people need not flatter themselves that the accumulation of funds will be entirely applicable to relieve the situation. For one thing, the surpluses are being automatically applied to the debt redemption, especially on Treasury bills, £64,000,000 of which have been redeemed since Jan. 1.

It is also emphasized that the surplus for the current year affords only a slight clue to future budget prospects. Nevertheless, the overburdened taxpayer is asked to have hope.

MASCAGNI IN FIGHT WITH FORMER MANAGER

ROME, March 14 (Associated Press).—Pietro Mascagni, the composer, and Walter Mocchi, who was his impresario during Mascagni's last tour of Brazil, came to blows today at a music congress in the Lyric Theatre.

Mascagni during the session renewed a previous accusation of lack of patriotism against Mocchi, saying Mocchi promoted German music in South America with Austrian orchestras. Mocchi retorted with some heat, and Mascagni answered him by reading an extract from a newspaper printed in Sao Paulo, Brazil, in which Mocchi was termed "the Buffalo Bill of musical impresarios abroad."

Mocchi proposed that the congress form a jury of honor to deal with the dispute between himself and Mascagni. He said he regretted the maestro, who was above praise as a composer, but not unimpeachable as a director of orchestras, should bring before the congress his personal disappointments.

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!

Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia.) 35c and 65c, jars and tubes.

SUING WIFE QUOTES HUSBAND'S MOTHER

Embodies in Divorce Complaint a Stinging Letter of Rebuke to Him.

BLAMES LOVE FOR "VAMP"

Broker Is Asked How He Would Feel if Blackguard Treated Daughter as He Treats Helpmate.

A mother's rebuke to her son was contained in a letter which was the principal part of the complaint of Mrs. Grace E. Crawford of Myrtle Avenue, Richmond Hill, in her action, filed yesterday, against Samuel Kirke Crawford, insurance broker, now of Pittsburgh, for divorce in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. Mrs. Crawford asked for alimony of $800 a month pending trial and counsel fees of $3,500. She said that her husband has an income of $12,000 a year.

Mrs. Crawford said she was married to Crawford on April 14, 1910, and that they have one daughter, Amelia, 9 years old. He was guilty of improper conduct with a woman unknown to Mrs. Crawford, according to the complaint.

The letter in the complaint, according to Mrs. Crawford, was the copy of one sent by Crawford's mother to Crawford. The mother sent the copy to her daughter-in-law, it was declared. The letter follows:

"I wonder how you like living for your own sensual pleasure, with no regard for the bleeding hearts and ruined lives of your wife, daughter, mother and others?

"Did you really enjoy the theatre party when your fever-wracked baby was crying for her daddy? I wonder did you ever call for your mother in vain? Will you know real happiness in your new apartment at 81 Irving Place, with its lovely rugs and harmonious surroundings? Might I not suggest you try to persuade your wife to bring your little daughter to share it with you?

"I wonder if a few years hence you will enjoy the love and esteem of your charming daughter, or her contempt and honest abhorrence of such an unnatural father. I wonder how you would love to see this daughter grow up into a replica of this vamp with whom you have been enamored. If some vile man, as great a blackguard as you have been, should abuse her as you have her mother—will you in your older years resent it? I wonder.

"We might all have been so happy in a real true way but for this devil, which again has its clutches on my baby. Are you going to be strong enough to loose its clutches or must we really go to hell to escape it? I wonder—I wonder until I am almost crazy.

"Don't you really care for the things which all men hold dear? Can the devil's clutches be so strong that it can crush out all semblance of a real man?"

LIFE ALLWORK, NO PLAY, GIRL TRIES TO END IT

Takes Poison in Subway Train, but Is Probably Saved by Policeman's First Aid Treatment.

Because she had found life all work with no time for pleasure, Lilian Feinstein, 18 years old, of 559 Stone Avenue, Bronxville, N. Y., attempted suicide in a northbound Bronx Park subway train last night by swallowing iodine, according to the police. She was taken to Harlem Hospital after she had fallen to the station platform, upon leaving the train at 125th Street and Lenox Avenue. At the hospital physicians said her condition was serious.

The girl told passengers, who gathered around here on the station platform, the police said, that she had swallowed three ounces of iodine as the train was leaving the Ninety-sixth Street station. Patrolman Louis Bengston, after telephoning for an ambulance, got some eggs, milk and starch at a restaurant and administered first aid treatment. Dr. Arthur, who removed the girl to Harlem Hospital, said the patrolman had probably saved the girl's life.

A note addressed to the girl's mother was found in her handbag, the police said. It read in part:

"I find all my life is work and there is no time for pleasure. Every one seems against me and I do not care to live."

The girl said she came to this city about three months ago and was employed by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cottesman of 106 Northern Avenue, as a nursemaid.

MRS. SALUDES GETS 20-YEAR TO LIFE TERM

Slayer of Martelliere Calm When Sentenced—Later She Again Threatens Suicide.

Mrs. Paulette A. Saludes, convicted of second degree murder a week ago for shooting and killing Oscar Martelliere, an insurance broker, Oct. 16, was taken before Judge Koenig in General Sessions yesterday and sentenced to from twenty years to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Saludes received the sentence with defiance, but avoided a scene in the court. Before she was taken across the Bridge of Sighs she refused to dress, complaining that she was too ill to be arraigned. Several matrons, under Mrs. McConnell, chief matron, forced on her clothing, however, and, escorted by three Deputy Sheriffs and Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald, she started for the court without further protest.

When the sentence was imposed Mrs. McDonald was at one side of the defendant and a court attendant at the other, with Deputy Sheriffs George Levy, Frank Libertino and Thomas Burke behind her, to prevent any attempt at a scene. These precautions were taken on instructions from Sheriff Percival Nagle because of the three attempts Mrs. Saludes had made on her life shortly after the jury found her guilty.

GETS JOHN WESLEY'S WILL.

Wesleyan University Receives Document Dated April 27, 1768.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., March 14.—A will made by John Wesley, dated April 27, 1768, when the great clergyman was 65 years old, has been presented to Wesleyan University by Acting President Stephen H. Olin. While the will is not the final testament of Wesley, it is probably the only one written in the methodical handwriting of the testator.

Following is the description of the will as advertised for sale by a firm of manuscript dealers in London:

DRASTIC REVISIONS IN PSALTER URGED

British Committee Named In 1920 Makes Many Recommendations.

CENSORS HYMNS OF HATE

Revisers Object to "Hell" and Have Twice Deleted It—Report Will Be Considered on April 25.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 14.—The committee presided over by Bishop Ryle, Dean of Westminster, appointed by the National Assembly in 1920 to "consider and report upon a revision of the Psalms and their use in public worship," proposes some drastic alterations and omissions.

Public opinion both inside and outside the Church has long been agreed that Psalms breathing forth a revengeful or denunciatory spirit were not divinely inspired. Therefore in the revised Psalter it is proposed to omit the following passages: Psalms xiv., verses 5 to 7; Psalm lv., verse 16; the whole of Psalm lviii.; Psalm lxviii., verses 21 to 23; Psalm lxix., eress 23 to 29; Psalm cix., verses 5 to 19; Psalm cxxxvii., verses 7 to 9; Psalm cxl., verses 9 and 10; Psalm cxli., verses 7 and 8.

For the omission of verses 7 and 8 of Psalm cxli. the revisers put forward the reason that "owing to the desperate condition of the text" no translation seems to give any satisfactory sense. It is also proposed to make alterations in 346 other verses of the Psalms.

No such drastic scheme has ever been put forward before. Nevertheless, the committee reports that it has removed only some of the conspicuous blemishes in the translation, and that in the opinion of some of its members "not nearly enough alteration will appear to have been made in order to bring the Psalter up to the requirements of modern scholarship."

Apart from the verses which the committee proposes to cut out altogether, the most striking alteration is a reversion to the Psalmist's use of "peoples" instead of "people" and the substitution of the word "nations" for "heathen" in passages where the context seems to justify the change. For instance, the first verse of Psalm ii. becomes: "Why do the nations so furiously rage together, and why do the peoples imagine a vain thing?" and in Psalm xlvi., verse 6, "The heathen make much ado" becomes "the nations make much ado"; and in Psalm lxxii., verse 17, "And all the heathen shall praise Him" is changed to "And all the nations shall praise Him."

The alterations in many cases undoubtedly make the verses intelligible instead of being obscure. A typical example is in Psalm v., verses 5 and 6. Instead of "For thou hatest all them that work vanity, thou shalt destroy them that speak leasing," the new version reads: "For thou hatest all them that work iniquity, thou shalt destroy them that speak lies."

Psalm xxxviii., verse 17, "And I truly am set in the plague," becomes "For I truly am ready to halt," while Psalm xlii., verses 9, 11, "One deep calleth another because of the noise of the water pipes," becomes "One deep calleth another because of the noise of the water floods."

The revisers appear to have a very strong objection to the word "hell." They have altered Psalm lv., verse 16, from "Let death come hastily upon them, and let them go down quick into hell," to "Let death come hastily upon them, and let them go down alive into the pit," while Psalm lxxxviii, verse 2, "For my soul is full of trouble, and my life draweth nigh unto hell," becomes "For my life is full of trouble, and my life draweth nigh unto the grave."

A typical instance of clearing away obscurity is in Psalm lxx., verse 2. The revised verse reads: "In the time of my trouble I sought the Lord. I stretched forth my hands unto Him and ceased not in the night season."

Here and there even famous verses find amendment. For instance, Psalm lxviii, 11, "The Lord gave the word: great was the company of the preachers," has been changed to "The Lord gave the word: great was the company of women that bare the tidings."

Another equally notable example is Psalm xcv., 8: "Today if ye will hear His voice, harden not your hearts: as in the provocation, and as in the day of temptation in the wilderness." This has been made to read: "Today, oh, that ye would hear his voice! harden not your hearts as in the provocation and as in the day of temptation in the wilderness."

In the Hebrew the words "Praise ye the Lord" appear at the end of Psalms cv., cvi., cxiii., cxxxv. and cxlviii., and it is recommended that the phrase be restored.

The full text of the proposals will be in the hands of the members of the House of the Laity tomorrow. They will consider it on April 25.

March 9 it is stated that there grew up in the bureau a triumvirate, composed of Dr. Hugh Scott, executive officer; Charles F. Cramer, chief counsel, and Colonel Robert U. Patterson, head of the medical division.

"They were," said the article, "reputed to be the powers behind the throne."

"Cramer is a lawyer and an old friend of Forbes," the article continued. "Contracts for construction purchases and leases came within his jurisdiction."

It is reported further by the Legion weekly that Dr. Scott became dissatisfied with the way things were going and reported so to Colonel Forbes and later to President Harding and when Colonel Forbes heard of the latter incident, Dr. Scott was transferred to Muskogee, Okla.

The article goes on to discuss protests which were made by Surgeon General Cummings of the Public Health Service, against the sale of certain surplus supplies by the bureau at Perryville, Md., where a large depot of the Veterans' Bureau is located. Materials were being sold to Thompson & Kelley, brokers, of Boston, it was said, at a very low value at a time when the Public Health Service was obliged to go out into the market and buy such supplies at current prices. An executive order finally was issued by the President, putting a stop to the sales pending an investigation.

A representative of the weekly was sent to see Mr. Cramer and it is said that Mr. Cramer denied any previously existing partnership with Clifton but stated that when he first came to Washington he had no office and received his mail at Clifton's office. Mr. Cramer also was quoted as saying that he came here to help out his friend Forbes, and also that he bought President Harding a house for $60,000.

Find Nothing to "His Discredit."

WASHINGTON, March 14 (Associated Press).—The suicide today of Charles F. Cramer, who resigned as general counsel of the Veterans' Bureau at the height of congressional attacks on that organization, was attributed tonight by his associates to worry over criticism aimed at him, accentuated by the ill-health of his father and by financial reverses.

William Wolf Smith, who succeeded Mr. Cramer, said his inquiry into the affairs of the legal division of the bureau had thus far disclosed "nothing to Mr. Cramer's discredit." Investigation by the police revealed no motive for the suicide, but they said they had learned that Mr. Cramer had been greatly depressed since severing his connection with the veterans' organization, which occurred just prior to the resignation of Dr. Forbes a few weeks ago.

Hush-A-Phone promotes office efficiency as well as privacy of speech. Persons standing nearby cannot hear a word you say.

Other workers are not disturbed, because Hush-A-Phone does not permit your voice to escape into the room. Outside noises are kept out of the transmitter, insuring at all times a clear wire.

What one prominent executive writes:

"We ordered several of your Hush-A-Phones to be used in our Purchasing Department, where the purchasing agents' desks are very close, and we had considerable bother with a noisy office. The Hush-A-Phones have quieted the office down to a wonderful extent and are accomplishing what I had them purchased for."

ICE GORGE UNMOVED BY BOMBS FROM AIR

ONLY FOUR LAND ON THE ICE

Special to The New York Times.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., March 14.—If four bombs dropped from a height of 1,500 feet make four holes in an ice gorge three miles long, how many bombs will be needed to loosen it all? This is the question anxiously asked here after the bombing of the ice gorge in the Delaware this noon by two airplanes from the Aberdeen (Md.) proving grounds.

There were several slips in the program. Instead of three airplanes coming with twelve 300-pound bombs, only two arrived, and they had but seven. Only four of these bombs landed with geyser effect in the ice gorge and made holes thirty feet in diameter. The holes were so far apart that the gorge did not feel the effect. Three bombs landed on the shore, one nearly hitting the farmhouse of John Teller, which is 300 feet from the river.

Lieutenant Phillips Melville, who came in an airplane Sunday to arrange for sending the bombers, planned to go to escort them here, but could not take off on account of the soft snow. At his third attempt the airplane took a somersault and turned its toes up and is there yet. The propeller was fractured and the left wing struts broken.

One of the Government machines, with Lieutenants Blakely and Shankle, landed near Melville's, and later the men went with Mayor Rutan to the gorge. They saw the holes and estimated that about 400 bombs might break up the ice. Mayor Rutan has about decided to have dynamite.

Three airplanes left Aberdeen this morning, but at Pottstown, Pa., one of them, with Majo John T. Pirie and Lieutenant W. Graybeale, pilot, had to make a forced landing on account of engine trouble.

Not finding Melville when they neared this city, Captain Hough, in charge of the squadron, made a few circuits of the city and the gorge and started dropping the bombs.

Smoke from fires along the shore was to direct the placing of the bombs, but one bombarder tried to drop them while flying across the river, and this was nearly the wiping out of a squad of movie men and reporters.

The gorge is tonight as solid as ever, and extends almost as far up the river as on Monday, with many cellars under water from the backing up of sewers and seeping of water under the dike.

WALDORF BIRTHDAY MADE A FETE FOR OSCAR

Entertained at Dinner With 168 Other Oldtimers on Hotel's 30th Anniversary.

Oscar had a new experience yesterday. They gave him a dinner and instead of having to hover in the background and listen to speeches, he made one himself.

It was the thirtieth birthday party of the Waldorf-Astoria. During that period Oscar has prepared, planned and supervised so many dinners that if they were placed, end to end, from soup to nuts, they would be almost as long as a chairman's introductory remarks. In that time Oscar has heard all sorts of orators discuss everything. But yesterday was different. A committee of Fifth Avenue merchants, with L. M. Boomer, proprietor of the Waldorf, gave Oscar a chance to discover what it felt like to be served rather than to serve.

Scattered at tables, each with a sign indicating the diners' years with the Waldorf, were 168 other old-timers of the hostelry.

Robert Grier Cooke, President of the Fifth Avenue Association; Colonel Michael Friedsam, President of B. Altman & Co.; Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company; Fred Muschenheim of the Hotel Astor, Edward A. Tierney, President of the American Hotel Men's Association, and others made speeches.

There were messages by the hundreds for the hotel and stacks for Oscar. One came on behalf of King Albert and his Queen. Ambassador Herrick cabled from Paris. Secretary of State Hughes wired, from faraway Tokio came a cablegram from Baron Okura, and other messages arrived from General Pershing, Lord Leverhulme, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, David Belasco, George C. Boldt Jr., Mayor Hylan and Senator Arthur Capper.

In a thumbnail interview Oscar, less generally known as Oscar Tschirky, compared the dinners of the past with those of today, saying that now they averaged six courses; whereas they used to run to nine and eleven.

To his hurried interview, Oscar added this speech:

"Many of us have been here twenty-five years, and that is quite a mark in an institution like ours, because the hotel business is so different from any other. We always want to be on the move. The nature of our work compels us to see people on the move, checking in and checking out, going here and going there. We see the people who are having a good time and so we move on to see the world.

"Thus when you find people still in the same place after twenty-five years, you find people of wonderful character, who are the real workers of an institution like ours. My code of success has been 'honesty, hard work and truth to your employer.' That, I am sure, has been the motto of us all."

LIAM LYNCH ORDERS FOES SHOT AT SIGHT

Document Read in Dublin Court Decrees Death of All Free State Leaders.

FOUR REBELS ARE EXECUTED

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, March 14.—A document signed by Liam Lynch, republican Chief of Staff, whose signature was sworn to by a Colonel of the National Army, came as a thunderbolt at the inquest here this afternoon on Hugh Haughton, Dublin tramway carpenter, who was shot Monday evening near his home. A witness testified that the deceased approached her exclaiming that he was shot by an army officer. His brother, who is a Sergeant in the Transport Department, testified to expressing surprise on Monday night when told at Portobello Barracks that the dead man was an irregular. An army commandant swore to being ordered by two men to "Hands up!" and to pulling out a revolver and firing, hitting Haughton. He himself was a member of the old Irish Republican Army.

Counsel for the State produced a captured document signed "Liam Lynch" and also examined the Colonel as to the signature.

The document set forth that all members of the Free State Government and Parliament who voted for the "murder bill" were to be shot at sight, houses of members and supporters of the Government known to support the same bill to be destroyed, all Free State army officers approving the bill and aggressive and active against the republican forces to be shot at sight, also all ex-British army officers and men who joined the Free State army since Dec. 6, 1921.

The solicitor for the next of kin, addressing the jury, said the document came as a thunderbolt, altering the whole aspect of the case. He added that he was not in a position to make any real case, and the jury returned a verdict of death from injuries by an army officer in self-defense.

Gives Out de Valera Letters.

The Government Publicity Department issued this evening the texts of captured letters from Eamon de Valera to supporters in America. One was to Joseph McGarrity, 3,714 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, and the other to Deputy J. J. O'Kelly. In the first he charges his opponents here with "villainous misrepresentation" and says there is no doubt there is a bit of the scoundrel in Kevin O'Higgins. He admits some of his own good men falling by the wayside, but proceeds:

"There can be no turning back for us now. One big effort from our friends everywhere and I think we would finally smash the Free State. Our people have a hard time and suffering before them, and we have, of course, to face the possibility of the British forces coming back and taking up the fight where the others lay it down. But God is good."

He expresses anxiety about his chief representative in America, and asks McGarrity to watch to prevent him being rushed into foolish adventures or being made the instrument of the designs of cliques.

These letters were signed Feb. 5, and de Valera proceeds:

"The critical moment has just arrived here. Both sides are strained to the utmost, but I think we can bear it better than our opponents, though this moment we received the biggest blow since we started. If this war were finished, Ireland would not have the heart to fight another war for generations, so we must see it through."

Laments Discord Among Friends Here.

In his leter to O'Kelly he says the latter's letter of Jan. 12 made heart-breaking reading and asserts it should have been possible to secure harmonious working. He proceeds that Ginnell was sent out to safeguard Republican interests in Washington and New York and also to get in touch with other countries in the Western Hemisphere. Ginnell's credentials, he says, had necessarily to be of a sweeping character though not intended for republication. "If Father O'Flanagan and yourself," he wrote, "consent to go to Australia it ought to relieve the American situation." The letter then deals with a loan, in connection with which de Valera says no arrangements have yet been made.

"If we can raise revenue here at all," he adds, "we shall not attempt it."

Dealing with money questions the letter contains the following:

"I need scarcely tell you how great our own needs are in that respect. The army is suffering intensely and its dependents also. We can only afford Ginnell his barest needs."

He repeats a reference to the critical stage of the situation and the necessity of one big effort to smash his opponents, adding: "It must be death or glory for us now." In a postscript he intimates his endeavor to arrange with The Daily Mail for the publication of the negotiations proceedings and in still another letter he advises caution in America. He had heard very disquieting tales from that country, he declares.

Four Republicans Are Executed.

LONDON, March 14 (Associated Press).—Four men were executed this morning at Drumboe Castle, Stranolar, County Donegal, says a Central News dispatch from Dublin this afternoon.

DUBLIN, March 14 (Associated Press).—The resumption of executions by the Free State Government is in pursuance of the policy announced when amnesty was offered. During the amnesty period all executions were suspended and the presumption was that all refusing amnesty were irreconcilables and must take the consequences.

The executions which have since taken place are for the most part not concerned with old offenses, but are punishments for offenses subsequent to the amnesty offer. A notable feature has been their promptitude, some of them following within a few days of the offense.

The executions have been mostly confined to those who had made direct attacks on the Government, but some were inflicted for robbery of banks, which has been frequent. The total number of executions to date is sixty-seven.

The Free State Government has made public captured letters from Eamon De Valera addressed to Joe McGarity of Philadelphia, and J. J. Kelly and Laurence Ginnell, members of De Valera's party, who are now in the United States. The letters were written last February.

The purport of the letters is that a critical stage had arrived when more money was necessary to enable the irregulars to smash their opponents. The government's comment on the letters is that they show the irregulars are divided and that their campaign for financial aid in Ireland has failed.

ROW OVER TEACHERS' APPEAL BOARD BILL

Somers and Stern Have a Heated Debate, but Commissioners Approve Measure.

ETTINGER LOSES HIS FIGHT

Recommendations for Construction of Eleven New Schools Are Adopted.

In spite of vigorous criticisms from Supt. of Schools William L. Ettinger, the Board of Education at its stated meeting yesterday at the Education Building voted, with only one dissenter, to approve the Downing bill, now in the State Senate, appointing a board of appeals over the Board of Examiners. Commissioners Arthur S. Somers, supporting Dr. Ettinger, and M. Samuel Stern, spokesman for the bill, shouted angrily at each other in the controversy over the measure.

"I'll wager that every person who fails to pass a teacher's examination will appeal to this proposed board," declared Mr. Somers. "It will be simply a second board of examiners, and every failure, no matter with how low a grade, will be dumped into its lap on appeal. The present Board of Examiners is doing perfectly well, and this measure is extremely unwise and impractical."

Dr. Ettinger pointed out that the right of appeal—to the State Commissioner of Education—already existed, and that the Downing measure would merely duplicate the work of the examiners and their assistants.

Mr. Stern declared that many assistants were marking examination papers who never had passed a civil service examination themselves, and said that the Board of Education ought to have an appeal body within its own organization in this city. He said that he "admired" the present examiners, but disapproved of their methods and qualifications.

"I'm tired of sitting here and hearing a member of this board express love for the Board of Examiners and then heap contempt upon it," exclaimed Mr. Somers. "To end this tyrannical debate I move that this bill be disapproved."

On a roll-call every member of the board except Mr. Somers voted to approve the bill, on the motion of Commissioner John E. Bowe. The Superintendent of Schools is not entitled to a vote in the board meetings.

The board disapproved a bill of Senator Straus empowering the Board of Aldermen to fix the salaries of all city employes. A pending Assembly bill enabling the substitute for an absent employe to receive the latter's salary for the period of substitution also was disapproved.

Among other recommendations of the Committee on Buildings and Sites which were approved were those for the construction of the following buildings: Public School 67, the Bronx, estimated cost $1,213,000; Public School 100, Brooklyn, estimated cost $815,000; Public School 70, the Bronx, estimated cost $1,300,000, and Public Schools 210 and 214, Brooklyn; 116, Queens; 75, 77, 80 and 82, the Bronx, and 41, Richmond.

HELD FOR McCABE'S DEATH.

Gilbert Collins, Who Abandoned His Car, Pleads Not Guilty.

Gilbert Collins, 27, of 1,311 Newkirk Avenue, Brooklyn, was arraigned in the Flatbush Police Court yesterday before Magistrate James Golden, charged with being the operator of the automobile which ran down and killed John F. McCabe of 906 Newkirk Avenue, day foreman of the proofroom of THE NEW YORK TIMES. Collins pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000 bail for examination next Thursday.

Detective Jeremiah Murphy of the Parkville Precinct, who arrested Collins Tuesday night, made the complaint against him. Murphy found an automobile owned by Collins a few blocks from the scene of the accident. The machine had been abandoned. Collins admitted the ownership of the car and stated that he left it after he had been in collision with a mail truck. He denied that it was his car that struck Mr. McCabe.

MARCH 24 IS CIRCUS DAY.

"Greatest Show Ever" in Prospect as Garden Prepares for Opening.

That hardy annual, the circus, which gives better information as to the ending of Winter than the groundhog, is about to bob up again from its Winter burrow in Bridgeport, Conn. March 24 will find it stowed away in Madison Square Garden and open for business, twice a day, rain or shine—buy your peanuts at the front door, please. The Barnum and Bailey-Ringling posters are already beginning to brighten up the corners, and there isn't a caravan or wagon in the whole troupe that hasn't been painted all the glittering colors that help make a circus what the press agents call dazzling. There will also be the vans full of tigers and lions and elephants and other animals. Mabel Stark has trained a tiger to wrestle with her, and some of the tigers have been trained to ride elephants.

Half a dozen small elephants have been added to the circus this year, and George Denman says his "rubber mules" have more tricks than ever before. Lillian Leitzell and her rope will be there and a lot of new riding and trapeze acts.

DEFENDS SCHOOL JANITORS.

Charges at Albany Ridiculous, Says Education Board Official.

"Scurrilous and ridiculous" were the terms applied yesterday by R. W. Rodman, in charge of plant operation under the Board of Education, to charges made before the Assembly Cities Committee at Albany last Tuesday that school janitors were hiring their assistants from among ex-inmates of Welfare Island institutions, who tried to pervert the morals of school children.

President George J. Ryan questioned Mr. Rodman, who told him that no such facts as those alleged had ever been brought to his attention. John J. Breen, President of the Custodians' and Engineers' Association of the Public Schools of Greater New York, said that his organization might ask the Board of Education to sift the charges, made by Frank Lennon of the New York Steam Engineers, with the view of establishing their falsity.

No Mayor Yesterday, Actual or Acting.

New York City was without a Mayor or an Acting Mayor yesterday. This came about because Aldermanic President Murray Hulbert and William T. Collins, Vice President of the board, both of whom are empowered by the Charter to act as substitutes for the Mayor, went to Albany with him to attend the hearings on the Walker-Donahue traction bill. They returned to the city last night.

LA FOLLETTE WRONG, IS TEAGLE'S REPLY

RAPS COMMITTEE REPORT

Present Price to Garages in Havana Only 33½ Cents a Gallon, Official Asserts.

No single material finding in the La Follette report relating to the Standard Oil Company is supported by the evidence or is in fact true, according to a statement issued yesterday by W. C. Teagle, President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Mr. Teagle contented himself with a general denial in reference to other charges and dealt specifically with alleged inaccuracies regarding the Cuban oil situation in the statement issued by Senator La Follette on Monday. In his reply Mr. Teagle said:

"Like Senator La Follette, we have no present intention of engaging in a newspaper controversy regarding his subcommittee's report on the petroleum industry—but that is the single point upon which we are in accord with him.

"We are impelled, however, to comment upon his discussion of the situation in Cuba, because he refers to that as demonstrating the probability of dollar gasoline in the United States, and for the further reason that his handling of this subject is fairly illustrative of the method pursued by his subcommittee in seeking information on any particular matter and in reaching a conclusion from the evidence adduced.

Two Witnesses Questioned.

"Two witnesses only were questioned regarding gasoline prices in Cuba and both disclaimed any positive knowledge on the subject. One said that his company did practically no business there, but gave it as his recollection that the price was 'around 60 cents per gallon in cases and in drums,' and that the Cuban import duty was 17 cents per gallon. Data subsequently furnished by the second witness showed net prices of his company, in cases, to range from about 46 cents per gallon at Havana to 55 cents per gallon at remote points, and, in drums, from 35 cents at Havana to 46 cents at remote points.

"It further appeared that the only refinery in Cuba is owned by the West India Oil Refining Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey), although there have been several experimental plants erected there by other but never placed in practical operation.

"Not a witness was called who even assumed to have any knowledge of Cuba and there is no word in the record to justify the conclusion that no one other than the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) had had 'the temerity to attempt to establish a refinery there.' The only testimony as to prices dealt with those in effect at the time for case or drum deliveries, and there is nothing to indicate the range of prices over a period or otherwise to support Senator La Follette's statement that 'the price of gasoline in Cuba seems to be moving rapidly in the direction of the dollar price.'

Gives Prices in Cuba.

"The facts in regard to Cuba are these:

"Cuban import duties and port charges were levied for revenue and amount, on gasoline in bulk, to 13.21 cents per gallon and on the grade of crude oil handled by the West India Oil Refining Company to the practical equivalent, gasoline yield considered, of 5.75 cents per gallon.

"Of the gasoline marketed in the island approximately 70 per cent. is sold in Havana, and almost all of this is tank wagon business, the sales of gasoline in cases and drums being negligible.

"The West India Oil Refining Company's price today at Havana for tank wagon delivery to garages is 38½ cents per gallon. The garage price to the consumer, including a 1 per cent. sales tax, is 39½ cents to 39 cents per gallon. The tank wagon sales at other points in the island are at the Havana price, with freight added.

"These prices are substantially lower than the export prices at American ports, plus freight, duty and other charges, so that the Cuban consumers benefit directly from the operation of the local refinery.

"Industrial alcohol is in very substantial competition with gasoline in Cuba for motor fuel purposes, the sales of alcohol in 1922 amounting to 130,000 barrels, or about half the quantity of gasoline sold.

"In its raw and undehydrated state, with probably not to exceed two-thirds of the efficiency of gasoline, this alcohol is delivered to garages at 19 to 20 cents a gallon, and in turn sold to the consumers at 21 to 22 cents per gallon, including a sales tax of 1 per cent.

"As to other matters dealt with in the sub-committee's report or in Senator La Follette's statement, we content ourselves for the time being by reiterating our declaration that no single material finding relating to the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) is supported by the evidence or is in fact true."

INSPECTOR UNDERHILL MAY QUIT POLICE POST

Official Active in Greenwich Village Raids Reported Ready to Retire.

A persistent report was in circulation at Police Headquarters yesterday that Police Inspector Thomas V. Underhill, in command of the Second Inspection District, which includes Greenwich Village, would retire, after twenty-six years' service, when he returns from his vacation of twenty-seven days. The Inspector, who has not been in good health recently, left for his vacation a week ago.

Inspector Underhill has been especially active in conducting raids against liquor law violators in Greenwich Village. The territory taken in by his district stretches from the Battery to Forty-second Street on the west side.

The Inspector is married and lives at 207 West Fifty-first Street. He was appointed a patrolman in 1897, became a Sergeant in 1900, a Lieutenant in 1907 and a Captain in 1915. On Dec. 4, 1917, he was appointed Inspector by the then Police Commissioner Arthur Woods. During the war he was in command of the Division of National Defense of the Police Department.

BOY DENIES SCHOOL FIRES.

Honor Pupil Says Threatened Demotion Forced Him to Admission.

Jacob Schwartz, 9-year-old honor pupil in Public School 23, Tinton Avenue and 166th Street, the Bronx, who confessed Tuesday to having started two fires in the school on Monday, recanted yesterday at his home at 939 East 169th Street.

"The men who were questioning me said I would be put back in school if I didn't admit throwing the matches into the closet and the bookcase," Jacob said. "If I was demoted I wouldn't beat my sister Frieda's record, and she was graduated when she was 12½ years old. I honestly didn't start the fire and don't know anything about it."

He will be arraigned today in the Bronx Children's Court.

JAPANESE REFUSE TO END 1915 TREATY

BUT PROFESS FRIENDSHIP

Note Declares There Is "Absolutely Nothing" Susceptible of "Further Modification."

TOKIO, March 14 (Associated Press).—Japan today rejected China's proposal to abrogate the Sino-Japanese treaty of 1915, which contained the noted "twenty-one demands" and extended for fifty years the Japanese leases on the Kwangtung Peninsula, including Dairy and Port Arthur.

PEKING, March 14 (Associated Press).—In reply to the Chinese note seeking abrogation of the Sino-Japanese treaty of 1915, with its fulfillment of the "twenty-one demands," Japan has declined courteously to entertain a proposal to discuss the treaty.

WASHINGTON, March 14 (Associated Press).—China's latest move to abrogate the famous "twenty-one demands" treaty of 1915 has led Japan to inform her that such a proposal is contrary to accepted international practices and will "fail to contribute to the advancement of friendship between our two countries."

In a note delivered to the Chinese Chargé at Tokio and made public at the Japanese Embassy here, the Japanese Foreign Office not only flatly rejected the proposal that the treaty and its kindred agreements be abrogated, but declared it could see "absolutely nothing" in them which is "susceptible of further modification."

"I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 10th, inst., in which, under instructions from Peking, you were good enough to communicate to me the decision of your Government respecting the abrogation of the Sino-Japanese treaties and the notes of May 25, 1915. After quoting the statement of your Government, published immediately on the conclusion of said treaties, the statement of the Chinese delegation at the Paris Peace Conference and the contentions advanced by the Chinese delegation at the Washington conference, your note concludes that said treaties and notes should now be canceled in toto, except those stipulations and reservations contained therein, which have already been adjusted or which the Japanese Government has already renounced or withdrawn.

"The Japanese Government are unable to conceal from themselves the sense of surprise and regret at the communication under acknowledgment. The treaties concluded and notes exchanged in 1915 were formally signed by Japanese and Chinese representatives, who were properly invested with full powers by their respective Governments, the treaties having been, moreover, duly ratified by the respective heads of state. The views of the Japanese Government on canceling these agreements were declared by their delegates at the Washing Conference.

"The attempt on the part of your Government to abrogate of its own accord treaties and notes which are perfectly valid will not only fail to contribute to the advancement of friendship between our two countries, but should be regarded as contrary to the accepted principles of international intercourse. This Government, accordingly, cannot in any way lend themselves to the line of action contemplated by your Government.

"The Japanese Government have always had near their heart the promotion of cordial relations between our two countries, and they trust you will agree that their solicitude in that direction has been abundantly proved in their dealings with the Chinese Government by repeated acts of good-will. Furthermore, the Japanese Government have recently concluded new arrangements with China on certain matters stipulated in said treaties and notes, and have also declared their decision to waive rights secured to them under various other clauses in the instruments in question, and to withdraw certain reservations made in them.

"In this situation they feel compelled to declare that they find absolutely nothing in the treaties and notes which is susceptible of further modification. It, therefore, seems to the Japanese Government that there is no occasion for entertaining in any way the proposals of your Government respecting the decision of questions incidental to the restoration of Port Arthur and Dairen, or consequent upon the abrogation of said treaties."

CLEARS TOD IN ALIEN CASE.

Control Ceases When Immigrant Is Delivered to Ship, Court Holds.

An opinion filed on Tuesday by Federal Judge Learned Hand fixed responsibility on the Commissioner of Immigration in the matter of producing in court, on a writ of habeas corpus, aliens who had been ordered deported by the Board of Special Inquiry. The opinion was given in the case of Armenians who had been ordered returned because the quota from their country had been exhausted. A writ was issued, but before it had been served on Immigration Commissioner Tod the aliens were on board the steamship Madonna, which was passing out to sea.

Judge Hand holds that the only person against whom a writ would have been effective was the master of the ship, and that no notice was served on him.

The opinion states that it is the duty of the Immigration Commissioner to obey the decisions of the Board of Special Inquiry, and that his control over immigrants ceases when he has delivered them to the master of a ship, and that "he has no more power to recall the alien than a marshal who had delivered a prisoner to a warden."

INSTALLS RADIO IN PRISON.

Pittsburgh Warden Furnishes Nightly Concerts to Humanize Jail Life.

PITTSBURGH, March 14.—Prison bars no longer prevent inmates of the Allegheny County Jail from enjoying the entertainments of the outside world. Warden Edward Lewis has installed a radio set by which they nightly take "radio trips" to the various broadcasting stations and "listen in" at the various programs. The innovation was introduced, Warden Lewis said, as a step in his policy to "humanize" prison life.

"I am simply trying to make the place human," he declared. "We have provided good sanitary conditions and I believe the radio will help the moral end of jail life."

DUKE OF ESSEX ST. ON FIRE.

Levy Loses Trousers, but He Has 100 Other Pairs on File.

Joe Levy, lawyer, of 51 Second Street, better known as the "Duke of Essex Street," lost a pair of trousers yesterday as a result of a fire which started mysteriously in his pocket while he was waiting for a case to be called in Essex Market Court. The Duke said it was only a temporary inconvenience as he keeps a hundred pairs on file at his home, 596 Riverside Drive.

When the fire was discovered the Duke rushed from the court room to the corridor where the flames were extinguished with a bucket of water, but not before the trousers had been irreparably damaged. Putting on his overcoat he hurried to his office next door and sent Oscar Katz, his clerk, in a taxi to his home for another suit.

Latest Sugar News from Cuba

World's Production Records are being broken with

Fulton Sugar Mills

Fulton Double and Triple Crushers and Fulton Grooving

The Centrals of the Manati Sugar Company, the American Sugar Refining Company, The Atlantic Fruit Company, and the Centrals Cespedes and Narcisa have this season broken the 24-hour world's grinding records. These records range from 3,000 tons to 3,884 tons ground in a 24-hour run, for each single tandem. The Cuban American Sugar Company, at Central Delicias, using Fulton equipment exclusively, holds the world's grinding record made during the 1921-22 season, with 1,046,493 bags produced.

Fulton Double and Triple Crushers Fulton Mills and Fulton Grooving

Vital Facts of Inestimable Value to all Sugar Producers

Greatest tonnage and highest extraction in the shortest possible time and at lowest cost can be obtained only by the use of FULTON CRUSHING equipment. FULTON DOUBLE and TRIPLE CRUSHERS, with FULTON GROOVING, are covered by patents, owned and controlled exclusively by the Fulton Iron Works Company. The Company is prepared to protect its rights to the fullest extent against any and all infringements.

Highest Extraction Synonymous with Fulton

Due to the combination of FULTON DOUBLE and TRIPLE CRUSHERS and FULTON GROOVING, Fulton Mills maintain a greater percentage of juice extraction than is possible with any other equipment. These world's grinding records are made with high extraction, the normal juice ranging from 81% to 83.2%. These are world's record extractions for the tonnage ground.

Fulton—The Largest Manufacturer of Sugar Mill Machinery

FULTON—always a basic producing element in the industry—is the largest manufacturer of sugar mill machinery in the world. The Company builds the complete grinding equipment of a plantation, from car tip to delivery of bagasse to the boilers and juice to the sugar house. The whole development of sugar mills to the present-day high state of efficiency is the product of FULTON engineers. Whenever improvements are made in sugar mill equipment, it is FULTON that makes them.

Dependability, with World-Wide Distribution and Service

With FULTON EQUIPMENT continuous, hard, uniform running, season after season, without costly forced shut-downs, is a certainty. Superior operating efficiency is assured against interruption by a matchless world-wide service and extensive distribution, with engineers and executives in every important cane center of the globe.

The Accepted Standard of the Entire Industry

To owners and operators of cane sugar properties FULTON offers a grinding and extraction process of proved supremacy, supplemented by the highest developments in cane mill machinery. In fact, FULTON equipment plays an important part in plantation valuations, as evidenced by the purchase of Central Cunagua by the American Sugar Refining Company, which was largely influenced by the excellence of its mills and auxiliaries.

Fulton Plant Location Exceptionally Favorable for Manufacturing and Shipping

St. Louis is situated within easy reach of vast supplies of all basic raw materials, and centers in the most tranquil labor market in the country. With equal access to all of the great American ports, the Fulton Iron Works Company also enjoys independence of freight embargoes, strikes or tie-ups in any one section.

HEFLIN PREVENTED THANKS TO COOLIDGE

Alabaman Told Colleagues He Did Not Regard Vice President as "Fair" or "Courteous."

CHARGED "RAPE" OF RULES

Refused to Leave Senate Chamber to Allow the Resolution to Be Presented.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—When the Senate adjourned on March 4 the fact that the customary resolution of thanks to the Vice President for his "fairness and courtesy" in presiding over the Senate was not even introduced caused much comment on both sides of the Chamber. The custom has always been for a representative of the minority to offer such a resolution, its adoption following as a matter of course.

Until today the reason for the slight to Vice President Coolidge had been carefully kept secret, but it is now known that the Senator who blocked all efforts to vote a resolution of thanks to the Vice President was Heflin of Alabama, who said today he refused to agree to the resolution because of what he termed Mr. Coolidge's "rape of the Senate rules." He said today:

"It is true that I gave notice to certain Democratic Senators that if a resolution thanking Mr. Coolidge was adopted, I would not only object to its consideration but would also make a speech against it. I took that course because the Vice President had sustained the point of order made by Mr. Lodge during the debate on the British debt bill, in the course of which debate I happened to mention the fact that I was not a servant of Wall Street.

"Lodge's point of order took me off the floor and Coolidge sustained the point of order, or, to be more exact, he participated in a rape of the rules of the United States Senate. And that is why I made it plain that if anybody tried to get a resolution thanking him for his fairness through the Senate I would be there to oppose it."

Mr. Heflin disclosed his intention to block any move to thank Mr. Coolidge at the close of the night session of the Senate on March 2.

Just before the Senate adjourned Senator Myers of Montana moved over to the seat next to Mr. Heflin and requested the Alabama Senator to absent himself from the Chamber for a few minutes.

"What for? Why do you make such a request?" Senator Heflin asked.

Senator Myers replied that he was voluntarily retiring to private life and desired to offer a resolution extending the thanks of the Senate to the Vice President for his fairness as presiding officer.

Advertising Agencies are Recommending Big Space in The Chicago Tribune

Why?

BECAUSE they know that in Zone 7 their clients can adequately cover an 18,000,000 population market for a decidedly low cost.

This is one-fifth of the whole country's buying power. It is one-sixth of the population, and still it is only one-eleventh of the total area of the United States. It is compact, easily reached—quickly responsive.

CHICAGO ALONE HAS 3,000,000 PEOPLE. Yet in The Chicago Tribune you can influence in buying power, six great Chicagos. You cover easily and quickly hundreds of smaller cities.

Zone 7, comprising Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin, offers the biggest sales opportunity of any territory in America, because Tribune readers are spenders.

Agency men know these things. As promoters of progressive selling, they have proven their value to serious-minded manufacturers, by urging them to concentrate sales and advertising effort in The Chicago Territory.

Here in Zone 7 are located 24,831 automobile dealers; 1,857 paint dealers; 8,314 hardware dealers; 50,270 grocers and 8,709 druggists.

STILL THE INFLUENCE OF THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in scores and scores of outlying cities and towns, is just as great as it is in the city of Chicago.

For instance—in the city of Rockford, Ill., with 13,180 families, 6,351 Tribunes are delivered each Sunday. And this represents the cream of this city's buying power, for it costs $15.00 per year to subscribe to The Chicago Tribune.

Other typical cities and towns in zone 7 are—

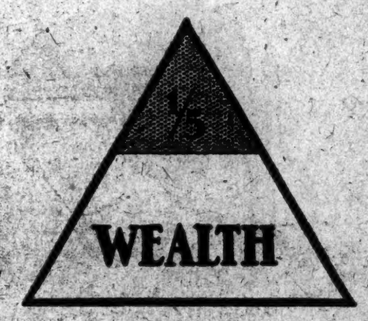
City	Miles from Chicago	Families	Sunday Tribunes
Elkhart, Ind.	101.0	4,855	2,265
LaPorte, Ind.	59.0	3,032	1,583
Rockford, Ill.	92.1	13,130	6,351
Elgin, Ill.	36.8	5,486	2,983
Galesburg, Ill.	163.0	4,767	3,361
Davenport, Ia.	186.4	11,345	5,145
Sioux City, Ia.	227.0	14,245	2,205
Keokuk, Ia.	178.0	2,884	1,281
Beloit, Wis.	110.2	4,257	2,075
Madison, Wis.	166.2	7,676	4,096
Escanaba, Mich.	328.0	2,621	1,087

137 CITIES IN ZONE 7. This amazing condition holds true in 137 cities and towns of 5,000 population or over in Zone 7. And this vast territory is dominated by The Chicago Tribune.

The representative of a big advertising agency was recently on a mission in Danville, Illinois. While there he interviewed five wholesalers and eleven retailers in the grocery, drug, furniture, electrical, auto accessory, musical and hardware fields. He found that every one of them read The Chicago Tribune regularly and all but one testifed to the efficiency of Tribune advertising in moving merchandise off of their shelves.

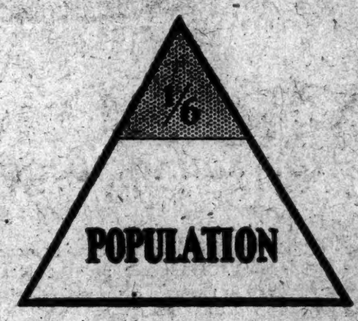
Through The Tribune a manufacturer can sell as readily in Escanaba, Mich., or Davenport, Ia., as in Chicago. This, agency men will tell you, is national advertising in the biggest and most intensive way known to modern selling. If you check the cost in The Tribune, by the Milline system, against mediums you are now using, you'll be surprised at the difference.

REACH JOBBER AND DEALER—To assist national advertisers to successfully reach the people in Zone 7, The Tribune has built up a powerful and efficient merchandising service. Keen, experienced men, trained to know selling and advertising, are at your service. They will advise with you and your agency on how to secure both jobber and dealer interest and co-operation. Ask one to call and advise with you. It puts you under no obligation.



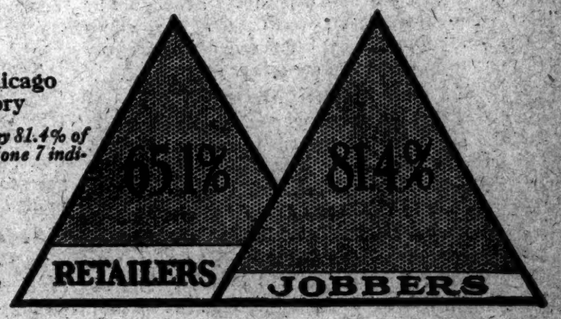
In the United States

One-fifth of all the wealth, which is one-fifth of the buying power, is in the Chicago Territory and is influenced by The Chicago Tribune.



In the United States

Here in Zone 7 is a population unusually literate and open minded to advertising. It offers a compact market, easily reached and readily controlled.



In the Chicago Territory

In a recent survey 81.4% of the Jobbers in Zone 7 indicated they regularly read the Tribune. 65.1% of the retailers wrote that they were regular readers of The Tribune.

THE CHICAGO TERRITORY

It is hard to conceive of any territory that offers greater opportunities to manufacturers than Zone 7 with its 18,000,000 responsive population. And remember, The Chicago Tribune blankets this great, five-state area with 900,000 circulation on Sundays and 530,000 on week days.

TWO HOLD UP STORE, ESCAPE AMID SHOTS

Thieves Return First Dollar Earned by Delicatessen Owner, but Take Mother's Picture.

Two young robbers who worked leisurely and appraised their loot carefully before taking it, held up the delicatessen shop of Arnold Degner at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, early yesterday morning, robbing the till, the proprietor and two clerks. They escaped with about $2,200 amid a shower of shots from Degner.

Several customers were in the store when the two young men entered, and they waited until the clerks and Degner had waited on all. Then one of them ordered two liverwurst sandwiches and went to a rear room, while the other stood in front of the show cases. The sandwich eater shouted out a complaint, and when Degner went back to investigate a revolver was shoved against him.

While his confederate held Degner and the two clerks in the rear of the store the first robber took $540 from the till. Then the two examined Degner's pocketbook. They got $140 in cash and finally chanced upon a torn $1 bill in a compartment. When Degner said that it was the first money he had earned in this country the pair returned it to him. They took a locket containing a picture of his mother, after consulting with themselves on its value, and then lifted Degner's watch and chain. They weighed the watch in their hands, estimating what it might be expected to bring. They also took the delicatessen man's tie pin, the total value of the jewelry being estimated by Degner at $1,500.

As both men dashed for the door two customers entered. The robbers assured them that the "boss" would be out in a moment. Degner seized a revolver from back of the counter. One of the customers asked him if he could make change for $1. Degner told him he should have negotiated "with those two robbers who've just taken all the change here."

Pursuing the men along Fifty-fourth Street toward Sixth Avenue, Degner fired four times and said that he saw one of the men stagger as though hit. Both escaped in Sixth Avenue.

The feature of this line of cabinet units is the open sides or ends, separate finished sides being required only on the outside of end units. This construction effects quite a saving in cost where a number of units are placed side by side in battery formation.

These units or sections are 23 inches deep from front to back and 58¾ inches high without legs, or 57 inches high with legs—furnished either way.

The "2000" line, like all Globe-Wernicke Sectional Cabinets, is fitted with filing devices of all kinds, drawers, cupboards, roller shelves, etc. Made in quartered oak, im. mahogany and im. walnut.

The "2000" line is a good one to standardize on—economical, efficient, handsome. Let us suggest an outfit for your office.

SQUIBB'S DENTAL CREAM

Made with SQUIBB'S Milk of Magnesia

—for sound, beautiful teeth in a safe, beneficial way!

YOU have used Milk of Magnesia to correct acidity. No other product is as safely effective in neutralizing mouth acidity and protecting the gums and teeth.

You can now enjoy these advantages by using Squibb's Dental Cream. It gives you a new, safer and better way of keeping your teeth sound and attractive.

Good teeth are priceless!

Few things add so much to your personal appearance or are as important to your general health. By correcting mouth acidity Squibb's Dental Cream will do all that can be done to assure you the pleasure of keeping your teeth healthy and beautiful.

Because it contains Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, it neutralizes the mouth acids that cause dental decay and diseases. It cleanses your mouth and teeth thoroughly, keeping them as sound and white as nature intended them.

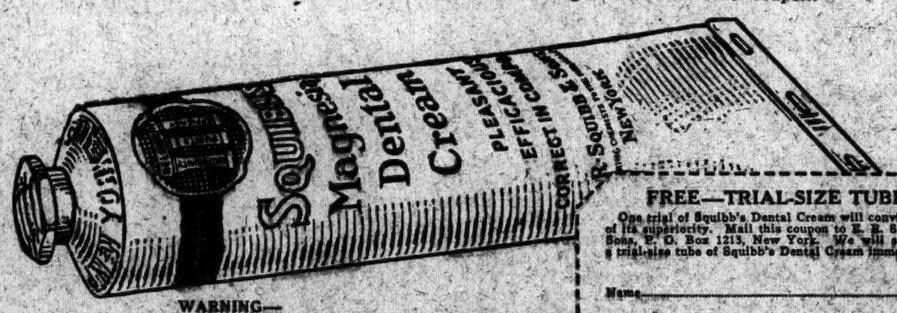
Its flavor is delightful! And its freedom from soap, acids, grit or powerful astringents make its use unusually pleasant as well as safe. It is the ideal tooth paste for both adults and children.

A Professional Product

Squibb's Dental Cream is different from all other tooth pastes. It is a professional product—pure, safe and reliable in every respect. It is made by the Squibb Laboratories, which have devoted more than sixty years to the service of the medical and dental professions.

Make your first test—FREE

Mail us this coupon for a free trial-size tube of Squibb's Dental Cream. Notice how pleasant it is to use; how beautifully it polishes your teeth—and with regular use how surely it reduces decay and dental troubles. Begin now—mail the coupon!



FREE—TRIAL-SIZE TUBE

One trial of Squibb's Dental Cream will convince you of its superiority. Mail this coupon to E. R. Squibb & Sons, P. O. Box 1213, New York. We will send you a trial-size tube of Squibb's Dental Cream immediately.

WARNING—

Scientific investigations show that any tooth paste which limits the flow of saliva is decidedly harmful to use. Strong alkalies inhibit the flow of saliva. And soap, owing to its free alkalinity, if used consistently in a tooth paste, may have the same effect. In fact, milk of magnesia is the only effective antacid which does not interfere with the normal flow of saliva.

How do you hold your pen?

Fit your natural writing habit with

Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen

"The Daddy of Them All"

Held this way—the Medium Round Pointed Nib suits a vast majority of writers and works well on all papers.

Held this way—use Accountant Point. Writes with an unshaded light, but clear stroke that requires no blotting.

Held this way—you will find that an Oblique Stub gives you the greatest degree of pen satisfaction. It fits the slant at which it touches the paper.

'THE LOVE HABIT' IS HIGHLY AMUSING

Americanized French Farce at the Bijou Is Little Changed From Original.

ONLY SIX IN THE CAST

THE LOVE HABIT. A farce in three acts from the French of Louis Verneuil. Adapted by Gladys Unger. At the Bijou Theatre.

The Young Man.....James Rennie
Marie.....Mary Kennedy
Nadine Morand.....Florence Eldridge
Gustave Morand.....Ernest Cossart
Rosette Pompon.....Fenia Marinoff
Max Duvellercy.....Dwight Frye

A highly amusing farce came to town last night. If the new play, an adaptation from the French called "The Love Habit," is successful, an excellent course of action for the managers who complain loudly about the dearth of revenue-bringing plays suggests itself. This course involves simply the revival of any French farce offered here in the past twenty years, with such slight changes as might be necessary in revising the play to conform to the French original. For by far and away the leading virtue of last night's offering and the sole thing that distinguished it from the hundred and one Americanized French farces that, among other things, left the A. E. F. completely unprepared for the France it was to know, was the fact that it had obviously been tampered with by the adapter only as to detail and not as to substance.

Verneuil—a person of distinction on the Continent if only for the fact that his plays have been produced in post-war Berlin more often than those of any other living dramatist—has not particularly strained his resources in the construction of this piece. Even the stock characters—appropriately enough six, for Mr. Pemberton was last night's producer—have sufficed to carry out his plot.

He tells the story of a charming wife, married to a slightly older person who is carrying on an unbelievable intrigue with a lady of the cabarets. At the same time a personable youth conceives a passion for the young wife. And so one thing leads to another till the erring husband, driven frantic by the relentless pressure exerted by his rival, who insists on the freedom of the house as the price of his silence, confesses all.

The wife is adorably played by Florence Eldridge. Despite the easy verdict of last night's audience, of the usual hand-picked sophisticates, it is a difficult task to make likeable upon a New York stage, a character heading with certainty toward infidelity for no reason other than the mere presence of a suitable subject—but Miss Eldridge managed successfully to overcome this obstacle.

Ernest Cossart was the thick-witted and undiscriminating husband and missed few of the chances offered by a very grateful role. If some of his work seemed stereotyped, it is perhaps due to the fact that his part was one that has appeared in more plays probably than James the butler, and is at least as many as the crook who turns out to have been the detective after all.

As the young man, James Rennie displayed even more than the required likableness and good looks, but his playing was decidedly capricious. He seemed uncertain whether he was in earnest in his love or in earnest in his business as a farceur and his work consequently lacked an evenness that was required to make it plausible.

Dwight Frye, a young actor whose work in "Rita Coventry" brought substantial attention to him, had a small part in the new production but made the most of it. Mary Kennedy, the inevitable Marie, charmingly helped to perpetuate the tradition of the French maid upon the American stage. Fania Marinoff, otherwise a splendid actress, seemed miscast in her rôle of the gay adventuress.

The new play—the discussion of its acting has almost caused absence of reference to its many amusing lines—is exceedingly interesting all of the time, and occasionally even wildly hilarious.

City Symphony Closes Season.

The largest audience which has attended the series of concerts given at the Town Hall by the City Symphony Orchestra was on hand yesterday afternoon to hear the last program to be given by that orchestra in New York this season. Despite the fact that his doctor had forbidden him to sing, Emilio De Gogorza repeated the numbers which he gave Saturday evening at Carnegie Hall. This evening the orchestra will give a concert in East Orange, closing its first season of fifty-three programs.

MUSIC NOTES.

Clara Clemens has postponed on account of illness her song recital announced for this evening at the Town Hall.

The Paulist Choristers will give the first of three concerts in Aeolian Hall on the night of St. Patrick's Day.

The Marquette Club will have a St. Patrick's Day program at the Hotel Plaza by Anna Hamlin and W. A. Kennedy.

Greta Torpadie and Rosal Varady will assist at Sunday's recital by Alfredo Casella before the International Composers' Guild.

HENRY MILLER IN "PASTEUR"

AT THE EMPIRE. B'way at 40th St. Evs. 8:30. Mats. Wed. & Sat., 2:30

CHARLES DARNTON, Eve. World

Henry Miller is finely intelligent in "Pasteur." His study of the Scientist has the convincing tone of reality. It is one of the most distinguished performances of his career. The episodes are admirably staged by Gilbert Miller.

J. RANKIN TOWES, Eve. Post.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

Jesse L. Lasky, Chicago, Ill., March 14, 1923
Paramount Pictures, New York.

Reached Chicago from the Pacific coast with copy of "The Covered Wagon" for the Criterion theatre tomorrow after following the Oregon Trail over which the pioneers travelled seventy-five years ago. In three days I have gone as far as they travelled in ten months. Tomorrow will arrive at Grand Central via the Twentieth Century with this great epic of America's making. Every adventure, every hardship that the brave pioneers endured is lived again in "The Covered Wagon." The buffalo hunt, the fording of the river, the prairie fire, the Indian attack—all these will provide thrills and entertainment such as the people of New York have never seen. And they all happened on this very ground which I have just flashed across. Out of the great west which the pioneers built with blood and sacrifice has come the enduring and monumental film record of their immortal achievement. The motion picture industry is proud to pay lasting tribute to the builders of the western empire. "The Covered Wagon" is greater than any imagined story, because it is the record of life—of the most romantic and thrilling years in all America's history. John C. Flinn.

NOT INSPIRING.

The third number of the new quarterly, Foreign Affairs, published today, opens with a long unsigned article on "Two Years of American Foreign Policy." It is, on the whole, friendly to the Harding Administration, indicates its positive achievements in international matters, dwells on the vigor and clear reasoning displayed by the State Department in the conduct of foreign relations, but at the end concludes, in view of all the circumstances as they present themselves today, that the foreign policy of the Government "has not often been inspiring." No one denies that it has been cautious and safe. It has duly asserted American rights and privileges. It has insisted upon "equal opportunities," but has successfully evaded for the most part the admission of equal responsibilities. So far as foreign nations are concerned, we may have continued to command their respect, but have not won their affection. And at home, sums up the anonymous writer: "It must be admitted that, except in the case of the Disarmament Conference, the foreign policy of President HARDING's Administration has not been such as to make the heart beat quicker with patriotic pride."

Turning to recent events, the article refers to the check which Secretary HUGHES visibly encountered after his New Haven speech which proposed a plan to settle the question of German reparations. This was not even considered by the Prime Ministers meeting at Paris. Directly afterward came the French occupation of the Ruhr, which seemed to take our State Department entirely by surprise. The sudden withdrawal of our troops from the Rhine seemed to betray a certain irritation, as at an unlooked-for rebuff; and since that time the Washington Administration has appeared to have nothing in mind respecting the Ruhr complications, except to sit tight until it is seen how they come out. All this, according to the writer of the article in Foreign Affairs, has necessarily had the effect of causing the prestige of Secretary HUGHES to suffer severely."

The spokesman for the British Government in the House of Commons on Tuesday defended the inaction of the Bonar Law Ministry, partly on the ground that it had got "no response" from the United States in the matter of mediating in the troubles between France and Germany. If our Government has really been approached with a suggestion of friendly intervention, the difficulty in the way of acceptance must have been partly in the form of the appeal. This has been tied up with the League of Nations. In all the motions made by the Liberals and the Labor members in the British Parliament, the suggestion has been that America could somehow be got to act with England through the instrumentality of the League of Nations. But to press such a plan upon the Harding Administration at present is openly to invite a refusal. If our foreign policy during the past two years has been consistent at any one point more than at another, it has been in a sort of horrified unwillingness to have anything to do with the League of Nations. The writer in Foreign Affairs asserts, somewhat cruelly, but not with substantial injustice: "So far, the attitude of official Washington toward the League, though more politely manifested, is not unlike that of Moscow." The rather cavalier note which TCHITCHERIN, acting for the Soviet Government, has just sent to the League of Nations might have been written with scarcely the change of a word by Secretary HUGHES.

What the writer referred to maintains with much plausibility is that in the matter of foreign relations American public opinion has come to outrun the American Government. That is the reason why "the Harding Administration has of late appeared to be drifting somewhat helplessly." But the signs that the people East and West—especially and surprisingly West—have come to feel that we cannot escape taking part in European problems, and desire bolder steps, are in effect a popular call upon the Government to advance along new lines. "America, however reluctantly, is preparing anew to take an open, active part in the settlement of European questions." Will she get from Washington the constructive leadership which she craves?

THE CITY AND THE COURTS.

The city authorities have uniformly had luck with their litigation, yet persist in crying out that they will take everything into the courts. It may be doubted if anybody can recall a decision favorable to the city in any important case. The Supreme Court decision in the telephone case follows the decision in the gas case to the effect that the city's intervention is without excuse. The city has a special telephone contract, so that it is not entitled even on an equality with other subscribers to object to the Public Service Commission rates. By law it is the duty of the commission or of the Attorney General to represent public interests in all cases arising under the commission law. When the city undertook the duties assigned to others it invited the court's rebuke to the city as a meddler with what does not concern it. There is nothing to show that the commission is not itself "fully and properly" representative of the interests of subscribers for telephone service.

If we are to have regulation by a commission, the subjects committed to it should be left to it. Yet neither the State nor the national legislature takes that course. Even though the courts find that the commission's action is right, if the rates are unpopular the legislatures either enact new rates or pass new laws appointing other Commissioners, or providing new standards to control the old Commissioners. In this telephone case the commission states that it held sixty-three hearings and acted after taking 7,875 pages of testimony. Unless it is corrupt, it is a better judge of rates than the Governor or anybody else. The commission took office only in 1921, and this is its first action to correct the complaints then pending. Yet before experience with the new rates it is proposed to appoint another commission to get other rates. Voters may be more virtuous than Commissioners, but there is no doubt that Commissioners are more competent to make fair rates than are voters or most lawmakers.

WHAT'S UNDER THE CARDS?

What is the proportion of reality to trick in the curious legislative performance at Albany? The Senate sits into the small hours, indulges in a "constructive recess" of two minutes to make a new legislative day, passes a sheaf of bills, some doubtful, some clearly threatening to business, remedies calculated to make worse the evils they are supposed to cure. All the Democratic Senators voted for the bill to create an inquisitorial State Trade Commission with the power to poke its nose into everybody's books and business. Two Republican Senators, extreme contrasts to each other, Mr. LUSK and Mr. DAVENPORT, also voted for the bill. It is to be killed, we are told, by the Republican Assembly. It ought to be; but these little object-lessons in political sincerity make the public uneasy.

Senator LUSK was the sole Republican to vote for the bill to incorporate the Stock Exchange and other exchanges, and to license stock brokers—that is, to make "pull" a qualification for the brokerage business. A couple of "blue sky" bills for the supervision of security dealers in and out of the Stock Exchange were driven through the Senate by Republican aid. Presumably they are sent to the Assembly to be chloroformed; but this system of votes as mere "gestures," this "passing the buck," is discreditable to the Legislature and disquieting to the people.

Nobody would vote for the regulation of labor unions; but regulating the Stock Exchange is a horse of another color. One sees the wink in the austerest Senator's eye. It is so easy and simple to vote for "blue sky" laws, without regard to the merits and without any serious consideration. "Bless your heart, man! We are only throwing a little dust in the eyes of 'the people,' the people that 'get excited about 'wealth' and the 'interests.' The 'boys' in the Assembly have the right tip. This is merely a complimentary passage." So those astute statesmen may be thought to talk. Three Democratic Senators, RABENOLD of New York and HASTINGS and LOVE of Kings, deserve to be thanked for killing by their votes the bill to give the State funds a monopoly of workmen's compensation insurance.

The Republicans in the Assembly have the opportunity to protect the public from a great deal of rash or perilous legislation, but not all Republican virtue is so lofty as to be warranted superior to temptation. Take the Rapid Transit bill, to hail and hymn which Mr. HYLAN and his pilgrim band have descended upon Albany. Hollow and impossible financially as this plan is, its advocates hope at least to get it started. It offers a fat lot of jobs and contracts. It is conceivable that Republican statesmen in this town, in their altruistic zeal for the welfare of the "organization" and the pockets of its trusty henchmen, may be impressed by a measure that will provide patronage, if not transportation, facilities; and that the representatives of those statesmen at Albany may be persuaded or instructed to take a pragmatic view of the Rapid Transit bill.

It is to be hoped that this conception is purely fanciful, and that the Republicans in the Legislature, and notably in the Assembly, will consider this vital problem dispassionately and carefully, without reference to political hopes, fears or trades.

GOVERNOR SILZER'S TRIUMPH.

A fight for good government was won in New Jersey when the deadlock in the Senate was broken and Governor SILZER'S appointments to the bipartisan Highway Commission were confirmed. The question involved was whether $40,000,000 obtained by selling State bonds and a sum as large assured in other ways should be expended on the construction of durable highways without waste. New Jersey used to be proud of her road system. Fifteen years ago it was better than that of any other State except Massachusetts. But of late the New Jersey highways have not worn well and the cost of construction has been excessive. The material did not conform to specifications, and contracts were let for suspiciously large amounts. A road scandal figured in the last campaign, when Judge SILZER was the Democratic candidate for Governor. He won many votes by charging political control of road building and by attacking the top-heavy Highway Commission for inefficiency. He insisted that if $40,000,000 were to be spent on new construction the work should be done under the supervision of a smaller commission free from the influence of politicians.

One of his first acts after becoming Governor was to remove the old commission and call upon the Legislature, Republican in both branches, to cooperate with him in giving the State a satisfactory road-building board. A bipartisan Highway Commission was created, and Governor SILZER sent his appointments to the Senate: General HUGH L. SCOTT, U. S. A., retired, and WALTER KIDDE, Republicans, and ABRAHAM JELIN and PERCY H. STEWART, Democrats. The Republican majority in the Senate offered to confirm the Democrats if the Governor would substitute for the Republicans he had named two men of its own selection. He decided to stand by his appointments, and a deadlock ensued. It was broken by eight Republican Senators, who, uniting with the four Democrats in the Senate, accepted the Governor's Highway Commission.

Such a combination of Republicans and Democrats had never occurred before in New Jersey, according to party historians. In the party caucus the eight insurgent Republicans were threatened with ostracism and the failure of all the legislative measures in which they were interested, but they stood firm. They resisted United States Senator EDGE's ripper bill, which was to undo the bipartisan legislation and create a Highway Commission of one member. The very drafting of the ripper bill was proof that the majority Senators had completely lost their heads. Senator EDGE, coming on from Washington to assert his authority over the Republican Party in New Jersey, has lost prestige. What was particularly wanted in the Highway Commission was character. The body headed by General SCOTT has it. Governor SILZER comes out of his first test as a servant of the State with flying colors. The eight Republican independents share with him the honors of victory.

TOO HASTY WITH HIGH BRIDGE.

In voting to tear down High Bridge, the Board of Estimate, it is fair to assume, acted on imperfect or misleading information. The impression given to the public, and probably to the board, was that the historic bridge had become unsafe and must reluctantly be razed. But this is a discovery far too sudden. The matter had previously been looked into by competent engineers and architects, and their matured opinion was that High Bridge, though it showed signs of having settled slightly, is perfectly stable. Moreover, they worked out a plan by which to meet the demand of the War Department that the piers in the Harlem River be removed in the interests of navigation, and at the same time to preserve the beautiful landmark in all its essential attractiveness and utility. Indeed, it could be improved for practical purposes by adding to it walks for pedestrians at the sides and opening a twenty-foot driveway for vehicles on the top, all without interfering with the existing lines of the sightly structure.

As the action of the Board of Estimate was reported to be merely by the Committee of the Whole, it should come up for review by the entire membership. In any case, the decision ought to be reconsidered. There should be full public hearings, at which all the facts might be brought out. First, of course, stands the question of safety. If the Board of Estimate was correctly informed that High Bridge is in danger of falling down if it is not torn down, that ought to be established so conclusively as to satisfy every doubter. But if the truth is to the contrary, as is maintained by engineers of much higher standing than those at the disposal of Commissioner WHALEN, then the board ought to retrace its steps. It certainly cannot wish to have even the appearance of unseemly haste in ordering the destruction of what has been at once a monument and a delight for more than seventy years. New York has too few structures of the long associations and artistic merits of High Bridge to spare one of them except under dire necessity.

The spontaneous movement organized to save High Bridge ought to be encouraged. Every civic impulse which shows itself in efforts to maintain the dignified monuments of the old city, while pressing forward to make it more beautiful in the future, will be quick to second the protest and appeal made to the Board of Estimate. If the safety of High Bridge is once assured, respect for a landmark in New York which is both old and charming ought to be sufficient to insure its preservation.

WHAT SCHOOLMEN RECOMMEND.

The most powerful and forward-looking body of public schoolmen in America is known as the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association. At its annual meeting, which has just been held in Cleveland, Ohio, attended by several thousand superintendents, principals and teachers, several resolutions were adopted which presumably reflect the sentiment of the great body of school administrators. The two resolutions of general public concern relate, first, to the educational welfare of the country child, and, second, to the establishment of a national Department of Education, with a Secretary of Education in the President's Cabinet.

Undoubtedly the country child has not had a fair share of educational attention in these last few decades of urban trend. With waning rural population in many parts of the country, the district school has dwindled in social importance and fallen educationally. In New York State more than 3,600 district schools have an average attendance of 10 or less. There are fifteen schools with an average attendance of but one. The teachers are not required to have the same professional training as those in cities. One-half the children of the State are in the New York City district and the other half of them are scattered through more than 10,000 districts, each of which is bearing its own school burden, though the burdens are grievously unequal. The National Superintendence Conference urged that the burden should be so equitably distributed between the stronger and weaker taxing units as to "make the opportunity of the boy or girl in a rural school equal to that of the child in the most favored city school system in the land." This can come about only through the creation of larger units of taxation and administration, such as the State Education Department is advocating in this State. New York is fifty years behind the times in its rural school policy.

The other resolution recommends Federal aid for the purpose of stimulating the several States to remove illiteracy, Americanize the foreign-born, prepare teachers, develop adequate programs of physical education and "equalize educational opportunity." With this has been associated the proposal that there should be a Secretary of Education in the President's Cabinet, through whom alone can "national sanction" and national leadership be provided "in matters educational." The member organizations of the United States Chamber of Commerce have, on the other hand, voted three to one in opposition to the creation of a Federal Department of Education with a Cabinet Secretary, and two to one against the enlargement of the present Federal bureau. But is not the advice of those in the business of education likely to be more valuable in matters relating to schools and school administration?

ADVERTISING BAD BOOKS.

Mr. SUMNER of the Vice Society may be surprised at the comments on Chief Magistrate MCADOO's letter to Justice FORD, in which it was intimated that Mr. SUMNER was perhaps not the best authority on the morality of books. Nevertheless, it is significant that Judge MCADOO, who has himself had unhappy experience as a censor, should have come around to the opinion that was already held by most of those who have watched the recent workings of the Vice Society. Yet if the Clean Books League succeeds in amending our laws according to its desires, a great many books will be at Mr. SUMNER's mercy. He will have more power than ANTHONY COMSTOCK ever dreamed of.

What our literature needs is a public educated in artistic values as well as in morals. Judge MCADOO writes of "plays and books that make, and are intended to make, an appeal to "base and lascivious minds." However it may be on the stage, that is not a serious problem in fiction. There are very few books so intended, and Mr. SUMNER would have little trouble in putting any of them out of business if they ever came to the surface. The thing that makes one groan for American literature is the books—which may or may not be immoral in Mr. SUMNER's opinion—that make, and are intended to make, an appeal to pretentious and solemn minds.

Mr. SHERWOOD ANDERSON's latest is a case in point. It contains passages which may seem to be mere grotesque obscenity. Yet it is painfully apparent that Mr. ANDERSON thought he had a Message. One can even see, dimly, what he is trying to get over; a thought not devoid of merit, though far from original. But because ANDERSON is windy and terribly solemn he achieves something that looks like mere lasciviousness to some, while others who enjoy great repute as hierophants fall on their faces and do him reverence as the producer of something that must be great because it looks ridiculous.

If Mr. SUMNER tries to suppress this book, or others like it, he will merely bring a piece of pompous flatulence to the attention of people who will like it for the very reason that makes SUMNER dislike it, and who will be as incapable as he of appreciating the real offense of Mr. SHERWOOD ANDERSON. Solemnity ought to be a misdemeanor and pretentiousness a felony. Until the law is prepared to go so far as that, we can only observe that Mr. SUMNER is not the worst literary critic who has access to the columns of the newspapers.

A better way to deal with this sort of writing is suggested by MAXIMILIAN HARDEN's sizzling commentary on the audiences at Berlin performances of "Reigen." If Mr. SUMNER had sent a copy of that article to every member of the Green Room Club, few of them would have dared show their faces at the "reading," last Sunday night. And what HARDEN said about "Reigen" would fit "Cytherea," or a dozen other recent works that might be named. It would fit them, and it would do them more damage than anything Mr. SUMNER might attempt. A good many of us like to be thought naughty, but few of us enjoy being shown up as fools.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

"Experiments" Now Their Cry.

This year, as so often before, members of the New York Legislature have lent to the anti-vivisectionists such aid as they can give toward the accomplishment of imposing upon medical practice and research restrictions that seriously would hamper both and practically put an end, in this State, to the advancement of medical science. They have introduced and advocate the passage of a bill for which there is no need whatever, and at the annual anti-vivisection field day in Albany this week there were repeated with characteristic vehemence all of the old and often-disproved stories the telling of which gives to these strange and unfortunate people a perverse satisfaction which the psychologists thoroughly understand.

In apparent hopelessness of causing excitement and horror by describing the "Pavloff dog" of their diseased imaginations, they now are putting chief emphasis, not on allegations of cruelty to animals, but on what they call "experimenting with the children of the poor." That, they know, will have a strong appeal to ignorant credulity, and it is nothing to them that their charges are false and without any basis except a deliberate misrepresentation of facts long since explained and fully justified by the only competent critics of them.

It is true, of course, that the more progressive physicians and surgeons constantly are testing new treatments, medical or surgical. That is why medicine today is so far advanced beyond what it was a few years ago, why many diseases once incurable and many injuries once always fatal now have lost their terrors. The change was the result of "experimenting" with patients of all ages and classes, not particularly with children of the poor; but, thanks to the present possibility of testing these new drugs and operations first on animals, the "experiments" are made with knowledge that they are both safe and promising.

In reality, the anti-vivisectionists are little interested in the children of the poor. It is to animals that all their sympathies go, for they are the victims of a "zoophile psychosis," but, while deserving of pity, they cannot be allowed to scatter their myths and calumnies without contradiction of their charges and denunciation of their efforts.

Expensive Saving of Money.

Owing to the curious antagonism to New York City that is felt throughout the whole American hinterland, there probably will be something of satisfaction in other States at the news that postal facilities here must be cut down, as were the appropriations made for them by Congress. This particular form of economy, however, will be hardly less detrimental to our neighbors, near and remote, than to ourselves, for it is chiefly their letters to us and ours to them, not ours to each other—we usually telephone if we cannot meet—that will be delayed by the wider spacing of distributions.

What makes the deterioration of our mail service the more irritating is the fact that here the Post Office Department earns a real profit, one amounting to millions, and with that decreased the departmental bookkeepers, in spite of their wonderful ingenuity and still more wonderful methods of accounting, will find a much increased difficulty in turning a real deficit into an imaginary surplus.

New York can stand the change if the rest of the country can; and while it cannot be said with entire accuracy that a false economy on the part of Congress is better than none at all, yet the assertion would be in a measure true.

They Must Walk Straight Ways.

Not all readers of THE TIMES may have gone carefully through the more than two columns of space it devoted yesterday to information gathered under the simple and unexciting headline, "Police Department." It was in small type, as usual, but it revealed, to anybody who did read it, much about the way in which our police force is governed and the severity of the discipline which has made it worthy of the praise it so often has received.

Not a little of the space thus used was taken up by the listing of forbidden things done by policemen and bidden things not done by them, with the penalties imposed for these sins of omission and commission. Almost all of the offenses rehearsed come in the category called by lawyers that of mala prohibita, rather than in that of mala in se—they were, in other words, things that anybody except a policeman can do or not do at his pleasure and with impunity. On the policemen they brought a fine of one or more days' pay—a severe punishment for men with salaries as small as these, and, unfortunately, falling more on the families that most of them have than on themselves.

The derelictions ranged from failure to prevent a burglary to sitting down instead of standing, from being off post to being in places—technically "premises"—where duty did not call, but where thirst did, it might be suspected. Taken by and large, the record was not a dark one, and what it disclosed was far less the weakness of our policemen than the sternness of the rules under which they live and do their work.

That, of course, is as it should be, and highly reassuring to the ununiformed citizen whose safety has been entrusted to "the finest."

But He, Too, "Slanders" New York!

Mayor HYLAN denounced again this week the crime he has so often charged against the newspapers of the city—that of defaming the city. By it he meant, as always, criticism of himself, or rather of his administration, for of personal criticism he has received next to none.

It has not occurred to him, evidently, that quite as much a part of the city as is his administration are its newspapers, and that when he makes against them general and undiscriminating charges of mendacity and corruption he hurts the reputation of the city fully as much as does or would like animadversions against the local Government.

But when the papers find fault they are specific, they give names and dates. Why does not he do as much—why does not he tell just what falsehood was printed, when, and by what paper? Then he could be answered—or couldn't. In either case the public, judging the controversy, would have something to go on and so might reach sound conclusions as regards both himself and what he is too fond of calling "the press."

GERMANY ON THE SEAS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Whatever Congress could have done and did not do, one point cannot be overlooked, and that is its unwillingness to pass the Ship Subsidy bill. When one considers the handicap imposed upon ships under American registry, as the outcome of Senator La Follette's ideas of shipping, is it not a self-evident fact that our country cannot compete with European shipping interests?

Suppose Congress had passed the Ship Subsidy bill, could not Germany, through Hugo Stinnes and other German capitalists, easily have acquired, as they could do today, ships sailing under the British registry but owned and controlled by Americans? I cite a case in point—the International Mercantile Marine Company has over one million tons afloat. This corporation is dominated by American interests. The capital of this company consists of approximately $52,000,000 preferred stock and $50,000,000 common stock. At the present market price, 51 per cent. of the common stock could be purchased for $2,805,000, and in like manner 51 per cent. of the preferred stock could be purchased for $11,403,600. With a capital expenditure, therefore, of $14,208,600 by German interests, either independently or associated with the North German Lloyd or the Hamburg-American Line, a control of the International Mercantile Marine Company, with all the privileges it enjoys, not only abroad, but in the United States, would be an easy reality.

If, therefore, German interests should decide to gain a foothold on the high seas through this channel, what chance would American ships have against such a management, known as the Germans are for their economy and thrift? And why should the American people be taxed to meet this competition? Ought we not first give American shipping interests wide and liberal latitude for economic operations of their vessels—and then consider a subsidy?

Letters of Marque and Reprisal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Does not the jubilation of Zone Chief R. C. Merrick over the work of rum pirates suggest a method by which the almost impossible task of putting down the liquor smugglers may be successfully carried out without cost to the Government? Mr. Merrick says in this morning's TIMES: "It saves a lot of work. A bootlegger in Savannah has been quoted as saying that he dreads these 'liquor thieves,' as they call these pirates, a great deal more than he does the Federal agents."

That is quite natural, and if it is true why should not the Government issue letters of marque and reprisal to any adventurous seamen who are willing, at their own expense, to fit out ships and crews to go after these smugglers? These privateers would find their reward in the illegal cargoes they were able to capture, just as privateers always do in time of war. Such properly accredited privateers might perhaps take some of the idle ships off the hands of the Shipping Board. The only possible hitch would be in making the captured cargoes of liquor valuable to the captors. A solution of this difficulty might be found in having the Government buy up all the captured liquor and hold it against the time when the Volstead act shall be repealed.

The building of fast ships in which to run the liquor and faster ships for the privateers might give that impetus to American shipping of which Chairman Lasker seems to think it is so sadly in need.

Hence the Dry Cough.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why do we hear so much about influenza, coughing, pneumonia, colds, &c.? Millions seem to suffer from this scourge during the last few years. Before prohibition, if a man felt a cold coming on he secured a hot rum, rock and rye, &c., and avoided a cold—now he gives it to a hundred others. All we hear about now is pneumonia and dope.

ANTI-BUTTERMILK.

New York, Feb. 20, 1923.

CONTRASTS.

Man's a funny animal,
Jesting where the bullets whiz,
Loving danger like a pal—
Moaning at the rheumatiz.

Taking chances in his stride,
Flirting with mad motor cars,
Careless of the great divide—
Growling at the Volstead bars.

Aching for a chance to shine,
Rarely making backward tracks,
Drinking hazard in, like wine—
Gulping at the income tax.

Daring any time or place
What the sudden moment brings,
Meeting lions face to face—
Groaning at mosquito stings.

WOMAN NOW RADCLIFFE HEAD

Dean Comstock of Smith Chosen to Succeed President Briggs.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 14.—The election of Miss Ada Louise Comstock, Dean of Smith College, as President of Radcliffe College was announced today. She will be the first full-time President of Radcliffe, succeeding President LeBaron R. Briggs, who for twenty years has been both head of Radcliffe and Dean of the Harvard Faculty of Arts and Sciences. Miss Comstock, who was formerly Dean of Women at the University of Minnesota, will assume office in June.

The election of the new President by the Radcliffe Associates was after unanimous nomination by the Committee on Choice. This committee was composed of Mrs. S. Burt Wolbach, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Miss Sarah M. Dean, John F. Moors of the Harvard Fellows and Professor George H. Chase of Harvard and Radcliffe.

After the resignation of President Briggs last Fall this committee reported in favor of a full-time President for Radcliffe because the college had so grown as to require the entire time of both a Dean and a President. The committee further felt the relations between Harvard University and Radcliffe College were so firmly established as to no longer require as President a member of the Harvard faculty serving as a link between the two institutions. This made possible the consideration of women as well as men.

Miss Comstock since 1921 has been President of the American Association of University Women. She was born in Moorhead, Minn., and after studying for two years at the State University transferred to Smith College, where she was graduated with the class of 1897. In 1899 she received a Master's degree from Columbia University. She then returned to the University of Minnesota to teach and in 1909 became a Professor of English after a year of study at the Sorbonne.

As the first Dean of Women at Minnesota, Miss Comstock, although only 33 years of age, was credited with pioneer work in bringing to the fore the importance of college education for women. In September, 1912, she went to Smith College, which had never previously had a Dean. In that year Mount Holyoke conferred on her the honorary degree of Litt. D. The University of Michigan added an honorary degree of LL. D. in 1921.

President Briggs, in welcoming his successor in office, said:

"Miss Comstock has met all the demands of large administrative responsibilities in the higher education of women and has won the solid regard of all who know her. Along with her experience and her proved capacity she brings to her new office a well-earned reputation for reasonableness, integrity, wisdom and courage. Radcliffe is more than fortunate in securing her."

SAYS PRUSSIANS PLOT WAR.

Director on Americanism Warns the American Legion.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 14.—A revolution for the restoration of the Prussian monarchy, including the reinstatement of the Hohenzollerns, is impending in Germany under Von Hindenburg's leadership, in the opinion of Garland W. Powell, National Director of the Americanism Commission of the American Legion, who today issued a warning to all Americanism officers of the Legion to be on guard against German propaganda.

"The picture of Von Hindenburg is re-appearing in the American papers as it did in 1914," Mr. Powell stated. "He has been selected by the German monarchist party to rattle the sabre in the Kaiser style and bring about a coup d'état to restore the old régime. He has opened this campaign by calling for war with France, in his address to the German Veterans' League in Hanover yesterday. Hindenburg is still the hero of Germany and his reappearance is a menace to the peace of the world."

The American people do not realize, said Mr. Powell, that Germany can afford to spend millions for propaganda in America while refusing to pay reparations to France and the Allies on the pica of poverty.

"Germany today is in a better position for war than the world realizes," Mr. Powell declared. "But this German propaganda is being exerted to bring the American people to believe otherwise. The Americanism Commission of the Legion has information of the course of German propaganda efforts in this country for the last year. There are 30,000 Americans buried in France who fell in breaking the Hindenburg line in 1918. The American people will not forget this in reading Hindenburg's new threat of war."

WOMEN'S WORLD POLICY.

Conference of the Women's International League for Peace.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Formulation of a constructive program on "how the United States can help in the world crisis today" was the announced purpose of a conference opened here today by the American section of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. The Administration proposal for American participation in the world court established at The Hague under the League of Nations was included among subjects on the program for discussion during the three days' conference.

Announcement was made of the receipt of a cablegram from the international headquarters of the League at Geneva, expressing hope that the conference "may help direct the influence of the United States toward an international solution of the reparation problem."

Resumption of diplomatic relations with Russia was urged at a meeting last night of the League's committee for recognition of Russia.

Mrs. Lucy Biddle Lewis, National Chairman of the United States section of the League, in an address today told the delegates the belief prevailed in Europe that war was imminent unless France could be persuaded to change her course.

She also said the French occupation of the Ruhr appeared to international observers to be part of a scheme to divide Germany and set up a separate State in the industrial centre of the Ruhr and the Rhineland, which "of course would be managed by French industrials and under control of the French army."

Professor E. M. Patterson of the University of Pennsylvania was another speaker today, discussing "International Loans."

PLEAS FOR MINIMUM WAGE.

Six States Take Part in Arguments Before the Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Federal and State laws which would fix minimum wages to be received by women and children, regulate their hours of labor and prescribe working conditions were under attack today in the Supreme Court.

While the two cases before the court arose under an act of Congress relating to the District of Columbia, the thirteen States which have minimum wage laws recognized that the life of such legislation was at stake, and six of them—California, Kansas, New York, Oregon, Washington and Wisconsin—obtained permission, as friends of the court, to file briefs and participate in the oral argument.

The two cases were brought by the Children's Hospital and Willie A. Lyons against the Minimum Wage Board, challenging the constitutionality of the law on the ground that it abridged the freedom of contract for personal services and was beyond legislative power.

Minimum wage laws were defended as police regulations to promote the public health, safety, morals and welfare, and as within legislative discretion.

POINTS WAY TO LINK EMPLOYER AND MEN

Humanizing Conditions Will Crush Out Radicalism, Executive Declares.

STEADY JOBS A FACTOR

Foresight Will Keep Factories Going Steadily, Another Speaker Tells Personnel Association.

The way to check the growth of radicalism and to destroy such movements as the I. W. W. and Bolshevism is to give the workmen of any nation a chance to do the job themselves, according to Charles R. Hook, Vice President and General Manager of the American Rolling Mills Company, who yesterday addressed the National Personnel Association at a luncheon in the Bankers' Club. His theme was "The Human Side of Production Management," and he told of the benefits derived by his corporation from mutual interest of employe and employer. Howard Coonley, President of the Walworth Manufacturing Company, another speaker, endorsed the views of Mr. Hook and told of added profits to his company through a policy which insured the workmen continuous employment.

The meeting of the association was well attended and executives of more than 100 important industrial concerns were present. At the speakers' table were G. A. O'Reilly, Vice President of the Irving National Bank; E. K. Hall, Vice President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company; Gerard Swope, President of the General Electric Company; John A. Stevenson, Vice President of the Equitable Trust Company; Samuel A. Lewisohn, Vice President of the Miami Copper Company; W. W. Kincaid, President of the Spirella Company, Inc.; Henry Bruère, Vice President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; John McLeod, assistant to the President of the Carnegie Steel Company; C. L. Peck, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and Henry R. Towne, Chairman of the Board of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company.

Adequate Wage Incentive.

"I find too often," Mr. Hook said in his address, "that the chief executive of a company feels that it is not his responsibility to concern himself with the human side of the question of production, but to get a manager to take charge. This is a mistake, unless the manager is made fully responsible for that obligation. As for a rule in guiding his policy in such a case, I know of nothing better than for the man in charge to realize that other men feel much the same as he himself; that they are encouraged or discouraged by much the same causes, and that they will resent or respond to the same treatment much the same. All of us are alike—we all like to reward those who help us, and in this respect nothing can take the place of wage incentive.

"All men like to know the ways and wherefores of doing things. I find that by taking my young men into my confidence, by explaining to them why their father and mother do not think they should take the extra helping, by that I get more respect from them and more co-operation. In short, it is a matter of understanding, and neither men nor nations can do anything of constructive value until they have understanding. Men are square, and the vast majority of them will respond to a square deal. Tell them the problems of business and economics; take them into your confidence; explain away the mysteries of business; tell the whys and wherefores. Our own slogan is this: Whip the soap box orator with facts placed in the hands of the men. If we fail to do this, to so arm our men, then it is not for us while in repose to false prophet comes along and influences the men whom we should have with us."

Explains Continuous Employment.

Mr. Coonley discussed unemployment and how to avoid it. He told how his company had worked out a policy of continuous employment despite the seasonal fluctuation in the demand for goods, and said that the growth of the industry had been remarkable. To accomplish this, co-ordination, he explained, it was necessary for the company's officers to study future conditions and possibilities for at least one year in advance and to formulate a production program to meet the demand expected when the Autumn months should arrive, those months marking the peak of demand.

"Our difficulty was in finding a method of estimating sales in advance," he said. "Upon my original study I was amazed to find that we turned out 12,000 different finished products. By classification we grouped them into thirty-nine classes, and later reduced that grouping to fourteen. We then studied the seasonality of sales, and were surprised to find that fluctuations were very definite, coinciding accurately with the business cycles charted by two services. The first year that we adjusted ourselves to the new departure was in 1922, when we estimated that sales would run 40 per cent. above those of 1921. And at the end of the year we found the estimate very accurate, the actual increase having been 44 per cent.

"This policy enabled us to meet every requirement and to give man work for the whole year. This meant that we could promise continuous employment, could tell our purchasing agents what and when to buy and our financial department the amount that would be necessary in dollars and when. Production was more economical, the men were better satisfied and constantly on the job and efficiency all around was improved. The proper study of sales possibilities and market conditions and the correlation of the production program thereto will bring about the best results in industrial relationships. We know, and those of you who haven't tried it have been losing a big opportunity."

WILL AID RUSSIAN RELIEF.

Dr. Nansen of the League to Open American Commissariat Here.

Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, head of the League of Nations Commission for Russian Famine Relief, will open an American Commissariat in New York affiliated with the American Committee for the Relief of Russian Children. It will send food and clothing drafts from individuals in this country to persons in Russia and aid in sending general relief supplies, and take up much of the American Relief Administration's work in that connection.

Dr. Nansen's commission is concentrating on child feeding, medical supplies and the purchase of seed and stock and farm machinery for the economic reconstruction of Russia. Two million gold rubles' worth of farm machinery for the Ukraine has been given on credit to Russia by the Nansen commission.

AGAINST STATE INSURANCE.

Civitan Club Says Proposed Bill Will Stifle Competition.

The Lockwood committee bill to make workmen's compensation insurance a State monopoly is "contrary to the spirit of American institutions," according to a resolution adopted by the Civitan Club of New York.

The club is opposed to the measure for the reason that "the present system has worked satisfactorily, and for the further reason that the present system provides healthy competition between the State fund, private insurance companies and individual employers, whereas the proposed legislation would tend to stifle private initiative and to throttle competition, which is the life-blood of American business."

'KING TUT' APPEARS AT FLOWER SHOW

ROSES AGAIN AT FRONT

Mrs. H. McK. Twombly Gains First Prize for a Table Decorated With Blooms.

"King Tut" won a certificate of merit at the Flower Show yesterday. That would have been slight recognition for the great Egyptian King, creating a furor in the world at large today, but the Flower Show "King Tut" is a new sweet pea, a pretty delicate pink, in the W. Atlee Burpee gold medal collection, a healthy infant, but which may not survive the two years required to get the seeds on the market. The life of a new flower is uncertain.

Orchids also received special honors, the imported "Snowden," cultivated in England of the brasso-laelia variety, brought a gold medal to A. N. Cooley and another was given an exhibit of Odontoglossum shown by C. H. Totty. Although from England, this was named for the Princess Borghese, founder of the Girl Scouts in Italy, who visited the show yesterday. It is a nice little pinkish speckled orchid, the blossoms growing in sprays.

Mrs. Ernest B. Dane" is the name of the new orchid. It is a cypripedium, and it stands up sturdily in the great orchid collection in the northeast corner of the main floor of the Flower Show. It is not a great orchid, but any one engaged in raising flower children might well be proud of it.

Roses were again queen of the day at the show. There were wonderful exhibits by commercial growers on 300 feet of space, this containing from 500 to 1,000 cut roses, and that number of blossoms are worth looking at anywhere. While the judges may have points to consider in awarding prizes, the individuals would have given gold medals to all three of the exhibitors.

The roses were on the main floor, while upstairs roses were exhibited by private growers, on decorating dinner tables set for eight. On a table set with a regular dinner service there is not much chance for individuality in decoration. The main points are agreeability as concerned is to have the centre piece so placed that the guests look over or under the flowers. There were six exhibitors, and of these five had for their centre pieces very tall, slender vases which would carry the flowers over the heads of the guests when seated. The sixth had a low dish of roses for the centre piece.

Mrs. H. McK. Twombly of Convent Station, N. J., carried off first prize. She had pale yellow Ophelia roses in a 24-inch tall, slender silver vase, four small flower holders at the sides. There were more roses at the base of the tall vase and variegated ferns, green and ecru were used for foliage. Mrs. Percy Chubb of Glen Cove, L. I., who carried off second prize, had a similar tall, slender vase for the centre piece and four small vases of roses at the sides, but her roses were pink. Mme. Butterflus and she used maidenhair fern for foliage.

Mrs. Edward Holbrook of Stamford, Conn., received third prize for the table decoration, warm yellow tea roses, the Sunburst, the roses in the centre of her table being but little higher than those in the small vases at the sides. She, too, used maidenhair fern, which, in different varieties was used by most of the table decorators. Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, L. I.; Mrs. A. Fletcher, Green Cove, N. Y., and Mrs. Ridley Watts of Morristown, N. J., had the tall centre vases and pale yellow and pink roses. Mrs. Watts had an attractive decoration of roses at the base of her centre piece.

Flowers which have been highly commended each day at the show, but which receive no official comment, being on canvas, are the paintings of Blondella Malone, American garden painter, in the tea room. These are all scenes from France—the Roseraie de la Hay, the Roseraie de Beaucallon, with its rose-covered wall, and flowers in the Luxembourg Gardens.

Today will be a busy one in the tea garden, with a luncheon at noon for the entire Executive Board of the National Council of Girl Scouts, headed by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the Secretary of Commerce. The prospective Girl Scout leaders of the Junior League will assist in the luncheon. This includes the Misses Muriel Vanderbilt, Margaret Clark McMillan, Julia Quaintance, Constance Cutler, Mary Steers, Betty Read, Margery Devereaux Andrews, Celia Baldwin, Mary Alice Barney, Barbara Brown, Betty Condon and Clarissa Halstead Stem. During the tea hours the Board of Directors of the Garden Club of America will be guests of Miss Marion Coffin in the tea garden.

There were only two classes in the regular judging list yesterday, but many special awards were made. They are listed as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. B. Marvin Corlette of Garden City, L. I., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Katherine Corlette, to Allen Cooper Diefendorf, son of Dr. and Mrs. Allen Ross Diefendorf of New Haven, Conn., which took place last Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Dr. Oscar F. R. Treder officiated. After a short honeymoon the couple will make their home in this city, where Mr. Diefendorf is connected with the firm of Clift & Goodrich.

Miss Rudolph to Wed Winthrop Burr

Mrs. William Henry Rudolph of 399 Hancock Street, Brooklyn, announced yesterday at a luncheon she gave at Pierre, the engagement of her daughter, Miss Natalie Rudolph, to Winthrop Burr Jr., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Burr of Lawrence, L. I. Mr. Burr, who was graduated from Harvard in 1918, served in the war, and for some time was at Rock Ridge Ranch, Col. He is a brother of Mrs. Albert B. Kerr and of Mrs. Alfred Ely. No date has been mentioned for the marriage.

Miss Hope Palmer Betrothed.

Mrs. Francis Deming Hoyt of Pinehurst, Lakewood, N. J., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Hope Palmer, to Robert Larkin Brooks of Los Angeles, Cal. Miss Palmer is a daughter of the late Tyler Palmer of this city and New London, Conn., and is a graduate of the Ethel Walker School in Simsbury, Conn. Mr. Brooks is a son of Eugene Denton Brooks of Boston. He is a graduate of Yale, class of '12, and he served overseas for two years during the war as a Captain in the field artillery.

Miss Frances Jackson a Bride.

The marriage of Miss Frances Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Jackson of 215 West Ninety-second Street, and Dr. M. Montefiore Bettman of Portland, Ore., took place yesterday at the Commodore. The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise performed the ceremony in the presence of a few relatives and friends. After an extended honeymoon in the South and California, the couple will make their home in Portland.

Spinsters Dance Monday Night.

The Spinsters, a group of Spence School alumnae, will hold the first of a series of dances for the benefit of various charities at Pierre's on Monday night. Among those who will take part in the cabaret are Miss Janavince Kerens, who will dance the Bambino; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hodgeman Jr. in an ultra-modern dance, and Miss Frances McCoon, singing "Getting Darker on Old Broadway," assisted by a chorus including the Misses Margaret McMillin, Betty Stong, Emily Wright, Elise Schreiber, Natalie Hana and others. Cortez and Peggy, who are dancing at the Ambassador, have offered their services for a special number. Miss Peggy Stout is in charge of the entire program.

Supper Club Parties.

Among those who entertained parties at the Wednesday Supper Club dance at the Lorraine last night were Miss Elisabeth Bailey, Mrs. George Allen Fuller, who had six guests; Frederic Dudley Kohler, who entertained the Misses Dolores Carrillo, Dorothy Rose and Mary A. Van Elis, and John Monroe and James P. Kohler Jr., and Ellery Anderson. Mrs. Paul Ladenburg had twelve guests, and at Miss Madeleine Liebert's table were Mr. and Mrs. J. Gibson Maupin and Dr. Gilman Currier.

"Aida" to Be Sung for Milk Fund.

Boxes may be obtained from Mrs. Nelson H. Henry at the Hall of Records, 31 Chambers Street, and tickets may be had at the box office.

CLEWS DESIRED WILL GIVING WIFE MORE

DOCUMENT FILED IS BRIEF

21 Employes Remembered and Residuary Estate Left Equally to Widow, Son and Daughter.

The will of Henry Clews was filed for probate in the Surrogates' Court yesterday by the law firm of his son-in-law, Herbert Parsons. While the value of the estate was not disclosed in the petition accompanying the will, the document gives the executors, consisting of Mr. Parsons, Henry Clews Jr., son, and James B. Clews, nephew, permission "to leave with the firm of Henry Clews & Co. an amount of money to be determined by my executors, but which shall not be less than $250,000 or more than $1,000,000, as a contribution to the capital of said firm." A pencilled note opposite this clause suggests that this amount be set aside as a future interest in the firm of his grandson.

Mr. Clews, who died on Jan. 31 last, made no charitable bequests. His brief will left to twenty-one employes of his banking house and family servants bequests ranging from $200 to $2,500, according to length of service. The residuary estate is left in trust, in third each going to the widow, Lucy Madison Worthington Clews; Elsie Clews Parsons, daughter, and Henry Clews Jr., son. Mr. Parsons said that no bequests were made to charity because of Mr. Clews's gifts during his lifetime.

Along the margin of the will, and on a blank page following the signatures, are penciled notations that make it apparent that Mr. Clews was considering a redraft of the document. One such marginal note suggests leaving his town house and the Newport home to his wife, in addition to her share in the residuary estate. Another, on the final page, speaks of his executors serving without bond at a fee of $10,000 each. Then he says, as if he had already executed the new will: "I have left two-thirds of my estate to my wife, as she is equally fond of all my grandchildren. So while she is living she will be willing to treat them all alike, equitably and justly, and based upon their merits; anr the latter is left open to her good judgment and discretion." He apparently planned to divide his estate into sixths, instead of thirds, leaving two-thirds to his wife and one-sixth each to his son and daughter. There is no date among these penciled notes.

The heirs who have a contingent interest in the trust funds created are Elsie P. Patterson and her son, Rufus L. Patterson, the only great-grandchild; John E. Parsons, Herbert Parsons Jr., Llewellyn Parsons, Henry Clews 3d, Louise Morris Clews and M. Whelen Clews.

RENE DE FONTENILLIAT WEDS MISS TUROT

Bridegroom Is Nephew of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont—Marriage Is in Municipal Chapel.

Miss Emma Elesa Tourot, who resides at 123 East Fifty-seventh Street, and Rene Gaston de Fontenilliat, son of the late Baroness Julia de Fontenilliat, a sister of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, were married yesterday by Deputy City Clerk T. J. McCormick in the chapel of the Municipal Building.

When they made application for their marriage license, the bride gave her age as 31 and Mr. de Fontenilliat said he was 30.

Mr. de Fontenilliat's mother died in 1907, six years after her divorce from her husband.

When he was 14 years old, his aunt, Miss Armide Vogel Smith, died and left a will in which she stipulated that he should receive half of her estate of $105,000, provided he lived a model life for thirteen years. In case of default this bequest was to go to the Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

His aunt was one of the four famous sister beauties of Mobile, Ala. Julia became the Baroness de Fontenilliat, Alva wed W. H. Vanderbilt and later O. H. P. Belmont, Mimi became Mrs. Fernandez Yznaga and later Mrs. Tiffany.

PLAY BY MRS. BELMONT.

Winthrop Ames Will Produce Her First Work Next Fall.

A play by Mrs. August Belmont will be produced by Winthrop Ames next Fall. The play, based on a detective story by Burton E. Stevenson, was written in collaboration with Harriet Ford, author of a number of plays produced here in past seasons.

The new play will mark Mrs. Belmont's début as a playwright, but will in no way bring her into an atmosphere she has never known. As Eleanor Robson Mrs. Belmont was a prominent and popular actress.

Arrange for Children's Plays.

Persons active in the theatre and art world are co-operating in the arranging of a series of children's plays to be given at the Children's Theatre of the Heckscher Foundation, Fifth Avenue and 105th Street, for the benefit of the babies' clothing fund of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The first of these plays, "Snickerty Nick," by Julia Ellsworth Ford and Witter Bynner, will be given at the Children's Theatre on Saturday, March 24, at 2:30 and 8:30 P. M. The performances will be under the auspices of the School of Play and Recreation headed by Madeline L. Stevens. May Pashley Harris will direct the play, the scenery and costumes for which have been designed and executed in the arts and crafts workshop of the school, which is located in the Children's Theatre.

Whalens Have a Daughter.

A daughter was born yesterday to Mrs. Grover A. Whalen, wife of Commissioner Whalen of the Department of Plant and Structures. Mrs. Whalen is at the Sloane Hospital for Women in West Fifty-ninth Street, and the announcement made at the Commissioner's office added that the youngster weighed seven pounds and that Mrs. Whalen was doing nicely. Mrs. Whalen is the daughter of Mrs. Hugh Kelly of 30 Washington Square West. There are two other children in the Whalen family, Mary, aged eight, and Grover Jr., aged two.

Wilson Aids Soldier-Grave Fund.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 14.—Woodrow Wilson, commander in chief of the members of the American Legion during the World War, was the first prominent war leader to contribute to the legion's $100,000 endowment fund, which will provide for the yearly decoration of the 32,000 graves of America's war dead in Europe. Receipt of the former President's contribution to the fund was announced at the national headquarters of the legion here today.

Women Contest for Trip to France.

A carnival at which young women will be selected as winners of the Good-Will Election, conducted by the American Committee for Devastated France, will be held at Madison Square Garden March 17. The winners will be sent on a trip to France. Martin W. Littleton will preside and speak. Major Gen. John J. O'Ryan also will speak.

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

The Schola Cantorum.

For the second concert of the Schola Cantorum, which was given in Carnegie Hall last evening, Mr. Schindler had made as many recondite explorations in the byways of music as he usually does, and they led him far afield, with some interesting results, and others that were less interesting. He began with the old masters, madrigals and part songs by Jannequin, Thoinot Arbeau, the dancing master; Costeley, Palestrina, Prince Gesualdo de Venosa—music that is delightful and of which, as was not unnatural, a madrigal by Palestrina seemed to rise highest. It was interesting to hear, as well as charming; for such of Palestrina's music as is heard is generally for the Church.

But the minds of the audience did not seem to be attuned to any of these works, and they got but languid applause. The chorus sang well in them, however, and generally through the concert, at its best with freshness, vigor, and a fine vocal color.

Nearer to the modern way of thinking and hearing music were the five songs for mixed voices by Brahms, Op. 104; music that is among the finest utterances of its kind: "Night Vigil," the "Last Happiness" and the "In Autumn," being of a profound and sombre beauty of idea and written with an extraordinary skill in vocal effects. In these, and especially in the "In Autumn," the chorus did perhaps its best singing. Yet some may have thought that a different conception of the second, "Night Vigil," a more self-contained and less sonorous one, would have expressed its significance better. These songs were highly appreciated and much applauded.

The most applause was gained by a series of Italian folk songs for soprano, women's chorus and piano, collected and harmonized by Geni Sadero. They are from different parts of Italy and embody a diversity of spirit, though they are mostly gay, and they are of striking beauty and individuality of expression. Miss Anna Case was to sing the solos in these songs, but she was suddenly indisposed, and her place was taken at twenty-four hours' notice by Miss Dusolina Giannini, a pupil of Mme. Sembrich, who then made her first public appearance.

Of course, everybody was sorry that Miss Case was sick; but everybody enjoyed Miss Giannini's singing mightily. The voice is one of beautiful and peculiarly rich timbre and the singer's use of it is admirable and full of a native fire and spirit of a tune that cannot be taught. She sang the songs with a freedom and a confidence and a certainty that would have been notable in any singer, and were little less than extraordinary for one in her position. Something more should be heard from Miss Giannini before long.

A series of Norwegian folk songs and dances for men's chorus, set by Grieg, Op. 30, was something of a disappointment. The music of most of them is rather dull; the "freshness" the commentators find in them was to seek. They are all humorous, the humor reaching its climax in the "miauing" of the "Cat Story." In these songs solo parts were taken by Messrs. Carl Schlegel, baritone, and Charles Stratton, tenor. Mr. Schlegel and the chorus seemed strangely uncertain of the pitch in many places.

Mr. Schindler seems to possess the field of Spanish music in America as his own by right of discovery and preemption. He entered upon it again with four Spanish choruses, one of them "La Sardana de las Monjas," having been sung by the chorus six years ago. The others were two Easter songs and a serenade arranged after Spanish folk song by Mr. Schindler. A small chorus of children from the Union Benefica Espanola assisted in these.

4,000 AT CHALIAPIN ADIEU.

Russian Artist and Michael Bohnen Exchange Friendly Tokens.

Mr. Chaliapin as the Czar in "Boris Godunoff" took his leave of the opera at yesterday's special Metropolitan matinee before an audience of close on 4,000 persons, one of whom went back stage to present to him an emerald ring in token of a fellow artist's admiration. Michael Bohnen, the latest newcomer, and, like the giant Russian, a bass-baritone, was the singer so moved by Chaliapin's performance.

"I count my heartfelt homage," said the German artist. "I wonder if he would accept this ring, given to me years ago by generous admirers in Berlin?"

Mr. Bohnen was escorted to Chaliapin's dressing room, where the two men embraced in Continental fashion. The Russian took the ring, put it on his great hand, and exclaimed, "You must accept a souvenir from me in return."

Taking a heavy gold watch-chain from his coat, Chaliapin brought it eagerly to Bohnen and the pair embraced again as they bade each other good-bye.

The matinee cast, with Gordon, Delaunois, Rizz, Schlegel and others, was a familiar one, under Bodanzky's direction. Last night "Madame Butterfly" was sung by Sabanieva, Gigli and Scotti, Moranzoni conducting.

HENRY MILLER IN 'PASTEUR'

Performance Is Given to Aid the Academy of Medicine Fund.

Members of the Academy of Medicine and their friends attended last night a benefit performance of "Pasteur," given by Henry Miller and his company at the Empire Theatre. Mr. Miller gave the performance to aid the fund that has been started by the Academy to raise $250,000 to carry out an arrangement with the Rockefeller Foundation and the Carnegie Corporation for the building and equipping of a new building at 1 Park Avenue and Sixtieth Street.

Mr. Miller and Dr. Edmund L. Keyes Jr. made short addresses after the second act. Dr. Keyes read a message of regret from Ambassador Jusserand, who said that he had not sufficiently recovered from a recent illness to attend. Some $50,000 has already been pledged, Dr. Keyes told the audience.

Physicians associated with the Academy, members of their families and others interested in the Academy's work filled the Empire Theatre to the doors. The physicians were keenly appreciative of the performance of Mr. Miller and his supporting cast and called them back for many curtain calls.

"Goetterdaemmerung" Is Sung.

"Goetterdaemmerung" was sung in the Wagner Festival Company's supplemental season at the Lexington Theatre last evening, when Mr. Urius reappeared in his rôle as Siegfried and Miss Alden as Brunnhilde in the concluding tragedy of "The Nibelung's Ring" cycle. Mmes. Metzger-Koettel, Easdale, Meador and Kipnis were among a dozen other singers in the cast, and Mr. Moerike conducted. Tonight "Tannhaeuser" will be repeated.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Loyalties" will leave the Gaiety Theatre on March 31 and open a few days later at Powers Theatre, Chicago. Cyril Maude, in the dramatization of "If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson and Basil Macdonald Hastings, will move into the Gaiety on April 2.

Mary Young will play Katherine and John Craig Petruchio in "The Taming of the Shrew" at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre Sunday evening, April 1, at a benefit for the American Field Service Fellowships that provide free scholarships for men in French universities. Others on the program will be Peggy Wood in a series of songs, Ernest Glendenning in a scene from "The School for Scandal," Polly Jo Marcosa, Ida Miller and Mattie Keene. M. Clemenceau has turned over $20,000 to the fund.

"Within Four Walls," a comedy drama by Glen MacDonough, will open in Springfield, Mass., on April 2.

Galina Kopernak has been engaged by Louis H. Kaplan for "The Wasp," by Thomas Fallon, which opens at the Morosco Theatre March 26.

"The Silent Assertion," a play in four acts, by Butler Davenport, will be produced by the Free Theatre at the Bramhall Playhouse on March 21.

MOURN DR. DAY.

Bells Are Tolled and Flags Half-Masted on Syracuse Campus.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 14.—Tolling of the fire bell at 9 o'clock this morning and flags at half mast on the City Hall and on the Syracuse University campus announced that city and university were mourning the death of the Rev. Dr. James Roscoe Day, preacher, writer and for twenty-nine years Chancellor of the university.

Funeral services for Dr. Day, who died last night at Atlantic City, probably will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at Crouse College. Definite arrangements will be completed tomorrow. The body arrived in Syracuse tonight and was taken to the family home.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 14.—Governor Smith today expressed his regret at the death of Chancellor James R. Day, former head of Syracuse University, and issued the following statement:

"It is with deep regret that the State of New York learns of the death of Chancellor Day, for many years at the head of Syracuse University. He was a vigorous and forceful character and his death is a distinct loss."

Dr. G. Frank Lydston.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 14.—Dr. G. Frank Lydston, famous surgeon, physician and author, died at his residence here early today from pneumonia. He was one time professor of medicine at the University of Illinois and is said to have been one of the first to realise the possibilities of gland transplanting. He was 65 years of age.

For a time Dr. Lydston served as resident physician in the Charity and State Emigrant Hospitals in New York. He was born in New York City and was graduated from Bellevue Medical College in 1879. Among his writings were novels, medical works and travel books.

Fred H. Goff, Banker.

CLEVELAND, March 14.—Fred H. Goff, 65 years old, President of the Cleveland Trust Company and prominent in financial circles throughout the country, died in a hospital here late today from complications following an operation for appendicitis last Friday. Mr. Goff, a lawyer, became President of the trust company fifteen years ago.

Mrs. Josephine Hays Brickner.

Mrs. Josephine Hays Brickner died after a lingering illness yesterday morning at the Hotel Bellecliare, Broadway and Seventy-seventh Street. Mrs. Brickner was the widow of Dr. Samuel M. Brickner. She is survived by her sons, Richard M. and Frank H. Brickner, and her mother, Mrs. Babette Hays. She was the sister of Mrs. Marcus Straus of New York, Mrs. Bernard Rothschild of Rochester and Walter Hays of Buffalo. Funeral services will take place in Rochester this afternoon.

Briand Adviser Dead.

PARIS, March 14.—Dr. Alfred Chatin, personal friend and political adviser of Premier Briand, died today. Dr. Chatin accompanied M. Briand to all the interallied conferences as well as to the Washington armaments conference. He was regarded as a man of shrewd common sense and is regarded to have been one of the real influences in contemporary affairs during the Briand Premiership. His extreme modesty kept him far in the background.

The Rev. Joseph R. Heffernan.

The Very Rev. Joseph R. Heffernan, O. P., until last June, for six years pastor of St. Vincent Ferrer's Church, Lexington Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, this city, died of pneumonia yesterday in St. Mary's Hospital at Orange, N. J. He was 52 years old.

RETURNS TO OLD JOB IN BANK, ENDS LIFE

ACCOUNTS FOUND STRAIGHT

Had Been Ill of Influenza During Change of Positions, but Was Believed to Have Recovered.

Resigning after one day's work as paying teller in a Bronx bank to resume his old job as clerk in a branch of the Chase National Bank at 320 Broadway, A. Russell Kaster, 30 years old, exchanged greetings with other employes when he reached his desk about 8 o'clock yesterday morning and then went to the basement and ended his life with a revolver shot. Kaster was dead when Dr. Scott Rutherford of the Beekman Street Hospital arrived.

J. A. Oberkarick and Albert Low, two fellow clerks who had heard the shot, said Kaster had put on his thin office coat upon arriving at the bank. They believed he had taken the revolver from his desk and that he had placed it there on the previous day. A dented cartridge next to the exploded shell indicated that the pistol misfired on his first attempt and he had pulled the trigger a second time.

For twelve years Kaster had been employed in the Metropolitan Bank, which was acquired several years ago by the Chase National Bank, and he had since continued in the Broadway Branch, which was formerly the Shoe and Leather Bank. Recently he resigned, saying he expected a more advantageous position in the Cosmopolitan Bank, at 803 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx.

C. J. Kellenberg of the Cosmopolitan Bank said that Kaster began work there on March 5 as paying teller, and that on the following day at noon he surprised the officials by announcing that the work and responsibilities there appeared too severe for his state of health. Kaster said he wanted to return to his old job. He applied for it and was reinstated two days ago. This statement was issued at the main office of the Chase National Bank, 57 Broadway:

"A. R. Kaster, who committed suicide in the washroom of the Shoe and Leather Branch of the Chase National Bank this morning, resigned on Feb. 28 to accept a position with the Cosmopolitan Bank. Two days ago he asked for reinstatement in his old position, which was granted. We know of no reason for the suicide. His accounts were examined and found correct when he resigned from the bank, and we have every confidence in his character."

Kaster lived with his wife, infant child and his mother at 278 West 120th Street. Mrs. Emma Kaster said her husband appeared to be in normal cheerfulness when he left his home in the morning. His motive for his act, she said, was as much a mystery to his family as it was to his bank associates. Mrs. Kaster said that the only possible explanation of it might be found in the fact that her husband was ill with influenza for a week, during the interval of his change of positions, but that he had apparently recovered.

3 TISBOS INDICTED; WARRANTS ISSUED

WORLD-WIDE SEARCH IS ON

Receiver of Agency to Which $2,000,000 Was Entrusted Testifies That Safes Were Empty.

The three Tisbo brothers, Vincenso, Vito and Francesco, who disappeared last week with money estimated at $2,000,000 entrusted to them by 50,000 Italian immigrants, were indicted yesterday afternoon by the February additional Grand Jury. Two indictments against the three brothers were returned before Judge Otto A. Rosalsky in General Sessions. One charges the Tisbos with grand larceny in the first degree and the other grand larceny in the second degree. Bench warrants immediately were issued for their arrest. The signing of the warrants marked the beginning of a worldwide search for the partners in the steamship ticket agency of Vincenzo Tisbo & Bros., 121 Mott Street.

A speed record probably was established by the indictments. The Grand Jury was not called until Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock. Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, Chief of the Indictment Bureau, was engaged in drawing the true bills while the evidence in the case was being laid before the Grand Jury by Assistant District Attorney Frank E. Carstarphen.

The indictments, signed by the jurors at 4:30 o'clock, have not been made public. It is understood, however, that one indictment is based on the complaint of Gaetano Porsio, a coal and ice dealer who lives at 484 Central Avenue, West Hoboken. Porsio and the Tisbos were boys together in Italy. Porsio gave the brothers $5,300 for safe keeping and investment. Miss Bertha Rembaugh, appointed by Judge A. N. Hand receiver for the ticket agency following the filing of two petitions in involuntary bankruptcy, went before the Grand Jury to explain that practically no assets had been found in the three Tisbo safes, while her accountants continued to work on the agency books.

Another witness was Henry Gargiulio, a steamship agent. Dominick Accetta, former bookkeeper of the Tisbos, also was called, as were patrons of the ticket agency.

After a representative of the Navigazione Generale Italiana, with local offices at 1 State Street, had appeared at the office of the District Attorney, it was disclosed that Francesco Tisbo and his wife, who sailed last Thursday on the Italian steamship Taormina, had obtained their tickets through the agency. The stubs of their tickets, detached when they boarded the ship, were turned over to Mr. Carstarphen by Mr. Gargiulio, manager of the cabin department of the steamship company. Mr. Carstarphen said he was convinced that neither of the other brothers sailed on the Taormina.

To find out if possible on what other ships, if any, Vincenzo and Vito Tisbo sailed, is the object of an investigation now under way, according to Mr. Carstarphen, who said:

"On the walls of the Tisbo office are signs indicating that their ticket agency represented about fourteen different steamship lines, most of them going direct to Italy. We want to see if the Tisbos sold themselves any of the tickets of the companies they represent."

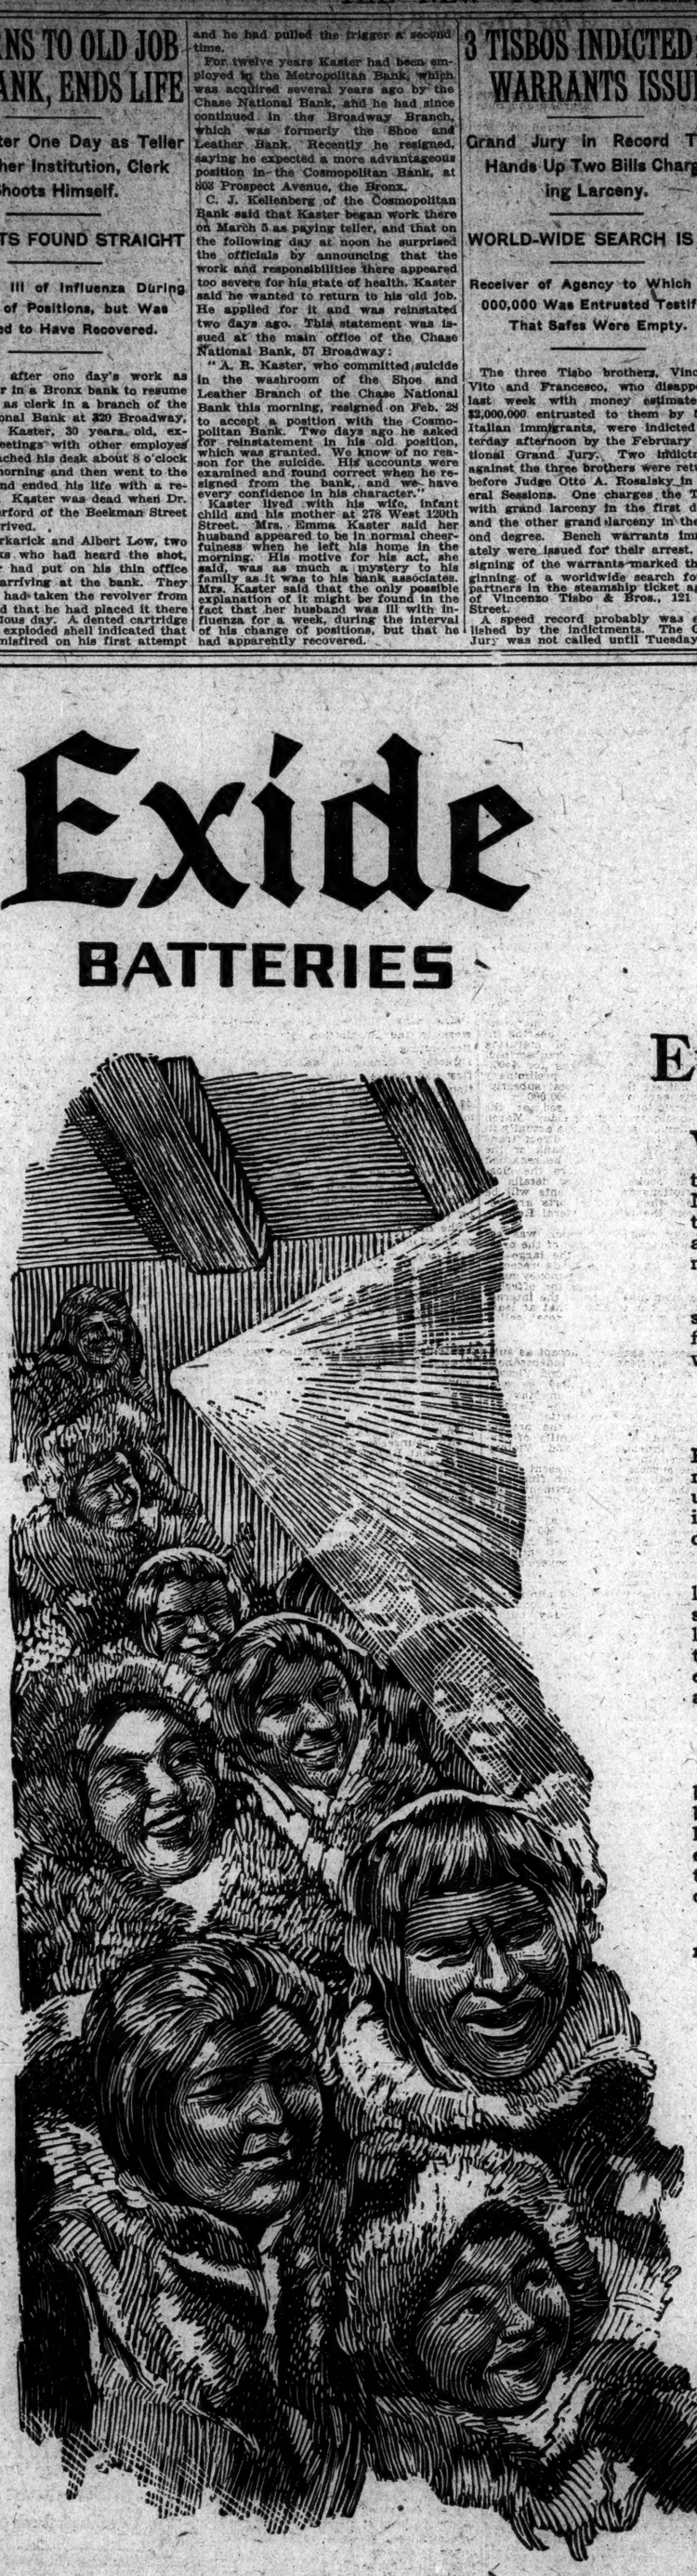
Exide BATTERIES



Even the Eskimos!

WHEN Donald MacMillan returned from his recent expedition to Baffin Land, he told of many ways that Exide Batteries had served him in the frozen North, such as for radio, electric lights, ignition for the oil-burning engine. But most appealing of all was an Exide's supply of current for the moving picture machine.

The Eskimos came aboard the ice-bound ship and sat transfixed with wonder as they watched their first "movie," occasionally voicing their amazement with a guttural "Ke-pee" (wonderful).

Wherever batteries are used

Amundsen also has with him in the Arctic a powerful Exide Battery for radio and electric lighting. The rugged dependability that makes Exides stand up under the most trying conditions has brought them into general use wherever great reliance must be put on a battery.

Nearly all the huge batteries in central power and lighting stations are Exides, as are most of those which supply current for the small individual power and light plants on farms. Exides propel submarines under the sea and mine locomotives under the surface of the earth. They provide current for the telephone system and ring the city fire alarm.

For every man who owns a car

You don't go on Arctic voyages or install fire alarms, but you do from time to time have to buy a new battery for your automobile. Exides give the same kind of ungrudging service in cars that they do in every other field. By choosing an Exide you choose the maximum comfort in motoring, and also true economy, because the Exide lasts so much longer.

The Elm Garden Apartments

Jackson Heights

with electric elevators and every convenience

In interior planning the individual apartments reflect full appreciation of the comfort needs and living requirements of the modern family. The fine Colonial living room, with its log-burning fireplace, adjoins the dining room, which in turn opens directly into the sun parlor. Thrown together they give you a splendid suite of rooms for entertaining.

The sun parlor is a delightful feature. Its three great French windows overlook the landscaped garden. The kitchen is scientifically planned and equipped to eliminate steps and simplify work. Every room is an outside room.

These delightful garden apartment homes of 5 and 6 rooms, 2 bathrooms, are offered on the Jackson Heights Plan of Tenant-Ownership on liberal terms to those with acceptable business and social references.

Residents at Jackson Heights have the facilities of the golf course, tennis courts, children's playgrounds, gardens, etc.

If you are paying $1800. to $3000. a year rent, half of it goes in the landlord's bank account. Under the Jackson Heights Plan of Tenant-Ownership you pay from $1800. to $3000. a year and half of it applies to the ownership of the apartment. Let us tell you about it.

ADOPT RELIEF PLANS FOR POST OFFICE HERE

MONEY GRANT IS LIMITED.

And the Congestion Is Made Worse by 'Tremendous Spurt' in Business.

ALL FACILITIES ARE TAXED

Postmaster General New Reports Postal Business in 50 Cities Is 50 Per Cent. Above 1922.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—As a result of conferences over the telephone today between John H. Bartlett, First Assistant Postmaster General, and Postmaster Morgan arrangements were made to relieve the congested postal situation in Manhattan and the Bronx without carrying into effect all the contemplated curtailments of service which appeared yesterday to be necessary.

Ninety-two clerks of the railway mail service will be assigned to the New York Post Office to assist in the handling of mail. The suggestion of Postmaster Morgan to effect economy by closing all stamp, money order and inquiry windows in postal stations in New York and the Bronx, except at the General Post Office and the City Hall branch, at 6 o'clock, will not be carried into effect. Mr. Morgan told Mr. Bartlett that these windows could be kept open until 8 o'clock for the balance of the Government fiscal year, or until June 30, by an addition of $3,000 to the present allotment, and he was authorized to expend $68,000 instead of the $65,000 allowed.

It was said at the Post Office Department, however, that it will be necessary to curtail mail deliveries in residential sections of Manhattan and the Bronx by one delivery. In residential districts of Manhattan and the lower part of the Bronx the usual four deliveries will be reduced to three. It may be necessary to reduce the number of deliveries in the business districts from six to five. To meet the situation most, if not all, of the 1,800 substitute carriers and clerks employed in New York will be furloughed or placed on part time.

Whole Country Affected.

Department officials said the situation which has made these curtailments necessary prevails throughout the country and post offices generally would be required to put economies into effect for the rest of the fiscal year, when new appropriations will be available. It was explained, however, that, on account of the importance of New York as the principal business centre and the gateway for foreign mail, every effort would be made to give that city preferential treatment in making the necessary economies.

According to Postmaster General New and other officials, the situation is unprecedented and could not have been foreseen in its entirety. In a formal statement given to the press by the Postmaster General this afternoon he said:

"The truth is that the volume of business which has been committed to the Post Office Department during the last few weeks has increased with such unheard of and unanticipated rapidity that the department has been taxed to the limit, and even beyond its capacity, to meet the unprecedented need."

This condition of business activity extends throughout the United States. The department felt its effects during the Christmas season and immediately thereafter. Throughout January the increase in postal business kept up, and there was an additional increase in February.

A deficiency appropriation bill to meet the additional expenditure necessitated by the great spurt in postal business was passed in the closing hours of the Congress, and it was believed this would enable the department to keep fairly well abreast of the emergency. But since then there has been a spurt in business throughout the country so tremendous that the appropriation is unable to take care of it.

Parcel post business has taken a tremendous spurt lately. Post Office officials said today this indicated great commercial activity. It was also stated that the volume of mail matter had increased so much that carriers were hardly able to complete their regular trips on time, and that curtailment of the number of trips was really justified by physical necessity, and not alone by lack of money.

New Explains Situation.

The statement issued by the Postmaster General today was directed primarily to complaints from New York of the contemplated curtailment of service. The statement follows:

"Articles appearing in some of the newspapers published within the last day or two indicate some misapprehension on the part of the public concerning the purposes of the Post Office Department with reference to the curtailment of service.

"The truth is that the volume of business which has been committed to the Post Office Department during the last few weeks has increased with such unheard-of and unanticipated rapidity that the department has been taxed to the limit, and even beyond its capacity, to meet the unprecedented need.

"The business of the country has never expanded with such suddenness and to such extent as it has within the last few weeks. Reports from the fifty largest cities for the month of January show an increase over the corresponding month of last year of about 20 per cent., and the indications all are that this rate still continues."

"There is nothing remarkable about the fact that neither the Post Office Department, the Appropriations Committees of Congress, nor the officers of the budget, anticipated any such growth, for, as before remarked, it is without precendent in the commercial history of the country.

"In this situation the Post Office Department finds itself called upon to all but perform the impossible. It has had to do the best it could to meet the demands of a great emergency. It may be necessary to forego some things that the department would great like to do until the next year's appropriations are available, July 1; but there will be no material curtailment of service, and no more hardship worked upon employes than is unavoidable in any great business in times of extraordinary business demand. There has been no reduction in rates of pay, although we have had to discontinue overtime to a great extent.

"There is no policy to make up a deficiency at the expense of the service or at the sacrifice of comfort of its employes, to whom every possible consideration has been shown, and any talk to that effect is without foundation."

The deficiency appropriation made by Congress amounted to $4,800,000, immediately available. The bill became a law on March 4. A month before that time curtailment of allowances for postal workers in San Francisco, Detroit, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul, Minneapolis and several other cities had been ordered on account of lack of funds. This caused serious delays in handling and delivering all classes of mail. Increase in the volume of mail by about 18 per cent. added to the difficulties of the postal service.

MAIL CUT HITS TAXPAYERS.

Money-Order Windows Won't Be Kept Open Late.

This city will begin to feel the pinch of the postal retrenchments tonight, when the money order and registry windows in the branch Post Offices are closed promptly at 8 o'clock, instead of remaining open until a late hour, as in other years, for the convenience of those who had postponed paying their income taxes. The reason for the change this year is that there will be no money available to pay the clerks for overtime.

Postmaster E. M. Morgan yesterday received permission from Washington to change the first ruling of the Post Office Department—that the stamp, money order and inquiry windows in this city should be closed regularly at 6 o'clock in the evening instead of 8 o'clock—so that these windows will now remain open until 8 o'clock every evening, as in the past. But there will be no extra money for the payment of overtime on special dates, as, for example, today.

Though the Post Office Department has withdrawn its original order affecting the finance windows in the offices here, the cutting down of the expenses on the delivery of mail must be carried out, at least until the end of the present fiscal year on June 30. The Superintendents of the various branches in the city are now studying the schedules and the rearrangements will be made next week.

John J. Kiely, Assistant Postmaster here, said this rearrangement would not affect the regular staff materially, though it would mean that there might be less work for those who have been substituting. The lightest deliveries will be dropped and the mail put into bags for the next delivery. He said this did not mean that the last delivery of the day would be cut, but probably one in the middle of the day. Routes calling for six deliveries a day under the present schedules will be cut to five, and so on down the line.

DRY LEAGUE SCOFFS AT STALEY DECISION

Counsel Says Ruling That It Is Political Won't 'Expose' General Contributors.

Edgar T. Brackett, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of this State in the proceeding in Albany which ended when Justice Staley of the Supreme Court declared the league to be a political organization, issued a statement yesterday in which he forecast an appeal from that decision. The statement said:

"As to Judge Staley's order, no friend of the league need be disturbed, even if it should be sustained in all its parts. This will have not the slightest effect in exposing the names of those who contribute to the organization for its general work.

"I think that we shall review the decision by an appeal. It is important that the line of distinction between an educational institution, functioning twelve months of the year, with a single specific purpose in mind, on the one hand, and a mere sporadic political committee on the other, be quite distinctly established. So I suspect that the Court of Appeals must finally be asked to decide the questions involved.

"At the risk of the charge of undue boldness, I must record my thorough assent to one proposition of the learned Justice—that where in substance he says that publicity never hurt a good cause and has defeated many a bad one. The Anti-Saloon League is, and has been from the beginning, conducting its open warfare with powerful enemy. I never knew a night attack against an enemy (and night attacks are usually necessary in war) to be much helped by the presence of a brass band, and many a duck because he made too much noise. William H. Anderson, Superintendent of the league, also issued a statement in which he said that "the howl of joy from the vets over the Supreme Court decision, which they believe will hamstring the Anti-Saloon League, is the finest testimonial the league has ever received."

Acting District Attorney Ferdinand I. Pecora said yesterday that the Grand Jury's inquiry into the bill for $24,700 for "confidential publicity promotion" which Mr. Anderson submitted to the league in 1918, would be resumed next week, and that he expected that William Milton Potter, formerly Assistant Treasurer of the league under Mr. Anderson, would be the next witness. Mr. Pecora added that the scope of the inquiry would be broadened because of developments since the last session of the Grand Jury, but refused to discuss those developments.

GUILD COMMITTEE NAMED.

Arnold Bennett Sends Felicitations From London.

The Theatre Guild yesterday announced the names of the members of the Executive Committee to arrange for the sale of a $500,000 bond issue for the acquisition of a new Guild theatre. The list includes:

Professor George Pierce Baker, Mrs. Eleanor Robson Belmont, William M. Chadbourne, Russell Doubleday, Miss Theresa Helburn, Otto H. Kahn, Lawrence Langner, Walter Lippman, Charles A. Riegelman, Louis Untermeyer, Maurice Wertheim and Walter Prichard Eaton, Chairman.

A cable wishing the Guild success in its building campaign has been received from Arnold Bennett. "Come to London and build us a theatre, too," his cable reads. "We need good theatres here nearly as acutely as we need good plays. I hope the Guild will have every success in the enterprise."

To Open Home for Working Girls.

The New York Assembly of the Catholic Daughters of America has purchased the seventeen-room house at 6 West Seventy-first Street and will soon open it as a home for working girls, it was announced yesterday. The project will be managed by a corporation recently formed under the name of the New York Sorority. Mrs. Margaret Ryan, formerly Grand Regent of Court Columbia No. 45, has been elected hostess of the house.

Child Study Benefit.

An entertainment has been arranged for the benefit of the Federation for Child Study at the Waldorf-Astoria on Sunday evening, March 25. There will be dancing, a cabaret, bridge with a number of prizes and Mah Jong. Among the patronesses are Mrs. A. Bernard, Mrs. Leopold Rosbach, Mrs. Charles Hirshon, Mrs. Felix Warburg, Mrs. Frederick Greenbaum and Mrs. Leopold Bache. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. V. D. H. Furman, 278 Park Avenue.

Bachelor Asks Jail Terms For Home Wreckers in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 14.—Senator McCoy of Mahoning County, one of the few bachelors in the upper house of the Ohio Legislature, introduced a bill today providing a penitentiary sentence of from one to fifteen years for any man found guilty of inducing another man's wife to leave him and for any woman convicted of taking away the husband of another woman.

EGYPTIANS STIRRED ON TOMB TREASURE

Charles Breasted Says Agitators, Abetted by French, Inflame Anti-British Feeling.

FEARS POLITICAL OUTBREAK

He Doubts That Carnarvon Will Get His Full Share of Treasure—Tale of a Naval Excursion.

Egyptian sentiment against the British has been so inflamed by wealthy young Egyptian agitators, abetted by the French, that it is doubtful whether Lord Carnarvon will be able to take his full share of the Tut-ankh-Amen treasure out of Egypt, according to Charles Breasted, who has recently arrived in this country from Luxor. Mr. Breasted is a son of Professor James H. Breasted, the American historian and Egyptologist, who has been co-operating with Lord Carnarvon and Howard Carter.

Young Egyptians of the land-holding class, who have been made enormously wealthy by British public improvements, are the chief agitators against England, according to Mr. Breasted, and he said that the political uproar resulting from Lord Carnarvon's discovery was certain to result in serious trouble.

In order to annoy and defy England, the anti-British party at Cairo is even attempting to build up a navy and sought to carry out a demonstration in the Mediterranean in the hope of startling and overawing the British, according to Mr. Breasted, who added, however, that the first flourish of sea power by the Egyptians had not accomplished its purpose of terrorization.

Warship Failed to Find Malta.

"The one capital ship of the Egyptian navy," he said, "was sent on a mission to parade up and down before Malta in order to give a scare to the British. For a long time after leaving port the Egyptian ship was not heard from. For a while fears were entertained that it had met with some disaster. One day, however, the ship came back.

"The Admiral reported that he had been unable to find the island of Malta."

According to Mr. Breasted, the Admiral excused the failure of his expedition on the ground that it had been discovered that Malta was out of sight of the mainland and that, as his ship could not get out of sight of the Mediterranean coast without being in danger of getting lost, all hope of approaching the inaccessible island had to be abandoned.

"Regardless of Lord Carnarvon's agreement, under which he was to have one-half of what he found, there is little possibility that Egypt will give up any material part of the spoil from the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen," Mr. Breasted declared, "and the splendid things found there will either fall into the hands of natives and be sold off piecemeal to dealers, or they will be placed in an Egyptian museum. It is the hope of scientists that they will be placed in museums in Egypt. This is generally felt to be the place where they belong. There is nothing in common, however, between this feeling on the part of scientists and that of the native Egyptians, who are inspired by spite against England and to some extent by the thought that they may sell off these things and put the money into the Treasury.

"The bitterness against England is mainly kept aflame by young Nationalist leaders, who have inherited large estates which have been multiplied in value by the dams and other public works of the British. These are for the most part an idle set, who divide their time between stirring up things in a political way at home and in spending their incomes on women, dice and other amusements at Paris.

"The opening of the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen has caused a furious outbreak of politics in Egypt, which perhaps cannot be understood by any one in the Egypt to witness it. All the native papers are stirring the Government against the British and the cry is that Lord Carnarvon shall have none of the things which his party will found, regardless of any agreement whatsoever.

French Fan Political Flames.

"The French are eagerly fanning the flame against the British, mainly for political reasons, but partly because they do not want England to get any of the finds. The Egyptian Department of Antiquities is under the control of the French. When England took political control of the country the French were left in practical control of the archaeology of ancient Egypt through the Cromer theaty of a generation ago. England as a government does not care tuppence about science. England's science is carried on almost entirely by private means. The French have been heartily forwarding the young Nationalists, especially as regards the Tut-ankh-Amen find, and Lord Carnarvon and Howard Carter will be lucky if they get a trinket or two out of it, which may be offered to them as a little token of appreciation.

"There is not the slightest scientific or patriotic interest in the matter among Egyptians. The Egyptian Minister of Finance, at a dinner recently, suggested that it would be a good idea if the antiquities in Egypt were sold to pay off the national debt and finance the Government.

"The objects discovered in the tomb are of untold value, and the find is one that can never be repeated in Egypt. Lord Carnarvon and his party do not yet know the full value of what they have obtained. Some of the boxes taken from the tomb are still unopened, and a great number of objects are still unexamined.

"One considerable disappointment was the discovery that what was taken for papyri was really a quantity of oxidized linen. So far no papyri have been examined. It is hoped that written documents will be found in the inner chambers, but there is no assurance of this. No unrobbed burial chamber of an Egyptian king has ever been found before in modern times, and nobody knows what will be found there.

"There is a strong sentiment among the Egyptologists on the spot against removing the mummy of Tut-ankh-Amen. My father, for one, feels strongly that it should not be removed. The wrappings may be taken off and the body then rewound and replaced."

The personal jewelry of Pharaohs has been found in the wrappings on their mummies.

'TUT-ANKH-AMEN BILL' PASSED BY ASSEMBLY

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 14.—The Assembly this afternoon passed the Griffith measure, which has come to be known in the Legislature as the "Tut-ankh-Amen Relic bill." It would make it a misdemeanor to reproduce or forge archaeological relics with intent to deceive.

The bill has the support of the State Archaeological Society, which for years has been trying to prevent fake relics from being sold at high prices to a gullible public.

Public attention was attracted to the Griffith measure because of the world-wide interest in the discovery in Egypt of the tomb of King Tut-ankh-Amen and the belief that the curio market probably would be glutted eventually with "relics" supposed to have come from the tomb of the ancient King of Egypt.

Banker to Build $100,000 Band Stand for City; Free Concerts in Central Park Start June 7

Announcement that Elkan Naumburg, banker, will give a bandstand to the city, to be erected in Central Park at an approximate cost of $100,000, was made yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Citizens' Committee of the Goldman Band Concerts, in the apartment of Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Work on the structure, which will be built of steel and concrete, is to start soon so that it will be completed by June 4 for the first concert this Summer of the Goldman Band.

It was also announced that this band will play in Central Park this Summer, and not on the campus of Columbia University, as has been the custom for the last five years. Tickets, by which attendance was regulated at Columbia, will be done away with, as well as the former custom of reserving certain blocks of seats for subscribers. In the future all seats will be available free to the public. Sixty concerts will be given during the period of twelve weeks from June 4 to Aug. 26. The concert nights of each week will be Monday, Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Plans for the new bandstand call for one of the finest structures of this kind in the country. It is to be erected on the Mall, near Seventy-second Street, against the Casino terrace. The statue of Beethoven, now occupying part of the site, will be moved. The platform of the stand will accommodate seventy-five musicians, and the shell, designed after consultations with specialists in acoustics, will distribute the music so that an audience of from 50,000 to 70,000 persons will be able to enjoy it, Mr. Goldman said. The city is to provide benches.

Dr. Eugene A. Noble, head of the Juilliard Musical Foundation, presented a check of $1,500 to Mrs. Guggenheim, Chairman of the committee, from the Foundation toward the budget of $65,000 required for the expenses this Summer of the Goldman Band. With $9,000 cash on hand and $9,000 already received in pledges, more than $40,000 yet remains to be raised by public subscription.

Mr. Naumburg, who is 88 years old, is head of the banking firm of E. Naumberg & Co., 14 Wall Street.

SLAIN MAN'S WIDOW HELPS MRS. WELLS

HUNTED FOR HIS REVOLVER

Said He Would Kill Himself Before He Would Work, Wife Testifies.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., March 14.—A moment of dramatic intensity in the trial of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Wells for the killing of Captain James Pettit, proprietor of Massapequa Inn, on Jan. 7, came late today when his widow took the stand, the first witness for the defense. Mrs. "Billie" Wells, as her friends call her, sobbed audibly as the wife of the man she is accused of killing testified in her favor. The substance of her testimony was that "Captain Jim" had repeatedly expressed his intention of killing himself, and that on at least one occasion he had sought to find his army service revolver for the purpose.

The witness said she lived at 33 Evergreen Place, East Orange. She had married Captain Pettit in November, 1919, and had separated from him in April, 1921. There had been no legal separation, but both had signed an agreement to separate, after which they went to dine at a restaurant and promised to remain good friends. Some time later, she said she met Mrs. Wells at Massapequa Inn and received an impression of the relations that existed between Mrs. Wells and her husband. "We were friendly," Mrs. Pettit said, "and both of us were worried by the money Jim was spending and throwing away. She said she could not handle him any more than I could."

Lost Money on the Races.

One of the means by which Pettit got rid of his money was betting on the races, she testified, and she said that once he wanted to borrow $3,000 from her. She did not have the money, she continued, and he had called up Mrs. Wells and asked her to try to get it from her friends. "I am in an awful mess," he had told his wife.

In the Spring of 1922, she said, he came to her home in East Orange and went up in the storeroom where she found him going through the things in his army trunk.

"Where is my army pistol?" he asked her, and she quoted him as saying, "I am sick and disgusted and I am going to end it all."

On one occasion, Mrs. Pettit testified, "Captain Jim," confided to her that if his money ever gave out he was going to kill himself.

"I will kill myself before I will go to work," she swore he said and she added that she had known him to remain in bed a week before he would work.

Mrs. Wells wept as Mrs. Pettit told of her husband taking her out to the cemetery where his mother is buried. "Even his mother the Captain received about $100,000.

"He stood in front of his mother's grave," said Mrs. Pettit. "He meditated there a long time, and then he turned to me and said: 'Madge, there is where my mother lies, and I want to be buried right next to her. Tell the boys when they bury me to fire three shots over m- grave.'"

Thought Sheriff Was After Him.

Mrs. Pettit testified that last Thanksgiving the Captain had asked her to meet him in New York City, and when she arrived he was "agitated and intoxicated." He was intent in getting into New Jersey, for he thought, she said, the Sheriff was after him for "unmercifully" beating "Billie" Wells.

Philip J. Walters, administrator of Pettit's estate, testified that the liabilities were almost three times as much as the assets.

Ellsworth T. Burgess of Massapequa testified that Jan. 5 last Pettit called him on the telephone and requested an urgent loan.

"He said it was a matter of compulsion," Burgess said. "When I asked him what it was for he said it was for his own private business and that I would confer a great favor on him if I loaned him the money. I thought it over and decided I could not spare the money.

Joseph Schultz of Lynbrook said he lent Pettit some money last December. Pettit later gave him a check which came back marked "Account short."

Mrs. Wells probably will go on the witness stand tomorrow.

Prof. R. V. D. Magoffin Joins N.Y.U.

The appointment of Professor Ralph V. D. Magoffin of Johns Hopkins University to be head of the Department of Classics at New York University was announced yesterday by Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown. The department was recently formed by the combination of the Department of Latin, headed for thirty years by Professor E. G. Sihler, and the Department of Greek, headed since 1902 by Professor W. E. Waters. Professors Sihler and Waters retire in June under the Carnegie system.

BIDS EXCEED LOAN OVER $100,000,000

Treasury's Offering of $400,000,000 Is Oversubscribed in Every District.

WILL AID MAY FINANCING

Victory Notes Then Falling Due Are Likely to Be Reduced to $700,000,000 or Less.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The Treasury offering of certificates of indebtedness of $400,000,000 has been oversubscribed by at east $100,000,000. The Department has only the preliminary reports from the Federal Reserve Districts, but there is every indication that the offering was well received in all parts of the country. The books were closed tonight but subscriptions in the mails will be received. This announcement was made:

"Secretary Mellon announced that the March 15 offering of Treasury certificates of indebtedness, in two series, both dated March 15, 1923, one bearing interest at 4¼ per cent., and maturing Sept. 15, 1923, and the other bearing interest at 4¼ per cent. and maturing March 15, 1924, has been oversubscribed. The combined offering was for $400,000,000, or thereabouts, and preliminary reports indicate that the total subscriptions aggregate over $500,000,000.

"Subscription books closed at the close of business on Wednesday, March 14, 1923, though subscriptions actually in the United States mails in direct transit to a Federal Reserve bank or the Treasury on that date will be regarded as having been filed before the closing of the books. Allotments of and subscriptions and allotments will be announced when final reports are received from the twelve Federal Reserve banks."

The heavy over-subscription was especially satisfactory because of the present business activity and the large demands that have been made recently by business interests in the money market. It was expected that the offering would be over-subscribed at the interest rates quoted, but the fact that at least $100,000,000 more than the total called for was most gratifying.

The Treasury agreed to accept as subscriptions certificates of indebtedness which mature on March 15 and Victory notes which have been called, as well as those which come due on May 20. Later announcements by the Department will indicate the proportion of cash subscriptions received for the present offering as well as the quantity of certificates of indebtedness and Victory notes offered in exchange.

With the success of the present offering there will be no other financing done by the Treasury Department until it undertakes the refunding of the Victory notes which mature on May 20. It is hoped to reduce the amount of these notes outstanding to $700,000,000 or less by that time, and it is believed that the refunding will be possible, at satisfactory interest rates, without severe strain on the money market.

Details of subscriptions and allotments by districts throughout the country were not known here yesterday, but it was said that the subscriptions for the New York Federal Reserve District alone were for more than $200,000,000 of the total offering or more than half of the original offering of $400,000,000. Subscribers of this Federal Reserve district, it was said, favored the long term issue, that is the issue which runs for one year and bears 4½ per cent. interest.

Yellowley Instructs Agents to Arrest New York Passengers Violating the Volstead Act.

Liquor is drunk so freely on railroad trains between New York City and Albany, according to complaints received at Prohibition headquarters in Manhattan, that Director E. C. Yellowley took steps yesterday to preserve the name of the "water level route" in the Prohibition sense. He issued orders to all Federal Prohibition employes to watch particularly for violations of the Volstead act aboard trains. Regarding the complaints, he said:

"With field agents traleving, as their reports show they have done, it seems impossible, if there is any truth to these reports, that arrests should not have been made. I am putting all of the field agents on notice that they are continuously on duty and when violations of the hip-pocket or valise carrying kind are committed in their presence they must place the offenders under arrest regardless of the circumstances of travel."

SWEARS ORR TOOK LIQUOR BLANK AWAY

Mrs. King, Hart's Former Secretary, Testifies in $10,000,000 Plot Trial.

GOVERNMENT RESTS CASE

Counsel for Ex-Prohibition Director and Fifteen Others Will Move Dismissal.

Failure of William A. Orr, former secretary to Governor Charles S. Whitman, to return a verification blank he was permitted to examine in the offices of the Prohibition Director in 1921, during the incumbency of Harold L. Hart, was described by Mrs. Margaret King, former secretary to Hart, when she testified yesterday as the trial of Hart, Orr and fourteen others before Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Government through the manipulation of liquor withdrawal permits. The trial was resumed after an adjournment of two days on account of illness of Judge Winslow.

The Government rested its case against the sixteen defendants, alleged to have withdrawn more than $10,000,000 worth of liquor fraudulently. Counsel for the defense indicated they would move for dismissal of the indictments. Colonel Thomas B. Felder, counsel for Hart, said he had already prepared a motion, while other counsel asked more time. The Court announced that motions would be heard this morning at 10:30 o'clock. The jury was excused until 2 o'clock this afternoon, by which time all motions probably will have been heard.

The verification blank which Orr is alleged to have taken away from the Prohibition Director's office in 1921 was given to him by Thomas M. Reddy, former assistant to Hart, according to Mrs. King, who was Miss Margaret Fitzgerald when employed first as a clerk in the office of the Director. She testified that Orr put the document in his pocket and left the offices. The blank was one of those used to certify withdrawal permits when certification was required by warehouses asked to honor withdrawal permits.

Mrs. King testified that she went to work in the Prohibition Director's office during the incumbency of former Director O'Connor in March, 1920. She first had charge of the doctors' prescription department, and later was in charge of the verification of withdrawal permits. After checking up withdrawal permits, which she described as the "1502 cards" she would reply to inquiries from distilleries and warehouses as to the genuineness of the permits. She testified that Michael Lynch and Reddy, both defendants, had charge of the cards on which she occasionally made entries.

She had seen Orr many times in the prohibition offices during 1921, Mrs. King said, after Hart's appointment, and usually talked with Lynch and Reddy. Orr was often in the room where the withdrawal permits were kept, she testified. He was in the offices so often, she said, that she could not recall any particular day. She testified that she was asked by Reddy on several occasions immediately after Orr had left the prohibition offices whether certifications had been sent to the Alps, Central, Widder and other drug companies.

Under cross-examination by Abel I. Smith, counsel for Reddy, Mrs. King testified that Reddy often asked her about verifications for many companies and admitted that she never saw Reddy make an entry on a withdrawal card. Reddy's inquiries, according to Mrs. King, were always concerning permits issued in a regular manner.

Distillery Salesman on Stand.

George L. Wallenstein, head salesman for the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse company, whose cross-examination was deferred on account of illness last week, was the first witness yesterday. He was cross-examined by Alfred B. Van Buren, and his testimony disclosed that Max Gordon and Barney Braunstein, both said to be connected with the S. & B. Specialty Drug Company, one of the corporate defendants, visited the branch office of the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company, 25 Broad Street, in May, 1921, when they found to be among the stolen ones. The witness said the two men showed him permits made out to the U. S. B. Alcohol Company and endorsed to the S. & B. Specialty Drug Company. The permits called for 497 cases of whisky stored with the Kentucky Warehouse Company. Gordon and Braunstein bought three cases to make an even 500, according to the witness. He said he knew Gordon as a large whisky certificate holder, and that there was nothing unusual about his presentation of a certificate calling for 497 cases.

Frank Kalen, President of the Central Drug Company, 721 Seventh Avenue, testified that his company furnished $50,000 bond and obtained a basic permit in May, 1921.

Miss Marjorie Tilton, a file clerk, testified that after an illness she returned to the prohibition offices in July, 1921, when she found many papers gone from the folder of the Alps, Central and Widder Drug Companies. The folders of the Alps and Widder Drug Companies were submitted in evidence as showing the condition of the files and their relation to the series of stolen permits. Miss Tilton testified that temporary cards were made out to replace the cards missing from the files. She said she was transferred to the bonding department on August 29, but returned to the filing department under Acting Director Yellowley.

When the Presidente Wilson of the Cosulich Line docked at the Bush docks, Brooklyn, yesterday from Naples, Captain Ettore Zar, commander of the vessel, said that he would lodge a complaint with the authorities against the rum-running fleet off the entrance to New York harbor, which he characterized as a menace to navigation. So crowded were the waters off Fire Island and Ambrose Lightship with these boats on Tuesday night that he said some of his officers believed the liner, moving through the fog, was in the Hudson River instead of the approach to the harbor. They found the difference when they obtained the ship's bearings by radio, Captain Zar said.

The announced demotion of Detective Sergeant Michael Fiaschetti to the rank of patrolman four months ago was said to be a blind yesterday when he returned on the steamer from Italy, where he had been studying criminal activities affecting this city. The purpose of the so-called demotion, it was said, was to cover his trial with this false report to the end that he might not suffer the fate of Detective Joseph Petrosino, who was assassinated in Italy while investigating Black Hand organizations.

Amoroso Indictment Dismissed.

A forgery indictment returned against Vincent Amoroso Jr., 35 years old, of 18 Thirty-first Street, Woodcliff, N. J., was dismissed yesterday by Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions. Amoroso's indictment followed the failure of J. Robinson Duff & Co., a brokerage firm. The case was on the trial calendar thirty-seven times, and on Dec. 18 last a jury disagreed. Amoroso's bail of $10,000 was discharged on Jan. 24, when Assistant District Attorney Panger informed the Court there was little possibility of a conviction.

Canadian M. P. Urges Cut In Salary to Teach Economy

OTTAWA, March 14.—A resolution proposing a reduction of 12½ per cent. in the salary or allowance of members of the House of Commons and Senators, as well as Cabinet Ministers, was introduced in the House today by Harry Leader, progressive member from Portage La Prairie, Manitoba.

Mr. Leader said the measure would set an example of economy for the rest of Canada and would mean a saving to the Dominion of $500 on each member of Parliament and $750 on each Minister—a total of about $200,000.

He pointed out that in proportion to population the United States had only one member in the House of Representatives to six in the corresponding body here, and that, while Canada had ten Senators for every million persons, the United States had about one.

GRACE HUMISTON RUN OVER BY TRUCK

LOSS OF FOOT IS FEARED

Woman Struck by Auto in Bensonhurst May Die—Richard H. Webster Hurt.

Mrs. Grace Humiston, the lawyer who solved the Ruth Cruger murder mystery case, suffered a compound fracture of the left ankle yesterday morning when she was run over by a motor truck at Fifty-ninth Street and Third Avenue while she was on her way to the Municipal Court at Fifty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue.

Her friends were fearful last night that the accident might make necessary the amputation of Mrs. Humiston's foot, though every precaution was being taken at the Flower Hospital to prevent blood poisoning. They said last night that surgeons had informed them that it would be three or four ays before that danger was past. Meantime, the physicians had given Mrs. Humiston injections of lockjaw serum and had taken other precautions to prevent development of complications. It was said it would be at least three weeks before she would be able to leave the hospital.

Miss Marion Lithauer, who has been in Mrs. Humiston's office for five years, asserted last night that as soon as she heard of the accident and took Mrs. Humiston in a taxicab tour of hospitals in search of the best specialists to handle the case.

Mrs. Humiston had just alighted from a Third Avenue trolley car and was about to cross Third Avenue when she was run down. She told Miss Lithauer that the traffic policeman had sounded his whistle for traffic to stop when an oncoming truck failed to heed the signal and ran over her, the front wheel crushing her ankle.

William H. Heck of 352 West Thirtieth Street, driver of the truck, was arrested by Traffic Policeman W. F. Meier on a charge of felonious assault and held by Magistrate Cobb in the Yorkville Court under $500 bail for hearing tomorrow. Heck said he had the right of way from the traffic policeman and was turning east into Fifty-ninth Street when the accident happened. He said he did not see Mrs. Humiston in front of his truck, but stopped when he heard her cries.

Meier, at Mrs. Humiston's request, called a taxicab so that she could hunt a specialist. Miss Lithauer joined her and they drove to the New York Orthopaedic Dispensary and Hospital at 420 East Fifty-ninth Street and later to Flower Hospital, where two specialists were called to consult with members of the hospital staff.

Mrs. Jennie Vellardi, 44 years old, of 1 Bay Thirteenth Street, Bensonhurst, was run down yesterday by an automobile at Eighty-sixth Street and Seventeenth Avenue, Bensonhurst. She was taken to Coney Island Hospital, where it was said she would probably die. The driver, Louis Zagarella of 1,237 Eighty-sixth Street, Bensonhurst, was arrested.

Richard H. Webster, editor of the publications of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, was taken to the Long Island College Hospital yesterday suffering from a broken collarbone and other injuries received on Tuesday night when his automobile was sideswiped by another.

REPRIEVES BOY SLAYERS.

Governor of Georgia Postpones Baker Executions for a Month.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, March 14.—Almost on the eve of the day set for their execution in Walker County for the murder of a Deputy Sheriff, Ralph and George Baker, 15 and 23 years old, respectively, have received a new lease of life. Governor Hardwick granted them a respite today in order to have time to give thorough consideration to all phases of the case and to examine the immense amount of correspondence sent him from all sections of the country in connection with it.

After the Governor had acted, the Prison Commission announced a reconsideration that the death sentence of Ralph be commuted to life imprisonment, but declined to interfere in the case of George.

"I would rather they had saved George," said Ralph, when he heard the news in jail. "He has a wife to support."

"I am glad the commission will try to save Ralph's life," said the older youth.

The Bakers, who were sentenced to die for killing J. W. Morton, an aged Deputy Sheriff, were to hang tomorrow, but the reprieve sets the new date on April 13. Members of the Prison Commission stated that their action was based solely upon the youth of Ralph. While they did not believe he was only 15 years old, as alleged, they did not think he was 19, as the prosecution declared.

THINK HARDING PAYS $17,990 INCOME TAX

Document Filed by the President at Columbus—He Is First Executive to Pay.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 14.—The first full year income tax return ever filed by a President of the United States was in the local internal revenue office today—President Harding's report for 1922. An amendment to the income tax law making the President's salary taxable went into effect when Mr. Harding took office, but his return last year covered only nine months of his salary.

Other Government officials who filed returns today included Attorney General Daugherty, United States Senator Willis, D. R. Crissinger, Controller of the Currency, and the President's Secretary, George B. Christian Jr.

Statisticians in the revenue office here figured that Mr. Harding would pay a tax of $17,990 on his Presidential salary of $75,000 a year. Collector Miller pointed out, however, that no information on what the President's total income tax is will be given out. No such information as that is made public, he said.

INCOME TAXPAYERS SETTING NEW RECORD

THE LAST DAY IS TODAY

Offices Will Be Open Until Midnight — Penalty on Returns Not Postmarked by Then.

MANY EXTRA AIDS ON DUTY

Yesterday's Receipts of $8,114,682 Bring Total to $17,799,786—May Beat 1922.

The number of Federal taxpayers on 1922 income in the Manhattan collection district will be greater than for any year since the tax was imposed, Frank K. Bowers, Collector of Internal Revenue, predicted last night. The time limit for filing returns and paying at least one-fourth of the tax expires at midnight tonight.

Receipts up to the time the offices on the sixth floor of the Custom House closed last night totaled $17,790,786. Receipts at the corresponding time last year totaled $19,758,699.

The decline of nearly $2,000,000 from last year was not expected by the Internal Revenue officials. They declared, however, that the totals with the final day of the period for payments not included were of no particular significance. They hoped that the last day's stream of returns would bring the total well up to the 1922 mark. As an indication that this might be the case, it was pointed out that yesterday's receipts were within $300,000 of those for March 14 last year.

Up to Monday Mr. Bowers's force had collected $5,446,516. The receipts on Monday were $1,015,333, and those on Tuesday $3,223,435. Yesterday's payments were $8,114,682.

Expect More 1923 Returns.

Last year approximately 530,000 returns were filed in the Manhattan district. Officials have found every indication that there would be a much greater number filed this year. Of the returns filed last year more than one-half were on incomes on which allowable exemptions and deductions relieved the recipients from payment of tax. Mr. Bowers's assistants said that if the 1923 returns were any criterion, the percentage of returns on which no tax was paid would be far less this year.

"The returns received so far indicate two things," said Mr. Bowers. "In the first place, a large proportion of them are from persons who have not paid taxes before. In the second place, taxpayers are learning to send in their returns early, which not only helps the office, but avoids any possibility of delay beyond the time limit, with its penalties.

"The chief reason for the promptness in filing returns this year, I believe, the wide publicity that the newspapers have given during the collection period. This has been aided by the sign

BRENNAN SUFFERS BRAIN CONCUSSION

HIS CONDITION NOT SERIOUS

"TOOK AN AWFUL BEATING"

Physician Says Boxer Shows Signs of Battering—Firpo Hits Hard as Dempsey, Asserts Victim.

Bill Brennan, Chicago heavyweight who was knocked out in the twelfth round by Luis Angel Firpo in Madison Square Garden on Monday night, was taken to the Jewish Memorial Hospital yesterday. Dr. Edward L. Spitzer, brain specialist who attended Brennan at the hospital, told a reporter of THE NEW YORK TIMES that Brennan was suffering from concussion of the brain.

Examination by Dr. Spitzer and Dr. J. Townsend Travers of the X-ray pictures taken of Brennan's skull showed, according to Dr. Spitzer, that no serious injury had been inflicted to the boxer's skull. Brennan, Dr. Spitzer asserted, is suffering from concussion of the brain and inflammation of the periosteum of the skull. This inflammation extends from a point over the left ear to the left temple, from there to the parietal bone and back to the base of the skull.

"I do not consider Brennan's condition serious," Dr. Spitzer declared, after he and Dr. Travers had consulted and examined the X-ray pictures of the injured boxer's head. "Brennan has improved considerably since he came to the hospital. He suffered a pretty bad shaking up. However, he received no serious injury to the skull itself."

The boxer was apparently in a cheerful mood when taken to the hospital and later received at his bedside his wife, 19 months' old daughter and his manager, Leo Flynn. Although Brennan had admitted that Firpo had battered him considerably, his condition was not considered serious until yesterday, and he was up and about most of Tuesday. He complained of sharp pains in his head on Tuesday night, however, and when these pains grew worse early today his wife called a physician, who advised that the boxer be taken to the hospital at once.

Says Firpo Can Hit.

The blow which finished Brennan was a sledge-hammer right, which landed just back of the left ear. On the day after the fight Brennan said he couldn't wear his old hat because of a bump, the size of a hen's egg, which the blow had raised on the back of his head. Brennan was also badly bruised about the head and body and after the bout he complained of Firpo's wild tactics, saying that the South American was the hardest hitter he ever faced. Since Brennan has taken part in 118 ring engagements such a statement covers a wide range.

"Dempsey never hit me any harder than this fellow either time I was knocked me out," Brennan said. "I gave Firpo the best I had, but just couldn't weather the storm."

Boxing critics agree that no boxer in recent years has displayed the brute strength and slashing tactics of Firpo. With little technique and knowledge of the finer points of boxing the big South American beat Brennan by the fierceness of his attacks. He swung his arms wildly, and sometimes the blows landed. He possesses enough instinctive cunning to know where a telling blow may be shot over, and although he is not fast he is quick enough to take advantage of this knowledge.

The blow which laid Brennan low was what is known in boxing as the "rabbit punch," or, at best, only a variation of that blow.

"Rabbit Punch" Dangerous.

The "rabbit punch," although not definitely barred by boxing rules, has been in bad repute for some time and is considered highly dangerous. The punch is aimed at the base of the brain. Carpentier complained of pains in the head caused by the "rabbit punch" used by Dempsey after their fight in Jersey City in 1921, although the pains were in Carpentier's forehead. The Frenchman asserted that they were the direct result of the sharp jabs that Dempsey had landed at the back of his head.

Brennan had been knocked out only twice before this second bout, and on both occasions by Dempsey. The end of the fight Monday evening came as a surprise. Firpo had landed a number of terrific body blows and had pummeled away at Brennan's head, but it did not appear that the Chicago heavyweight was much weakened by the punishment. The giant South American's swings carry a great deal of power, and evidently served to tear down Brennan's resistance more than was realized.

Tex Rickard, who has a contract with Firpo and who staged the fight last Monday night, said he was very sorry to hear that Brennan was suffering. "I hope that this tangible proof will be a silencer for any critics who thought that Brennan was not squarely knocked out," Rickard added. "I sincerely hope that Brennan recovers rapidly from his injury, and I am going to keep in close touch with his doctor."

Among the callers at the hospital last night was Luis Firpo, who arrived there shortly before 10 o'clock. Through his secretary the Argentine boxer ascertained the condition of his former opponent and then left the hospital.

At Firpo's present residence, in an apartment with an Argentine family named Erlandes, at 804 West 138th Street, it was said that he had left at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was not expected back until early this morning.

"What does Luis think about Brennan being taken to the hospital?" Erlandes was asked.

"He feels very bad about it," was the answer.

DUNDEE RECEIVES OFFER.

English Promoter Would Give Him $15,000 for Bout in London.

Johnny Dundee, world's junior lightweight champion, received an offer yesterday from George McDonald, an English promoter, to meet Billy Matthews, formerly English featherweight champion, in a twenty-round match, to be staged near London this Spring. Dundee would receive $10,000, a free trip and a quarter interest in the motion picture rights.

According to Mike Casali, chief adviser of Dundee, the American fighter is undecided on his answer. He has recently recovered from an attack of influenza, and expects to go to either Lakewood or Atlantic City to recuperate. He probably will ask for a short period in which to determine whether he can get himself in condition for the proposed bout.

Says Australia Will Make No Serious Bid for Davis Cup

LONDON, March 14.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Melbourne says it is problematical whether Australia will make a serious attempt to capture the Davis Cup this year. Gerald L. Patterson, J. O. Anderson, Pat O'Hara Wood and R. C. Wertheim, the 1922 Davis Cup team, it adds, are unavailable, and "probably fledglings will be selected with a view to gaining experience for further contests."

AMATEURS BATTLE FOR BOXING TITLES

With a schedule of forty-five three-round bouts in eight classes, preliminaries in the tournament for the metropolitan A. A. U. championships were held at the Madison Square Garden last night. The finals will be decided tonight.

The heavyweight battle between Joseph Stoessel, unattached, and Gordon Munoz, Pastime A. C., was a hard-hitting, wild-swinging slugging match that went to the former. Both boxers were worn out from their strenuous swings that sometimes connected and often did not, and they were both groggy at the end of the three rounds. The spectators enjoyed the match and cheered repeatedly as the fighters mixed freely without giving each other a moment's rest.

A good-sized crowd of enthusiastic spectators greeted the boxers in the 112-pound class bouts, which opened last night's program. In the initial contest Eddie Flank, Pastime A. C., outhit Danny Sheehan, K. of C. centre, and won on Referee Thomas Smith's decision.

H. Chester, Union Settlement, in an extra round, won from Ivanhoe Hawes of the 135th Street Y. M. C. A., and Archie Sapon, Trinity Club, gained the decision over J. McDermott, St. Bartholomew's Club, in a contest that also required an additional round.

Because George Rosal, St. Jerome's C. C., was bleeding so freely, the referee stopped the bout with Dan Raimond, Paulist A. C., in another bout in the 112-pound class and gave the decision to Raimond.

Referee Stops Bout.

The first bout in the 118-pound class was stopped in the second round by the referee after Murray Fuchs, Union Settlement A. C., had been knocked down twice by Jack Donohue of the Ascension Parish House. A fast and furious bout with few punches that connected resulted when Vincent Peppe met Herbert Morophy, Clark House. The contest alternated from a fight to a wrestling bout and back again and was finally won by Peppe, who had found a mark for his blows a few more times than had his opponent.

Milton Cohen, unattached, and J. A. Quill gave a good exhibition of clever boxing in their bout. Instead of being intent on drawing blood with punches to the nose and mouth, they both fought a really fine game. Cohen won on the judges' decision.

Herman Singer, Glencoe A. C., won the decision over Daniel Lerner after one flashy round. Singer had things pretty much his own way from the start, holding his opponent off while he drove his own blows home.

Bernard Hofnagle, National A. C., was too fast for Jack Malmund, unattached, in the 147-pound class. He blocked most of Malmund's blows and showed an effective left that caused plenty of trouble, winning on judges' decision.

Feeney Fails to Come Back.

Bernard Feeney, who several years ago was prominent in metropolitan boxing, tried to stage a come-back in the 175-pound class after several seasons' absence from the ring. Andy Zamba, Cusack Association, thwarted his plans, knocking Feeney down early in the second round. Feaney made a plucky effort to continue, but Zamba floored him again, and he was staggering when he rose before the count was completed. Referee Johnny Gaddi stopped the match.

Fred Krebs of the Physical Culture Club very nearly scored a knockout in the first few minutes of his bout with Harry Englisher of the Holy Name Club in the 160-pound class. He did not follow up his advantage, however, and Englisher came back and caught Krebs with a right uppercut after a clinch that almost turned the tables. After Krebs recovered from the jar he put Englisher out with a series of powerful lefts.

Arthur Kiernan, Ascension Parish House, outreached Victor Connell in their match in the 126-pound class, and had little trouble in breaking through the latter's defense. Connell managed to stay on his feet in the last round, although Kiernan landed a succession of stiff blows to his mouth and jaw.

The summaries:

113-Pound Class—Eddie Flank, Pastime A. C., defeated Danny Sheehan, K. of C. Centre, referee's decision; H. Chester, Union Settlement, defeated Ivanhoe Hawes, 135th Street Y. M. C. A., extra round, judges' decision; Archie Sapon, Trinity Club, defeated J. McDermott, St. Bartholomew's Club, extra round, judges' decision; Dan Raimond, Paulist A. C., defeated George Rosal, St. Jerome's C. C., stopped by referee; Al. Bender, Union Settlement A. C. defeated Thomas Feeney, St. Jerome's C. C., judges' decision.

118-Pound Class—Jack Donohue, Ascension Parish House, defeated Murray Fuchs, Union Settlement A. C., stopped by referee, 50 seconds in second round; Johnny Flood, K. of C. Centre, defeated Joe Kaufman, Clark House A. A., judges' decision; Vincent Pepper, Paulist A. C., defeated Herbert Morophy, Clark House, judges' decision; Milton Cohen, unattached, defeated J. A. Quill, Union Settlement A. C., judges' decision; Herman Singer, Glencoe A. C., defeated Daniel Lerner, unattached, one round, referee's decision.

126-Pound Class—Arthur Kiernan, Ascension Parish House, defeated Victor Connell, unattached, judges' decision; Murray Israel, Richmond Hill School, defeated Hyman Goldman, Clark House, referee's decision, 2 minutes 0 seconds, in the second round; Harry Felix, Rutgers Gymnasium, defeated Edward Tiernan, St. Bartholomew's Club, judges' decision.

135-Pound Class—Paul Culotta, National A. C., defeated Thomas Reed, St. Jerome's A. C., Bronx, judges' decision.

160-Pound Class—Fred Krebs, Physical Culture Club, defeated Harry Englisher, Holy Name Club, knockout, 2 minutes 54 seconds, in second round; Larry Hight, Hollywood Inn Club, defeated John Luby, Union Settlement, knockout, 2 minutes 46 seconds, in first round; M. Rosenblum, Union Settlement A. C., defeated H. Carlson, Swedish-American A. C., judges' decision; Jean Kahr, Bronxdale A. C., defeated Simpson Bailey, unattached, knockout, 2 minutes 42 seconds, in first round.

BOXING BOUTS TONIGHT.

Madison Square Garden—Metropolitan A. A. U. championship tournament.

PLAN WORLD BODY TO CONTROL TENNIS

Conference to Adopt New Standard International Code Opens in Paris Tomorrow.

U. S. OBJECTIONS REMOVED

Majority of Disputed Points Reported Settled—Twelve Countries Will Be Represented.

PARIS, March 14 (Associated Press).—A new world tennis organization is to be founded tomorrow and Friday at conferences called to adopt a new standard international code and reframe the by-laws of the old International Lawn Tennis Federation in such a manner that the United States and other nations may become practical working members.

It was said tonight by the secretary of the old federation that the conferences were expected to be of the most amicable nature. The majority of the points at issue, he said, already have been settled by correspondence, and every objection heretofore made by the American organization has been removed, so that the world championships will become much more flexible in their nature, going to the member countries with the best teams.

Tomorrow's conference, which is for the purpose of establishing the standard code, is a continuance of that held in London on Dec. 21 last, while Friday's meeting is in some measure a continuance of the one in London on March 6, when the English Lawn Tennis Federation renounced its claim to supervision of the world championships in perpetuity, notably that at Wimbledon. Friday's conference will accept or reject the code prepared tomorrow, and further will frame new rules for the entire lawn tennis world.

The previous world championships are to be scrapped, it is already agreed in principle, with the new organization recognizing the various national championships now held, including those at Forest Hills, N. Y., for the United States.

One of the important new regulations will be admission of the American demand that players coming to the United States may have their expenses paid.

There will be no dispute over the question of who shall make the rules in future, it is asserted, as it is planned to dissolve the old international rules board as soon as the Americans enter and transfer the powers of that board to the International Lawn Tennis Federation itself.

The French are prepared, they stated today to accept the English proposal that the English language be forever used as the official text of the organization.

Among the countries represented are France, Belgium, England, Switzerland, Denmark, Holland, South Africa, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Argentina and Spain.

America Will Not Be Represented.

America will not be represented at the meetings in Paris at which the International Lawn Tennis Federation will be reorganized and the new code of rules will be adopted. No delegate from the United States Lawn Tennis Association will be present, as this country is not a member of the International Federation, and therefore has no immediate concern in the proceedings in Paris this week.

Edward B. Moss, Executive Secretary of the U. S. L. T. A., stated last evening that the code of playing rules to be adopted today is the same that was agreed upon at the London conference last December, at which the U. S. L. T. A. was represented by H. W. Slocum, former President of the U. S. L. T. A. During these conferences the international code, under which the game will be played throughout the world, was formulated. These rules were formally adopted at the annual meeting of the national body last month and will appear in the official guide this season.

It is not unlikely that the United States will become a member of the reorganized international body in the course of time. The only quarrel this country has had with that organization in the past has been the award of the world's championships in perpetuity.

England has agreed to give up her grass court title events awarded by the International Federation. When this moot point is settled finally to the satisfaction of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, the latter may be expected to send in its application for membership in the world body.

RIDING CLUB TEAMS TO CLASH AT POLO

TONIGHT'S POLO PROGRAM.

Class A Finals—New York Riding Club vs. Riding Club.

Exhibition Game—English vs. Squadron A.

Class C Semi-finals—Essex Troop vs. Riding Club.

The most important game of the national indoor polo tournament, excluding the matches in which the American trio defeated the English for the John R. Townsend Challenge Cup, which were not part of the tournament proper, will be played tonight at the Squadron A Armory when the New York Riding Club meets the Riding Club trio in the finals of Class A. The English team will also meet Squadron A team in an exhibition match, and a semi-final contest in Class C will be played between Essex Troop and the Riding Club.

The same team that represented the squadron in the Class A matches will play against the English tonight. This team is made up of K. Phillips at No. 1, R. K. Cooke at No. 2 and E. C. Snow 3d at back. The English probably will use the line-up played in the last international contest, with Captain Walford at No. 1, Captain Holman at No. 2 and Egan playing back. There is a possibility, however, that Captain McMullen will replace Walford at No. 1.

In place of the Class A finals on Saturday night, as had been planned originally, there will be a match between the American team and its substitutes. On the same evening the finals of Class C and the match between the intercollegiate teams representing Yale and Princeton will be played.

DATES FOR PRESIDENTS.

W. and J. Tennis Team to Play in Eleven Matches.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 14.—Washington and Jefferson's tennis schedule of eleven matches, six of which are on foreign courts, was announced today by L. G. Curry of McKesport, manager, the card having been given ratification both by the Athletic Council and the Faculty.

The schedule:

May 5, Carnegie Tech, at Washington; 4 Allegheny, at Meadville; 8, Pitt, at Washington, 18, Pitt at Pittsburgh; 19, Allegheny, at Washington; 24, Dennison University, at Granville, Ohio; Ohio Wesleyan, at Delaware; 26, Mittenberg, at Springfield, Ohio.

June 2, West Virginia, at Morgantown.

Brown Elects Basketball Captain.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 14.—William H. Wagenknecht of Adams, Mass., was today elected captain of the Brown University basketball team for 1923-24. Wagenknecht has played right forward on the Brown five for two seasons and is one of the best goal shooters the Bears have had in some years.

Charley O'Hearn to Lead Yale's 1924 Hockey Team

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 14.—At the annual banquet of the Yale hockey team tonight, Charles Michael O'Hearn of Brookline, Yale's all-around athlete, was elected captain for next season. He played centre and defense two years at Yale and three years at Exeter Academy. As Yale loses only Captain Joe Bulkley and Fergus Reid of its present team, the 1924 outlook is promising. William H. Cowles Jr., 1924, of Spokane, Wash., was elected manager. Louis E. Stoddard, 1890, a member of the Graduate Committee; George T. Ades Jr., 1895, of New York, and J. E. Bierwirth, 1917, captain of the St. Nicholas team, were among the speakers.

TILDEN IS VICTOR IN MIXED DOUBLES

Paired With Miss Hedstrom, Champion Wins by 6-1, 5-7, 6-2 in National Indoor Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 14.—William T. Tilden 2d of Philadelphia, national singles tennis champion, made his appearance at the women's national indoor tennis championship tournament at the Longwood covered courts today, and with Miss Brenda Hedstrom of Buffalo as his partner had to go an extra set in the mixed doubles before beating Miss Elizabeth Bright of Cambridge and E. D. Herndon, former Princeton captain, by 6—1, 5—7, 6—2.

In talking of his plans for this season, Tilden said: "There is one thing certain, I will not be at Wimbledon. I will play in the New England championship tournament at Hartford, Conn., in June, in the national doubles championship tournament at Longwood in August, in the Davis Cup series and in the national singles championships. I will play in the national clay court championship tournament at Indianapolis in July, after which I will go to Chicago and to the Northwest, where I may play at Seattle and other cities."

No Upsets in Singles.

There were no upsets in the singles today. Miss Lillian Scharman of Brooklyn, however, met a stubborn opponent in Miss Penelope Parkman of Boston, who has been playing the game only since last Fall. The Brooklyn girl's experience in tournamont play was all that carried her through, 6—2, 1—6, 6—3. In the deciding set Miss Scharman gained an early lead, winning the first four games. With such a lead the Brooklyn girl went along cautiously and finally won the set and match.

Mrs. Frank H. Godfrey of Brookline played a strong game and won her match over Mrs. T. H. Cabot of Boston. Miss Leslie Bancroft dropped only three games in defeating Mrs. John L. Bremer of Boston. Mrs. Benjamin E. Cole 2d won from Mrs. N. W. Niles and Miss Frances Jennings of Worcester beat Mrs. Phineas W. Sprague of Boston because of greater staunina and steadiness in a three-set match. Miss Elizabeth Bright of Cambridge, Mrs. G. W. Roosevelt of Boston and Mrs. W. M. Shadden of Cambridge all advanced in straight sets.

The semi-finals in the women's doubles will be played tomorrow afternoon, Miss Leslie Bancroft and Mrs. George W. Wightman will wait for the winner of the match in which Miss Lillian Scharman and Miss Ceres Baker will play Mrs. N. W. Niles and Mrs. T. H. Cabot.

Others in Semi-Final.

In the other half, Mrs. Frank H. Godfrey and Mrs. B. E. Cole 2d will play Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere and Mrs. William Shedden.

The summaries:

Women's National Indoor Tennis Championships—Singles—Second Round—Miss Lillian Scharman, Brooklyn, beat Miss Penelope Parkman, Boston, 2, 4—6, 6—3; Mrs. William Shedden, Cambridge, beat Mrs. Samuel M. Felton 3d, Boston, 6—4, 6—0; Mrs. Benjamin E. Cole 2d, North Andover, beat Mrs. N. W. Niles, Brookline, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Frances Jennings, Worcester, beat Mrs. Phineas W. Sprague, Boston, 3—6, 6—4, 7—5; Miss Leslie Bancroft, West Newton, beat Mrs. John L. Bremer, Boston, 6—3, 6—0; Mrs. G. H. Roosevelt, Boston, beat Mrs. H. R. Hardwick, Brookline, 6—4, 6—2; Mrs. F. H. Godfrey, Brookline, beat Mrs. T. H. Cabot, Boston, 6—0, 6—0; Miss Elizabeth Bright, Cambridge, beat Mrs. Kenneth S. Billings, Boston, 6—1, 6—0.

Women's Doubles—Second Round—Miss Leslie Bancroft and Mrs. George W. Wightman beat Mrs. J. B. Pierce and Miss Ruth Williams, 6—2, 6—1.

Third Round—Miss Leslie Bancroft and Mrs. G. W. Wightman beat Miss Elizabeth Bright and Miss Frances Jennings, 6—1, 6—0; Mrs. F. H. Godfrey and Mrs. B. E. Cole 2d, beat Mrs. Ceres Baker and Mrs. Phineas W. Sprague, 6—1, 6—1.

Mixed Doubles, First Round—Mrs. George W. Wightman and Burnham N. Dell won from Miss Dorothy Hayhurst and Allen Briggs by default; Miss Alice Janckes and F. G. Bundy beat Mrs. S. M. Felton 2d and H. H. Bundy, 1—6, 6—4, 7—5; Mrs. B. E. Cole 2d and Lyle A. Cole beat Mrs. G. W. Roosevelt and A. N. Reggiom, 6—3, 6—0; Miss Ceres Baker and Morris Duane beat Mrs. William Shedden and Louis Bondi, 6—3, 6—2; Miss Brenda Hedstrom and William T. Tilden 2d beat Miss Elizabeth Bright and E. D. Herndon, 6—1, 5—7, 6—2; Miss Lillian Scharman and W. W. Ingraham beat Miss Marian S. Fanno and Palmer Dixon, 6—1, 6—3; Mrs. F. H. Godfrey & H. R. Guild beat Mrs. Bronson Batchelon and K. S. Pfaffman, 6—3, 6—4; Mrs. Dallas Corbiere and J. Wheelwright beat Mrs. Homer Albers and J. S. Nicholl, 6—3, 6—3.

PENN WINS TEAM TITLE AT GAMES

Scores 58 Points in Middle Atlantic Championships—1,000-Yard Meet Mark Falls.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—One indoor Middle Atlantic A. A. U. record was shattered in the revival of the indoor track championships here tonight, when the University of Pennsylvania defeated Meadowbrook Club for the team trophy. Penn scored 58 points and Meadowbrook 45.

Frank Kelly of Shanahan Club reduced the Middle Atlantic 1,000 yards record from 2:20 1-5 to 2:19 3-10, beating Mooney, the Penn freshman star, to the tape by less than a foot.

Boots Lever of Penn, in his first race since breaking the world's 70-yard record in the indoor intercollegiates in New York, won both the 50-yard dash and standing broad jump championships. He did the sprint in 5 7-10 seconds and cleared 9 feet 7¼ inches in the standing jump.

JOHNSTON WINS MATCH.

Defeats Dickinson in Invitation Tennis Tourney at Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—William M. Johnston of San Francisco, No. 2 in national ranking, defeated Harold Dickinson of Los Angeles, 6—0, 8—6, in the first round of the men's singles in an invitation tennis tournament here today. Harvey Snodgrass, Southern California singles champion, won his match against Paul Hardeman, former holder of the title.

Trinity Chooses Keating.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 14.—John F. Keating of New Britain today was elected captain of the Trinity College basketball team for next season. Theodore W. Jones of Perth Amboy, N. J., was named manager.

MISS RYAN VICTOR AFTER CLOSE GAME

Defeats Senorita Alvarez at Nice, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3—King Gustaf Again Beaten.

NICE, March 14 (Associated Press).—Señorita Alvarez, eighteen-year-old Spanish girl, proved the surprise of the Nice lawn tennis tournament today by giving Miss Elizabeth Ryan one of the hardest matches of her career before bowing to the Californian, 6—2, 3—6, 6—3.

Unheralded and relatively unheard of this diminutive dark-eyed girl met her experienced opponent with as much confidence as if she had been playing tournament tennis for years, although this is the first real championship competition she ever entered.

The match was much more evenly disputed than the score indicates, eleven of the twenty-six games going to deuce, while the Spanish player won three of her eleven games at love.

Miss Ryan had a banner day, playing also in the second round singles against Mme. Florescu and winning, 6—0, 8—2, then, paired with Suzanne Lenglen, defeating the Misses Tobin and Welch, 6—0, twice over in a match in which the losers made only five points. Later, paired with Randolph Lycett, Miss Ryan won from D. Grieg and Mrs. Fowler, 6—1, 6—2.

Mrs. Mallory, the American champion, was idle today, but tomorrow morning she meets Miss Tobin of England in the second round singles, and in the afternoon plays Mrs. O'Neill, also of England. She is expected to have little difficulty in the morning match, but Mrs. O'Neill is regarded by the experts as likely to give her a hard struggle. Should Mrs. Mallory get past both these players, the stage will be all set for a meeting between the American champion and Mlle. Lenglen on Friday.

King Gustaf of Sweden, undaunted by his defeat in the open tournament yesterday, entered the handicaps today, but met with no better luck, being eliminated in the first round.

SPAIN ENTERS FOR DAVIS CUP PLAY

Is Seventeenth Country to Challenge for Famous Net Trophy —Lists Close Today.

Although the time for the closing of entries for the Davis Cup does not expire until noon today, the number already received has reached the unprecedented total of seventeen. Spain formally entered the lists for the famous international competition yesterday, and will be a formidable competitor in the European zone. Spain's challenge came in the form of a cable to the United States Lawn Tennis Association from Señor D. José Mesalles, Secretary of the Spanish Lawn Tennis Association.

A year ago fourteen nations entered the competition and the increase indicates that interest in the lawn tennis world is keeping pace with the ever-increasing popularity of forms of sport. Every nation or colony which filed a challenge last year will be represented again next Summer, with the exception of the Philippines, and it is possible that the islands may decide to enter before the official closing.

As the list stands at present, thirteen nations will compete in the European zone, as follows: France, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Spain, Rumania, India, Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, British Isles, Ireland and Argentina. Four will play in the American zone, these being Australia, Canada, Hawaii and Japan.

The official draw for the 1923 competition will take place tomorrow at the executive offices of the United States Lawn Tennis Association under the auspices of the Davis Cup Committee and in the presence of representatives of the various nations which have challenged. The result of the draw will give a line on the possibilities of the various teams reaching the finals in their respective zones.

COLUMBIA MATMEN DEFEAT PRINCETON

Blue and White Wrestlers Score Two Falls in 16 to 8 Victory Over Tigers.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 14.—Columbia won a clean-cut victory over Princeton in wrestling here this evening by a score of 16 to 8. The Blue and White grapplers won two falls and took two decision bouts, while one bout ended in a draw. The meet tonight closes the local season of dual meets, the only event left being the intercollegiates. Princeton took one bout on decision and also scored a fall.

The latter came in the final bout of the evening and proved also the most exciting. Harvey Emery, the Tiger heavyweight and football player, threw Blaine of Columbia in five minutes after several minutes of thrilling ups and downs for both men in the unlimited class.

Princeton's decision came in the 175-pound class. Captain Al Wilson, the Tiger leader, defeated Donahue, with a time advantage of 9 minutes and 50 seconds. The draw bout was between Arida of Columbia and Russerman, Tiger flyweight.

The summary:

Referee—Foster, Brooklyn A. C.

LAFAYETTE TAKES SERIES.

Defeats Lehigh Quintet in Final Contest, 21 Points to 17.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 14.—The Lafayette basketball team defeated Lehigh in the deciding contest of a three-game series in the Bethelehem High gymnasium here tonight, 21 to 17. The game was marked by the tight defensive tactics of both sides. Both were held to a lone field goal in the first half but goals from foul brought the half time score to 8 to 7 in favor of Lafayette.

The line-up:

LAFAYETTE (21).		LEHIGH (17).
Longaker	L.F.	Lingle
Crate	R.F.	Hess
Duffy	C.	Lees
Repa	L.G.	Weinstein
Kearney	R.G.	Hartung

Princeton Wins Annual Basketball Game, 24 Points to 16.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 14.—Princeton's freshman basketball five this afternoon defeated the Eli yearling quintet, 24 to 16, in their annual game. Although Yale scored first, the Tiger cubs stormed ahead within five minutes and were never overtaken. Loeb, the Princeton star, scored 16 points. Captain Riley, Clark and Watson were Yale's stars.

SETTING SUN WINS AT NEW ORLEANS

Bryson's Derby Hope Captures Spanish Fort Handicap at Jefferson Park.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—E. K. Bryson's Derby candidate, Setting Sun, gave an exhibition of his speed at Jefferson Park this afternoon and romped off with the Spanish Fort Handicap, the feature of the day's program. Babin, who had the leg up on the winner, which was also the favorite, took the Bryson gelding into a lead at the three-quarter pole and the son of Olambala made a runaway race of it for the remainder of the mile and seventy yards.

Louis A., which was among the trailers in the early running, made a game effort to overhaul the leader in the run through the stretch, but only succeeded in getting second money, as Setting Sun had built up a lead which assured him of the victory. Plucky trailed home back of the two leaders and enriched her owners with the show share of the $1,000 purse.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For two-year-old maidens; purse $700; four furlongs. Invictus, 118 pounds (Taurino), 5 to 2, even and 1 to 5, first; Anna, 112 (Babin), 3 to 1 and 7 to 10, second; Blue Monday, 117½ (Buswell), 2 to 5, third. Time—:48 3-5. Copperhead, Sun Lassie, Starwin, Dusinus, Buck Jones, Omaser and Viennese also ran.

SECOND RACE—For four-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $700; six furlongs. Galeta, 108 pounds (Mott), 7 to 5, 2 to 5 and out, first; Hysteria, 106 (Proose), 7 to 5 and 7 to 10, second; May Girl, 98 (Frieshem), 4 to 1, third. Time—1:13 2-5. Phantoon, Flip, Quick Sun, Mirtle, Lester Brush, Granny Lee, Not First, Vanevia and Diana Waters also ran.

THIRD RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $700; one and three-sixteenth miles. Arditi, 115 pounds (Garner), 10 to 1, 4 and 2 to 1, first; Old Chap, 115 (Smith), 2 to 1 and even, second; Harvest King, 110 (Frook), 2 to 1, third. Time—1:56 1-5. Jack Pelt, Hunchmen, Not Post, Billy Conner, Adventure, Warlike, Stevenson and Helen Atkin also ran.

FOURTH RACE—The Spanish Fort Handicap; for three-year-olds and upward; purse $1,000; one mile and seventy yards. Setting Sun, 106 pounds (Babin), 12 to 5, 4 to 5 and 1 to 5, first; Louis A., 104 (Mahtestic), even and 1 to 5, second; Plucky, 108 (Chalmers), even, third. Time—1:46 1-5. Jack Fairman, Calcutta, Harry B. and Contour also ran.

FIFTH RACE—The Orpheum Theatre Purse; for three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse, $700; one and one-sixteenth miles. Harmis Kemble, 112 pounds (Abel), 10 to 1, 3 to 1 and 7 to 5, first; Duke John, 113 (Costello), 8 to 5 and 1 to 4, second; Mavourneen, 111 (Frook), 1 to 4, third. Time—1:47 3-5. HOPPE KEEPS TITLE; WINS BY 1,500-1,341

Makes Runs of 186 and 113 in Taking the Final Block by Score of 500-347.

SCHAEFER REGISTERS A 244

Challenger Makes High Run of Match, Only to Trail When Hoppe Spurts.

BOTH PLAY BRILLIANTLY

Capacity Crowd Cheers Billiard Stars Repeatedly—Great Shots Feature Match.

Willie Hoppe retained the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard championship by defeating Jake Schaefer in a three-day block match, the final of which was played in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Pennsylvania last night, by a score of 1,500 to 1,341. Hoppe's grand average was 34 4-47. Schaefer's was 31 8-43.

The final block consumed three hours and twenty minutes, during which time the champion scored 500 points in twelve innings, while his opponent registered 347 in eleven innings. For the evening Hoppe averaged 41 8-12 and Schaefer 31 6-11.

By his victory Hoppe not only retained the championship, which he regained from Schaefer by winning the international tournament in this city in November, but he gained permanent possession of the $1,000 diamond medal. He also won the $1,000 stake and 60 per cent. of the net gate receipts. Schaefer will collect 40 per cent. of the receipts.

Willie no longer is subject to challenge, and it will be necessary to place a new world's championship trophy in competition through the medium of another tournament next Fall.

To Hoppe belongs all the glory for a remarkable achievement. At the end of the first block on Monday night, Willie was trailing by a score of 500 to 277. He overcame this handicap of 223 points on Tuesday night, defeating his opponent in the second block by 723 to 404. Thus when they moved into action for the final session last night, the total score stood: Hoppe 1,000, Schaefer 994.

Hundreds Greet Champion.

Following the scoring of the last point Hoppe was besieged by hundreds of his admirers. No longer could he persist in his determination not to shake hands for fear of injuring the delicate digits that mean so much to him and for a full half hour he was deluged with congratulations at the table side. Cheers were mingled with applause and cries of "speech," "speech" reverbrated through the hall. But Hoppe smilingly declined. As he shook hands with Schaefer he said, "Well, Jake, I'm glad that's over."

That both players had been under a severe strain was evident to even a layman. Their faces were drawn and their nerves were raged. This condition told on them and slowed up their work at the table. While to the champion belonged the lion's share of the honors, it was Schaefer who made the highest run of the match. In his 37th inning he ran 244, and it was a pretty billiards as has ever been seen in titular competition. Close playing, accurate second ball playing and excellent dead ball English served to thrill the crowd of 1500 that attended.

Better averages have been made and higher runs recorded, but considering the size of the stake and the strain under which the New Yorker and the Chicagoan labored, the billiards displayed was of high class. The match was featured by plenty of safety playing, but this served to contribute the spectacular shot-making shown by both players.

Detail of Third Block.

A crowd of 1,500 was present as Hoppe stepped to the table to resume operations where he left off on Tuesday night after making an unfinished run of 99. It was a continuation of Hoppe's thirty-third inning of the match. He found the balls in perfect position. They were out of balk to the left of the table near the head of the table. He added forty-three to his unfinished cluster of 99, giving him a run of 142 in his thirty-third inning.

During the making of these forty-three points the champion made but two drives the length of the table. He accomplished most of his scoring close to the top rail on a line nurse.

The champion was in stroke. He executed his shots quickly but not carelessly. His work was delicate, his execution accurate and his judgment of speed excellent. On his twelfth, twenty-seventh, thirty-fifth and forty-first shots he made masses. It was not until his thirty-seventh shot that he was compelled to drive. Then he made a pretty three-cushion drive and gather. On his forty-third shot he made a two-cushion balls but when the balls came to rest they were widely spread and Willie fell down on a two-cushion draw.

The rest between blocks evidently failed to revive Schaefer's confidence. He made three on his first chance and after Hoppe counted one, the challenger failed to register.

Hoppe Runs 186.

Hoppe, playing the prettiest balkline of the match, injected a run of 186. It was masterful playing, a combination of line nursing and open table shot-making that proved him to be in fine form. Nineteen times he had to drive the balls and eighteen times he counted. It was the nineteenth that was his undoing. It was an around-the-table shot for a gather and the champion missed by a narrow margin.

At no time during the match was there a more impressive display nor an exhibition of finer all-around balkline billiards. The somewhat numerous drives loaned spice to Willie's work and four masses helped to enliven the session. Most of the time he had control of the balls and when they did get away from him he continued to count as if he still had them under a hat.

On his seventy-eighth shot the balls came to rest in an anchor block on the top rail. They were in balk as well, and the cue ball was frozen. Hoppe requested they be spotted. He made the point and was on his way again. He lost control of the ivories at 100 and it took him twenty-five shots to gather them.

A two-cushion drive enabled him to equal the best previous run of the match on his 143d shot. His 176th was one of the best of the three nights' playing. It was a spread follow which demanded that the first object ball be driven to three cushions and the second object ball carried the length of the table, where the three came together at the foot of the rail.

When Schaefer came up for his fifth chance of the evening and his thirty-seventh inning of the match, he was trailing by 264 markers. The total score then stood: Hoppe 1,262, Schaefer 998.

Schaefer Registers Run of 244.

It was then that Schaefer passed the century mark for the third time during the match. With a masterful exhibition of balkline, he ran 244. He had found his stroke, and after the first few shots he seemed to get the feeling that the balls must do his bidding. In other words, he regained the confidence that had deserted him when Hoppe made his wonderful comeback on Tuesday night.

As he stepped to the table the balls were not in particularly good position. They were spread, and he was forced to do considerable driving until he finally gathered them on his twentieth shot. He then had them in the unrestricted space in the centre of the table. Before he failed on a single-cushion shot near the lower rail he had come within twenty points of catching Hoppe.

The score stood 1,262 to 1,242 as Jake returned to his chair amid an enthusiastic demonstration by the spectators. When the challenger reached fifty there was applause, when he passed 100 cheers were added, at 150 stamping joined handclapping and cheers, at 200 it seemed as if the other outbursts had been mere warming-up exercises, and when he eventually concluded the inning there was a small riot.

Schaefer deserved the ovation. He played beautiful billiards. He carried the balls around the table with delicate line nursing. His work was interspersed with just sufficient open playing to add to the interest. Masses, too, played a leading part and three and four-cushion drives failed to terrorize him. He went about the task of "getting back in the game" as if he were merely playing an exhibition.

Hoppe Gets Away Again.

This run by Schaefer surpassed the best mark made in their challenge match a year ago, when Hoppe ran 218. The record high run for championship competition of 384 was made by Welker Cochran in the international tournament of 1921 in Chicago.

Schaefer's fine display failed to ruffle Hoppe. He had answered pressure before in the match. He responded with a cluster of 113. It was the fifth time he had stroked his way beyond the century point. He counted rapidly, almost too rapidly for his own good. He encountered several lineups that he could have avoided had he exercised a little more care and taken a little more time in shooting. It was a half follow that checked him.

Schaefer counted one and missed a two-cushion out of the corner. That was in the thirty-eighth inning of the match and his sixth of the block Hoppe made 43 and was well on his way to run out the game when the balls got away from him and he fell down on a one-cushion across the table shot. The score was then Hoppe 1,418, Schaefer 1,243.

Schaefer added thirty-seven and Hoppe four on their next chances. At this stage the game had slowed up somewhat, for there was quite a little commotion in the crowd. The spectators were becoming restless.

A collection of twenty-six by Schaefer followed. For a time it looked as if Jake would profit materially, but after holding the ivories for a spell they spread and he was in difficulty. Hoppe made two, and then they both missed.

Schaefer Fights Hard.

Jake was far from being defeated as he stepped up for his forty-second inning. He was not quite as confident as he had been a few rounds earlier when he made his run of 244, but he was playing hard and trying to force his way to the fore. He made 29. He fell down on an around-the-table gather, missing the second object ball by the width of a sheet of paper.

Hoppe almost put the match in his cue case in the forty-third inning when he accumulated fifty-five. A four-cushion shot, attempted when his cue-ball was frozen to the long rail, tripped him. His fifty-fourth shot had been a time kiss shot in the corner, but it left the balls in bad position. Schaefer needed 165 when he took his place, but six was his limit. As Hoppe got his forty-fourth opportunity he needed twenty-one and he got them.

The score by innings for the entire match:

Hoppe—23 30 1 0 44 0 1 94 0 48 1 38 14 0 1 1 10 22 98 0 2 143 3 5 2 0 101 37 0 68 62 28 142 1 186 2 50 113 43 4 2 0 55 21. Total—1,500.

VALCOUR TEAM DISBANDS.

Miss McCarthy, Champion Sprinter, to Enter Savage School.

Through the loss of Miss Marion McCarthy the famous girls' relay team of the Valcour Club has been broken up. Miss McCarthy has transferred from the Valcour Club to the Savage School and rumor has it that Rose Fisher, another member of the Valcour Club's record-breaking quartet, also will transfer soon to the Savage School.

Miss McCarthy is the metropolitan 50-yard champion sprinter and has entered the national junior indoor championships which will be held at Newark on March 21, under the colors of the Savage School.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED.

At the annual meeting of the Pastime Athletic Club officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President, Walter F. Mulhall; vice-president, Charles Haggman; treasurer, B. J. McGann; financial secretary, E. J. Scheyer; recording secretary, L. A. Gregory; track captain, D. J. Shea; lieutenant, E. Hahn; second lieutenant, B. Case.

BOSTON U. DEFEATS TIGERS.

Hub Team Wins Rifle Match by a Score of 500 to 496.

BOSTON, March 14.—Boston University defeated Princeton in a rifle match, the scores of which were compared today. The local students had seven possibles, but the score stood 500 to 496, as only the scores of five men count.

Billiard Results.

One match was played last evening in the final round robin of the three-cushion billiard tournament for the Manhattan championship at the Recreation Billiard Academy, Nassau and John Streets. J. Van Gelder defeated L. C. Leeker by 50 to 22 in a game which went fifty-nine innings. Van Gelder had a high run of 3, while 2 was the best that Leeker could accumulate. In tonight's game Van Gelder will meet Ira Brussell.

Two matches were run off last evening in the New York State amateur three-cushion billiard championship at Cranfield's Billiard Academy. At the 145th Street rooms, Clifford Bash won from Ed Marshall by 35 to 25 in forty-six innings. Both players accumulated 4 for their high runs. At the 181st Street rooms, H. Frisch overwhelmed Henry Frantzen by 35 to 8. The winner had a high run of 6, while Frantzen gathered his total 1 at a time. The game went forty-six innings.

At the Broadway Billiard Academy last evening two matches were played in the Metropolitan Class C amateur billiard championship tournament, in the first of which D. Fisher defeated S. Swanerton by a score of 150 to 98. Both players gathered in high runs of 16. Fisher averaged 3 29-43, which the loser's average was 2 14-42.

In the second game G. Gardner was the victor over J. H. Clemens by the score of 150 to 101. Gardner gathered a cluster of 21 for his high run, Clemens's best being 11. The winner averaged 2 44-53 and the loser 1 48-53.

$2,000 Bonus for Ruether If He Wins Twenty Games

Special to The New York Times.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 14.—It was learned here today that Dutch Ruether has not signed his contract, but is expected to attach his signature to the one President Ebbets has ready for him. The document is said to call for a flat salary of $8,000 with two clauses. Ruether is to receive an additional $1,000 if he wins fifteen games and another bonus of $1,000 if he turns in twenty victories during the season.

KELLY'S HOME RUN DEFEATS YANNIGANS

Circuit Clout With Bases Full Chief Factor in 11-8 Victory for Giants' Regulars.

ROOKIES MAKE MORE HITS

Connect Safely 14 Times to Victors' 12—Rawlings Gets a Four-Base Blow in Eighth Inning.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 14.—Long George Kelly hit a home run with the bases full today and was the chief instrument in an 11-8 victory scored by the regulars over the yannigans. It was the first time this season that the regulars have played together as a team in one of their camp games, and their combat went the full length of the nine innings.

Young George Walberg, the Portland southpaw, was left-handing on the mound when Kelly hove into sight. The baselines were clogged with Messrs. Frisch, Meusel and Young. Long George smashed a terrific drive several furlongs over Casey Stengel's head and romped around the bases, while the ball was being gathered in at the right field fence.

A deftness for hitting home runs helped the regulars to stave off the regulars. Later in the fray, eight innings, to be exact, John Rawlings clipped a four-bagger over the left field fence, a healthy blow. The rookies made more hits, 14 to 12, but couldn't connect for those exceedingly profitable home runs.

Lucas Best of Twirlers.

Morrison, Cvengros and Johnson tossed for the regulars and Walberg, Lucas and Voight for the yannigans. The best of the lot was Lucas. He is small, slightly built and red headed, not impressive looking, and bearing anything but the earmarks of a major league pitcher, but that is before he gets into the box. Then he looks like a package of grit, skill and determination. Today he gave the hard-hitting regulars only one hit and no runs in three innings.

The regulars bunched their hits and runs in the second and eighth innings against Walberg and Voight, respectively. Just when the young fellows were getting close, the old-timers cut out five runs in the eighth. Meusel singled, there were two walks and Johnson then slammed a line double to the left centre. Rawling's homer followed.

Morrison got by with no runs, working out of some trying situations. This young fellow, they say, has a fork ball, like unto Joe Bush, and it does all kinds of quaint tricks. He is big enough to get all sorts of speed behind his delivery, but speed is less his forte than a nice curve and fairly good control.

Young Fred Johnson, the San Antonio product, had a ponderous motion like that of Fred Toney, the same stiff-armed delivery with massive shoulders behind it. However, although Johnson is big, he is built on better architectural lines than the elder Sir Frederick.

Poor Control a Bugaboo.

Poor control is still the bugaboo of the young twirlers. Half the hits today were at three and two, when the pitcher had to put it over or walk the batter. Walberg, Cvengros and Voight were repeatedly losing the hitter or issuing passes.

The morning session today saw the junior pitchers in the limelight. They got a long tutelage in fielding their position, handling bunts, holding runners to first base, cutting men off at second and third and so forth. A likely looking squad, these twirlers, and McGraw is working hard with them. If Bentley does not report, there may be room for two new men. But which two they will be, not even John J. knows.

Jackson has an excellent eye. He got three walks in addition to two singles in six times at bat.

Jack Scott was A. W. O. L. today. Jack had a sty on his eye cut open and dressed yesterday and felt a little the worse for it.

The batting orders:

Regulars—Bancroft, ss; Groh, 3b; Frisch, 2b; Meusel, lf; Young, rf; Kelly, 1b; O'Connell, cf; Gaston, c; Morrison, p; Cvengros, p; Johnson, p.

The score by innings:

YANKEE REGULARS TO FACE YANNIGANS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 14.—The second week of training for the Yankees started here today with the squad in good shape. Nothing beyond the usual stiffness and soreness is reported.

Manager Huggins planned a seven-inning game between the regulars and rookies today, but a high wind forced an abandonment of this plan. Huggins plans the first scrub game tomorrow and intends to continue the series until the team starts its homeward tour with the Brooklyn Robins.

Huggins is after two outfielders, one infielder, two pitchers and a third-string catcher, but the last week of practice has not furnished any definite line on any of the players Huggins is seeking. The Rookies have had no chance to show themselves in actual competition thus far.

Catcher Bengough, Outfielders Hinkey, Haines and "Old Dan" Tucker, who had trials with the Yankees last season, and Harvey Hendricks, Pitchers Oscar Roettger and George Pipgras and Infielder Johnny Wight all have injected plenty of snap and dash in their first week of practice. They are regarded as the most promising of the seventeen rookies in camp.

Babe Ruth continues to be one of the hardest working players in camp. He was at the park early today and put in a strenuous afternoon.

The squad was decreased by one today, with the departure of Pat McKinstry, semi-professional recruit pitcher from Akron, Ohio, who was summoned home because of the death of his father. Shortly before he reported here his wife was operated upon for appendicitis. On his second day here he lacerated his pitching hand in fielding flies in the outfield.

Joe Kelley, veteran scout of the Yankees, arrived today. Kelley plans to remain until the Yankees break camp. Another arrival was Joe Corbett, owner of the Atlanta club of the South Atlantic League. Corbett is reported seeking to sign the Yankee castoffs.

SISLER TO GO TO CAMP.

Is Recovering and Will Join Browns at Mobile Next Week.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 14.—George Sisler, local American League first sacker, who has been acclaimed the best all-around player in the league, today stated he expects to join his teammates at the Brown's Mobile training camp next week. His physicians informed him it would be inadvisable for him to take up training before then, he said.

Big League Tickets on Sale.

CLEVELAND, March 14.—Tickets for the opening game of the American League season at Dunn Field were put on sale today. The season opens here April 18 with Cleveland opposing Chicago.

Princeton Refuses to Allow Knepper to Make Trip Abroad

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 14.—Scholastic requirements triumphed over athletics here today when it was learned that Rudolph E. "Rudy" Knepper, captain of the Princeton golf team and one of the leading amateurs in the United States, would be unable to go abroad this Spring to play. Knepper had been invited by the United States Golf Association to accompany the American team abroad for the Walker Cup matches in England in May. The university officials feel that such a trip would take too much time away from Knepper's studies and have refused him the leave of absence. Knepper expects to be graduated in June.

HEYDLER DOES NOT SEEK CONTROVERSY

National League President Would Leave Benton's Case With Cincinnati Club.

CHICAGO, March 14.—John Heydler, President of the National League, according to reports reaching here today from the Cubs' campt at Catalina Island, Cal., has expressed a desire not to engage in a controversy with K. M. Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, over the much mooted question of Pitcher Rube Benton's return to the National League with the Cincinnati Club.

He was quoted in the dispatches as believing that the question whether Benton plays ball in the National League this year is now a matter for the Cincinnati Club to decide.

At the last National League meeting, eight of the clubs, including the Cincinnati Club, reports said, voted to stand by President Heydler in any decision he might make on the case. The club President had ruled against allowing the pitcher in the league.

MAMAUX INJURED AS REGULARS WIN

Struck on Chest by Line Drive Off Olson's Bat at Brooklyn Training Camp.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 14.—In the fourth inning of this afternoon's eight inning practice game between the Regulars and Yannigans in the Robins' Spring training park a line drive off Ivan Olson's bat struck Al Mamaux, who was pitching for the Regulars, on the chest and knocked him out. After first aid treatment Al retired for the day. However, his injury is not serious and he is expected to be in uniform tomorrow. The game was won by the Regulars by 10 to 6.

The winners made fourteen safe hits and the losers eight. Errors by the Yannigans helped the Regulars. In the third inning the Regulars scored three runs when Burleigh Grimes, who covered third base for the Yannigans, made three misplays.

Each side scored three runs in the first frame. The Regulars made their tallies on a triple by Stuffy Stewart, two-baggers by Johnston and Turner Barber and an error by Vance. The Yannigans made their runs on singles by Reuther and Deberry and errors by Mullen and Schleibner.

In the third inning Barber and Neis made singles for the Regulars, and with the aid of three errors by Grimes the hits were turned into three more runs. In the seventh frame the Regulars clinched the contest when they made five hits for three more runs. The safeties were registered by Johnston, Griffith, Mullen, Schleibner and Neis. Johnston and Mullen contributed doubles.

Vance pitched the first five rounds for the Yannigans and Columbia George Smith succeeded him. After Mamaux retired, Harry Schriver went in and the Yannigans made only one hit off him in the four sessions.

Turner Barber signed his contract this afternoon, but will leave the camp Friday for his home in Milan, Tenn. Barber received word today that his wife is ill and he has permission to leave camp for a few days.

Nothing has been heard from either Captain Zack Wheat or Andy High for several days. The score by innings follows:

Batteries—Mamaux and Shriver and Taylor; Vance and Smith and Hargreaves and De Berry. Umpire—Cadore.

COAKLEY REDUCES SQUAD.

Cuts Number of Columbia Baseball Candidates to Thirty-One.

Coach Andy Coakley made his first move in reducing the Columbia baseball squad yesterday afternoon when he announced a cut of thirty-four men. For the past two weeks the squad has numbered about sixty-five and yesterday's cut has brought the number down to thirty-one.

Of the thirty-one men nearly half of them are pitchers and catchers. None of the positions seem to be suffering from a lack of good candidates with the exception of the catching job. Coakley has lost both Clark and Hartman, star receivers of last year's nine, and is now working with half a dozen candidates in the hope of developing at least one good backstop.

RED SOX REGULARS WIN.

McMillan's Homer Beats Rookies by Score of 3 to 2.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 14.—McMillan's home-run drive enabled the regulars of the Boston Red Sox to defeat the second team by a score of 3 to 2 in the first practice game of the season here today. Lefty O'Doul, pitcher for the seconds, also hit a long one over the fence.

Burns was captain of the regular Sox line-up today, and this fact was believed by many sport writers to forecast his election for this post during the playing season.

Battery Men Drill Daily.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., March 14.—Twenty batting candidates are working out daily for the Colgate nine in the batting cage of the gymnasium. Among these are Kinney and Fitzgerald, both regulars on the pitching staff last year.

Cardinals Defeat Phillies.

LEESBURG, Fla., March 14.—In an exhibition baseball game here today the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Phillies by 9 to 5. Each team made eleven hits. In the field the Cardinals showed to better advantage, making only one error to four by their rivals.

FRENCH IS VICTOR IN SECOND ROUND

Medalist in Miami Golf Tourney Defeats Burdine by a Score of 6 and 5.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., March 14.—George D. French, the husky Iowan, who won the qualifying medal, continued on his winning way by defeating Roddy Burdine of this city in the second round of the annual Spring tournament here today. The score of the match was 6 and 5. For half the distance of the round Burdine, playing steadily, held his opponent on even terms. But as the game wen on French's form improved, and eventually he wore down the local player. French was especially effective around the greens, although his driving was splendid also. He hits a long ball very accurately.

The real battle of the day was the struggle of the Chase brothers, Lee of Buffalo and Milliard of Minneapolis. At the turn Lee was 3 up, having been out in 42 with an eight on the ninth hole. Milliard, although he was not counted on to win the match, refused to be discouraged by the odds against him and plugged along on the second nine with the result he nearly overtook his opponent. The final result was 1 up in favor of Lee.

The Buffalonian will meet Fred Knight tomorrow in what ought to be an interesting match. Knight, playing superbly, disposed of T. E. Price of this city by a score of 5 and 4. Knight had every shot working well in his game today.

J. A. Mudd of Chicago sprang a surprise by the ease with which he eliminated Daniel Jarvis of Nashville. Mudd's putting was brilliant and he was steady through the fairway. His margin of victory was 5 and 4. Mudd will oppose French tomorrow.

The summary:

First Sixteen, Championship Flight—G. D. French, Davenport, Iowa, defeated R. B. Burdine, Miami, 6 and 5; J. A. Mudd Jr., Chicago, defeated D. arvis, Belle Mead, 5 and 4; Lee Chase, Buffalo, N. Y., defeated Millard Chase, Minneapolis, 1 up; F. W. Knight, Philadelphia, defeated T. E. Price, Miami, 5 and 4.

Second Sixteen—R. N. Bullen, Englewood, N. J., defeated J. W. Brooks, Baltimore, 7 and 6; E. T. Martin, Chicago, defeated G. O. Martin, Philadelphia, 2 up; J. F. Vanderventer, Buffalo, defeated T. W. McGregor, Detroit, 4 and 3; R. W. Saunders, Miami, defeated H. A. Saulsbury, New Brunswick, N. J., 6 and 5.

N. Y. A. C. WINS CLOSE WATER POLO CONTEST

Defeats Yale by Score of 16-15 —Balbach Captures Met. Diving Title.

New York Athletic Club swimmers defeated the water polo team of Yale University in the pool of the Mercury Foot organization last evening by a score of 16 to 15. The game was one of the most exciting of the Winter season and the result was in doubt until the very close.

The water polo game was one of the features of an open swimming meet in which one metropolitan championship was decided. This was the fancy dive for men and it was carried off with a comfortable margin by L. J. Balbach of the New York Athletic Club with a total of 139 points. T. Hirschfield of the City Athletic Club and W. Krisel, diving unattached, had a close fight for second honors, the former winning by the narrow margin of two points, 125 to 123.

Yale swimmers made a clean sweep in the final of the 100-yard novice race, which was won by R. R. Colgate, with E. P. Hetzler second and C. M. Stewart third. The final of the 100-yard handicap was captured by E. Geating of the Boys' Club, with R. Mills and F. Genthner, both of the New York Athletic Club, second and third, respectively. In his trial heat Genthner, from scratch, swam the distance in 57 seconds.

The summaries:

100-Yard Novice, Final—Won by R. R. Colgate, Yale; E. P. Hetzler, Yale, second; C. M. Stewart, Yale, third. Time—1:00 3-5.

100-Yard Handicap, Final—Won by E. Keating, Boys' Club (4 seconds); R. Mills, N. Y. A. C. (scratch), second; F. Genthner, N. Y. A. C. (scratch), third. Time—1:00 4-5.

Fancy Dive—Metropolitan Championship—Won by L. J. Balbach, N. Y. A. C., 139 points; T. Hirschfield, City A. C., 125 points, second; W. Krisel, unattached, 123 points, third.

CHESS CHAMPION TO PLAY.

Marshall Meets Lasker in First Game of Title Match Tonight.

Frank J. Marshall, United States chess champion for the last fourteen years, will play the first game of his match with Edward Lasker of Chicago, challenger, this evening at the rooms of the Marshall Chess Club, 135 West Twelfth Street. The first session will be four hours, from 8 o'clock until midnight. If no decision has been reached, an adjournment will be taken to the following afternoon. The time limit will be thirty moves in the first two hours and fifteen moves an hour thereafter. H. Helms, former New York State champion, will act as referee.

NEWTON AND CHAPMAN WIN.

Beat Parson and Merriman by 5-4 in Golf Match at Pinehurst.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 14.—Donald Parson of Youngstown and Chevy Chase and B. P. Merriman of Waterbury, respectively winner and runner-up in last week's Spring golf tournament here, were defeated, 5 and 4, by F. C. Newton of Brookline and John D. Chapman of Greenwich in a match played on the championship course at Pinehurst today. Newton, who had an individual round of 38, 38—72, went under par on three of the first ten holes.

A record field of more than 130 contestants has entered for the Tin Whistles annual mixed foursomes to be played here tomorrow.

MISS COLLETT IS VICTOR.

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., March 14.—Miss Glenna Collett, the national women's champion, paired with Tommy Kerrigan of Siwanoy, defeated Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh and Johnny Farrel of Quaker Ridge by 10 and 9 on the Belleair links today, high and low ball counting.

Miss Collett made a 77 on one round and equaled the women's record for the course, held by Miss Edith Cummings. Miss Collett had a chance to make one stroke lower, but the putt which would have broken the record fell an inch short on the last green.

Queens Links Closed for Repairs.

Commissioner A. C. Benninger of the Department of Parks announced yesterday that the golf links in Forest Park, Queens, have been closed for the purpose of getting them into good playing condition. This action has been taken because of the condition of the links due to the severity of the weather during the past Winter.

HUB SEXTET TAKES SECOND GAME, 1-0

B. A. A. Team Again Defeats St. Paul in Play for Amateur Hockey Title.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 14.—The Boston Athletic Association sextet won the second leg on the championship of the United States Amateur Hockey Association tonight, defeating St. Paul in the second of a four-game series, 1 to 0.

The single score of the fast, brilliant game came in the second period, when Jerry Geron, Boston's crack centre man, chunked a long shot into the net from the middle of the rink.

Another record-breaking crowd witnessed the game, which was dazzling in its speed and heartbreaking from St. Paul's point of view. After the score Boston played purely a defensive game, and, try as they would, with flashes of speed and cleverness, the Saints were unable to get the puck into the net.

In the last five minutes of the game Garrett once took a pass from McCormick, weaved in and out through the defensive maze of the Unicorns and then missed the net by inches. Again McCormick threatened to score, but this time his shot dropped from the pads of Lacroix and St. Paul's hopes ended.

Tonight's game was the last of the series to be played here. The Saints leave Saturday night for Boston, where the third and fourth games will be played Thursday and Saturday of next week. Should a fifth game be necessary to decide the championship, it will be played in Boston at a date yet to be fixed.

LEE INJURES RIGHT ARM.

Will Be Replaced by Martin in Garden Bout Friday.

Danny Lee, who was to meet Pal Moore in the bantamweight class at Madison Square Garden Friday night, injured his right hand and elbow, according to his manager, Harry Segal, and will not be able to enter the ring. It is expected that Terry Martin of Providence will meet Moore in place of Lee.

MENNEN CO. UPHELD IN SALES TEST CASE

Concern May Maintain Separate Prices for Wholesale and Retail Trades.

CAN ALSO REFUSE TO SELL.

Decision of Circuit Court of Appeals Fails to Support Federal Trade Commission's Conclusions.

Another decision of far-reaching importance to trade and commerce operating under the Federal Trade Commission act has been handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the test case brought by the Mennen Company against the Federal Trade Commission. Lawyers who were studying the decision here yesterday said that it was an elucidation of many points under the Federal Trade Commission act, as well as under the Clayton act.

The gist of the decision, which was written by Judge Henry Wade Rogers, is that the Mennen Company may sell its products to the wholesalers at one price and to retailers at a relatively higher price, making a discount to the wholesalers for service rendered. It is further decided that the Mennen Company is in no sense a monopoly, and that it might even refuse to sell to retailers if it so desired.

"What the Mennen Company did was to allow to wholesalers who purchased a fixed quantity of their products a certain rate of discounts," says the decision of the court, "while to the retailers who purchased the same quantities it denied the discount rates allowed to the wholesalers. This does not indicate any purpose on the part of the Mennen Company to create or maintain a monopoly.

"The company is engaged in an entirely private business and it has a right freely to exercise its own independent discretion as to whether it shall sell to wholesalers only or whether it shall sell to both wholesalers or retailers, and if it decides to sell to both it has a right to determine whether or not it shall sell to the retailers on the same terms it sells to the wholesalers. It may announce in advance the circumstances, that is, the terms, under which it will sell or refuse to sell."

The Mennen Company did not discriminate between wholesalers, but sold to all wholesalers on one and the same scale of prices, said the Court.

"In conclusion," says the decision, "it ought perhaps to be said that we have not been unmindful of the fact that the Mennen Company, in classifying purchasers into two groups, those of wholesalers and retailers, placed in the group of retailers a class of mutual or co-operative corporations which purchased in large quantities the Mennen products. These mutual or co-operative corporations, it is admitted, consist solely of the retailers in the same line of trade, the stock being held exclusively by retailers.

"The fact that these individuals, admitted by the counsel for the Federal Trade Commission to be retailers, see fit for their own convenience to organize themselves into a corporation which they constitute their agent for purchasing purposes does not change their character or the character of their purchases, and convert them into wholesalers."

Felix H. Levy, of 128 Broadway, who appeared as counsel for several of the large trade associations, including the Wholesale Dry Goods Association, said yesterday that the unanimous reversal by the Circuit Court of Appeals of the order made by the Federal Trade Commission constitutes a complete vindication of the position taken by the Mennen Company and by various trade associations which participated in the appeal."

Gilbert H. Montague, counsel for the Mennen Company, said that every contention of the company had been sustained.

TWO FROM THE TOMBS ARE DEAD OF POISON

Chief Medical Examiner Learns That a Prison Mate of John J. Weldon Also Took Mercury.

Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner, in an investigation into the death of John J. Weldon, a business broker, from mercury which Weldon took while he was a prisoner in the Tombs last February, discovered yesterday that another prisoner had died from the same poison, obtained under mysterious circumstances. Weldon was removed to Bellevue Hospital from the Tombs on March 1 and died last Monday.

He was placed in the prison on Dec. 11, after he and two other men had been indicted in connection with the alleged fraudulent sale of a business through an advertisement. William J. Burns, one of his co-defendants, and Joseph Ryan, another prisoner in the Tombs, were in his cell on Feb. 28, when Weldon complained of feeling ill and sent a "trusty" to the pharmacist for rochelle salts.

Jenerasse Denesio, the "trusty," told Dr. Norris that he got the salts in a liquid solution from Charles P. Hart, the prison pharmacist, and delivered them to Burns. Burns said that Denesio also delivered seven or eight tablets, which Burns believed were aspirin, in addition to the salts, and that soon after Weldon had swallowed the salts and one or two of the tablets he became violently ill.

During Denesio's examination it developed that James Latell, 22 years old, a driver, of Lyndhurse, N. J., who was awaiting trial on a charge of having narcotics in his possession, became violently ill in the Tombs on Feb. 17 last and died eight days later in Bellevue Hospital of mercury poisoning. It was reported at the hospital at the time that stein, the prison physician, denied at the the prison, but Dr. Perry M. Lichtenstein, the prison physician, denied at the inquiry that salts had been given to Latell.

Dr. Norris said that a chemical analysis of the contents of Weldon's stomach showed that he died of bi-choloride of mercury poisoning. He went to the pharmacy in the prison and obtained a sample of the salts for chemical analysis. Hart, the pharmacist, told him that the sample was the same as that administered to Weldon, when he had finished his examination, Dr. Norris said.

"I've simply reached a brick wall in this investigation. Two men who became violently ill while inmates of the Tombs died later in Bellevue Hospital of bi-chloride of mercury taken while in their cells. How they got the poison or whether they took it with suicidal intent or it was administered to them with homicidal intent or by accident, I am unable to learn. I shall prepare a report immediately and submit it to the District Attorney."

Acting District Attorney Pecora said that on receipt of the report he would begin an investigation.

Carter Leidy Ends Shop Training.

Special to The New York Times.

BERWICK, Pa., March 14.—Carter Leidy, who for two and a half years has been living here while working at a shop course in the local plant of the American Car and Foundry Company, has completed his work and will leave this week for Philadelphia. His future plans are not known. Leidy's wife was formerly Fifi Widener of Philadelphia. He has been fitting himself for a higher position in the company, of which his uncle is Vice President.

HEWITT SAYS SMITH IS RAISING COSTS

Senator Declares Governor Started on "Upward Incline" of $5,000,000 a Year.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 14.—Senator Charles J. Hewitt, who was Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee during the Administration of former Governor Miller, issued a statement this afternoon declaring that the recent statement made by Governor Smith regarding the State's finances was "camouflaged with a mass of figures which may mean anything or nothing." Former Governor Miller, he said, had started a reduction of $2,500,000 annually in the State's overhead expenses, while Governor Smith has started on the upward incline at the rate of $5,000,000 annually.

"If you don't pay your bills you can have money, and Senator Hewitt knows that as well as any man around the Capitol."

"While the Governor makes much of the deficiency this year of $6,462,242," Mr. Hewitt's statement said, "he has apparently forgotten that the Legislature of 1921 was compelled to appropriate $10,000,000 of deficiency to make up for the wastefulness of his previous Administration beyond even the big appropriations which had been made to take care of it."

"This year's deficiencies are in no way due to parsimony on the part of the Miller Administration. The larger amounts among the so-called deficiency items were not deficiencies in the usual acceptance of that term. The fixed charges in the Education Department, the county fairs, the retirement fund, assessment for local improvements and other similar items never had been anticipated.

The largest item in this list is for the salary increases of teachers. It always has been customary to appropriate in one year the total of the previous year plus what it was necessary to appropriate in the then current year. With the full knowledge that when the figures were all in there would be a shortage which it would be necessary to take care of in the next annual bill. This course apparently has been followed this year."

Senator Hewitt said he was at a loss to understand how the deficiencies in the Appropriation bill this year reached $6,462,242, the figure given by the Governor. In the official statement prepared by the members of the Budget Committee, he declared, the deficiencies were given as $5,411,502. As he had had no chance to total the figures in the Appropriation bill, the Senator added, he could not say which was correct.

"But, be that as it may," Mr. Hewitt continued, "the acid test to apply to any legislative appropriation bill, or any financial program of any administration, is not the total of all appropriations, for each year brings its own exigencies in the way of special matters to be taken care of, as the fuel situation of last year, the construction program every year, and the like.

"The real test is in the overhead charge. This includes the personal service and the maintenance and operation of the various departments for the period of the fiscal year. For these purposes Governor Miller approved for the current fiscal year a total of $53,630,021. Governor Smith's program, so far as it has been revealed, for it is by no means complete as yet, calls for appropriations for the overhead of the State Government for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1923, of $60,715,864, or an increase of $7,363,582, and the end is not yet.

"If allowance is made for the fixed charges of the executive department of approximately $2,350,000, we have the overhead charges of the State Government increasing at the rate of $5,000,000 annually."

Senator Hewitt pointed out that in 1920, the last year of the previous administration of Governor Smith, the total appropriations for overhead were $88,229,458, while the total appropriations for the last year of the Miller Administration were $83,350,081.

GIRL, 10, STABBED BY MAN.

Della Knight in Hospital Since Attack Last Thursday.

Believed to be the victim of a maniac who stabbed her, apparently with a penknife, when she resisted his attack upon her, Della Knight, 10 years old, of 493 Second Avenue, has been a patient in Bellevue Hospital since last Thursday night suffering from a deep wound in the abdomen, it became known yesterday. The case is being investigated by three detectives and had been kept secret by the police. The girl, it is said, received the wound after she had left home Thursday morning to go ice skating in St. Gabriel's Park, Second Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, but has given several versions as to the exact manner in which it had been inflicted.

When the girl did not return home Thursday afternoon her mother notified the police, who sent out a general alarm for her. Detectives Levine, Carmody and Odonald were assigned to the case. About three hours later the mother informed the East Thirty-fifth Street Station that her daughter had returned home "all covered with blood stains." The mother sent her to Bellevue Hospital, but Dr. McGraw was unable to determine the cause of the wound. Belief was expressed, however, that it had been inflicted with a penknife. Questioned at the hospital, the girl first told a story of having hurt herself by falling on a piece of glass while skating in the park. Later she said that a man approached her at Twenty-eighth Street and Second Avenue, asking her to distribute certain matter for him, and that after she had done that he took her in an automobile to Coney Island. Returning to New York, they went to South Ferry and then to Staten Island, where the man tried to attack her. When she resisted, the girl said, he stabbed her. In a third version the girl is said to have changed the scene of the alleged stabbing from Staten Island to Palisade Park.

BROKER SENT TO SING SING.

Bruen Pleads Guilty to Thefts—Also Fined $2,500.

When Judge Rosalsky, in General Sessions yesterday, sentenced Oscar H. Bruen, a former broker, to from one to two years in Sing Sing and fined him $2,500 on his plea of guilty to hypothecating the securities of customers, the Court declared that "stealing money in Wall Street is as easy as taking candy from a child."

Bruen formerly was a member of the brokerage firm of Bruen, Roberts & Stake at 32 Broadway, which failed in 1921. Three indictments were returned in November, 1921, against Bruen and Walter W. Stake, another member of the firm. The first charged them with converting into cash $2,000 in stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey intrusted to them as collateral for a loan by Mrs. Alice Hunter and keeping the money. A second accused them of doing likewise with securities placed with them by David Blair of Indiana, Pa., and the third charged them with defrauding Edward S. Babcock of 167 Crown Street, Brooklyn, of $20,000.

Bruen protested when Judge Rosalsky announced that he would send him to the penitentiary. In sentencing him to Sing Sing the Court said:

"Wall Street brokers who come before me after conviction can expect no mercy. Thefts are going on down there all the time. One would think the investing public would at least become careful where they placed their investments."

I. R. T. Withdraws Slug Charge.

John Rosenberry, a teacher, of 15 Myrtle Avenue, Edgewater, N. J., was discharged in Special Sessions when he was arraigned on the complaint of an official of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company that on Feb. 13 last he dropped a lead slug in the turnstile of the subway station at Lenox Avenue and 116th Street. The company withdrew the charge.

ARBITRATION WEEK TO AID TRADE PEACE

May 7 to 12 to Be Devoted to Spreading the Idea of Amicable Adjustment.

APPROVED IN HIGH PLACES

With "Learn to Arbitrate" as its slogan, the Arbitration Society of America will conduct Arbitration Educational Week from May 7 to 12, it was announced last night at a dinner at the Hotel Pennsylvania, attended by representatives of leading trades and industries.

Charles L. Bernheimer, who has long been associated with the arbitration movement in this State, is chairman of the organizing committee, which is made up of John G. Agar, John Aspegren, Jules S. Bache, Otto T. Bannard, George Gordon Battle, Bertram H. Borden, William C. Breed, Irving T. Bush, Robert Grier Cooke, C. Frank Crawford, Edward Crozer, R. Fulton Cutting, Cleveland H. Dodge, William Fox, Moses H. Grossman, Charles E. Heitman, John H. Love, A. J. Rosenthal, Charles Scribner, Ward W. Smith, Manny Strauss and Otto D. Wormser.

"There is no room for doubt that when the merchants of this city grasp the big outstanding fact that they can get simple justice, freed from the heartbreaking delays, the excessive costs, the uncertainties and the jeopardy of protracted litigation, they will need no urging to the course which holds for them the certain promise of substantial benefits," wrote Mr. Bernheimer in a message he sent because he was too ill to attend the dinner.

"Arbitration Educational Week will have but a single purpose, namely to inform the people accurately about arbitration, its true meaning, its purpose, its practice, its benefits and its law."

"Arbitration seeks to relieve our overburdened courts congested menacingly with business disputes. Secondly, it aims to provide simple justice—speedy and inexpensive—administered in common sense and democratic form, for our merchants in the determination of their controversies and differences. Lastly, but by no means the least in its importance to the public, arbitration points a way out of the situation, fruitful of bitterness, the enmity and the lifelong hatred that follow inevitably in the train of hard-fought litigation."

Secretary of State Hughes, in a telegram to the society, said:

"The test of democracy is the administration of impartial justice and this depends not upon mere institutions or formal arrangements but upon the extent to which the spirit of fair dealing actually animates the people. This spirit should find expression not simply in the work of our courts but in providing every practicable means for the adjustment of controversies with the simplest possible procedure, that justice and settlements may be promoted and the heavy burden of the courts lightened."

William Howard Taft, Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court wrote that "one of the great evils from which our country is now suffering is the delay in the dispatch of legal business, and anything which will relieve the courts makes for progress in removing that evil."

DECLARES AMERICA DISPLAYS IDEALISM

Prof. Richet, French Scientist, Denies That the 'Almighty Dollar' Is Supreme Here.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 14.—In an article which the Revue des Deux Mondes will publish tomorrow Professor Charles Richet, a well-known French scientist, takes issue with European savants who belittle the contributions which American life and institutions offer to the development of civilization. He writes:

"On the other side of the Atlantic, we are told, the almighty dollar reigns supreme. This a calumny, for there exists in the United States admirable idealism, a sort of mystic religiousness, which Latins have some difficulty in comprehending. On the other side of the Atlantic there is displayed a noble effort of morality difficult to find in our old European society. If we add to this struggle toward superior morality the love of all material innovations and the hatred of all routine we shall find in American civilization examples fully worthy of being proposed to our younger generations.

"And if there are billionaires in America—that is to say, men who by hardy speculations or ingenious inventions have unusually enriched themselves—these billionaires know how to be generous to a degree almost unknown with us, perhaps because we have no billionaires. Anyhow, Rockefeller, Carnegie and others consecrate nobly a large part of their fortunes to scientific and social works in material genesis-ity the Americans are our masters. Their libraries are incomparable, their scientific institutions a hundredfold better cared for than ours. It is sinister ingratitude to say they worship only the almighty dollar.

"If Pasteur had been an American he would not have passed his life in fighting against mean material difficulties. Certainly, he would not have been able to construct a more noble edifice than that which he built on the ruins of old-fashioned medicine. At the same time, we should have shown ourselves more noble if we had facilitated his task."

LABOR ASSASSINATIONS BRING CRISIS IN SPAIN

Socialists Threaten Reprisals and the Conservatives Plan to Set Up a Fascist Regime.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

MADRID, March 14.—The assassination in Barcelona of Salvador Segui, a labor leader, and Francisco Comas, his chief lieutenant, is threatening to precipitate an outbreak of Fasciamo throughout Spain.

The Government has ordered the authorities everywhere in the country to investigate workmen's clubs and organizations to ascertain the amounts of their funds, how they were subscribed and how expended to make sure that laborites are not investing in arms and munitions for a terrorist outbreak.

Facing the labor menace, the entire right wing, including the reactionaries and the clericals, are openly speaking of establishing an absolutist régime similar to the Mussolini movement in Italy and the conservatives are seeking to overthrow the liberal cabinet.

The crisis of the situation, which has been growing more acute for a long time and during which there were 280 assassinations, occurred when Senor Segui, a syndicalist leader, nicknamed "Lump of Sugar," and Senor Comas, a plumber, were shot down by unidentified assailants in one of the streets of Barcelona. Although a woman bystander was also killed at the same time the police made no arrests.

HARDINGS REACH MIAMI, PRESIDENT IN FOURSOME

He Calls on Attorney General Daugherty—Starts on Fishing Trip Today.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 14.—President and Mrs. Harding arrived here today to spend four days before turning northward to St. Augustine.

Just as the houseboat Pioneer reached Biscayne Bay this morning after a forty-eight-hour tussle with the shoals and mud banks of the East Coast Canal, the President and members of his golfing foursome were met by Carl Fisher's speed boat and taken direct to the Miami Beach Golf Club. The craft was piloted by Captain Charles Thompson, a noted Gulf stream fisherman, who knows by name all of the 600 varieties of fish in these waters and who will conduct Mr. Harding and other members of his party on a two days' fishing trip beginning tomorrow.

In the meantime the Pioneer, with Mrs. Harding on board, continued down the bay at a slower pace and tied up early in the afternoon at the Flamingo Hotel dock.

Mr. Harding was paired with Charles G. Dawes on the golf course against Edward S. McLean, his host, and A. D. Lasker and returned to the hotel for luncheon with Mr. Fisher. He dropped into Attorney General Daugherty's room for a few minutes, where he found the Attorney General considerably stronger and able to leave his wheel chair.

There is little likelihood that the President and Mr. Daugherty will discuss any administration or political subjects here in Miami for, although the Attorney General's blood pressure which was abnormally and alarmingly high while he was in Washington, has shown an encouraging decrease, he is still far from well and his physicians have warned him against giving any attention to official duties. Mr. Daugherty's doctors have expressed themselves as satisfied with his rate of improvement and believe that it will be permanent, provided he gives strict attention to rest and recuperation and is not bothered in the slightest detail with matters of the Department of Justice until he is stronger.

Although reservations have been made for the Hardings at the Flamingo whenever they care to come ashore, the impression existing in Miami up to the time of their arrival was that they were to be the guests of Harvey S. Firestone, rubber tire manufacturer of Akron, Ohio, who has taken a leading part in the protest of American rubber interests against British price control of this commodity.

It is understood that Mr. Firestone, who was a member of the Harding-Edison-Ford Maryland camping party in the Summer of 1921, is desirous of laying before the President his views on the British rubber situation and of urging that the State Department dispatch a note of protest to the British Government against the restriction and curtailment of production in British rubber colonies. This is a course of action the Administration thus far has shown little disposition to take, and it has been opposed by Secretary Hoover, who is in charge of the American Government's interest in the situation. By a recent act of Congress the Department of Commerce has been authorized to form a commission for the study of the rubber production of the world with a view to ascertaining whether rubber cannot be grown in Porto Rico, the Philippines and in South America.

Secretary Hoover has conferred with representatives of both British and American rubber interests and the position of the Administration has been that if American consumers have a cause for complaint against the marketing of British rubber it should be determined whether or not other fields are available for rubber planting under American auspices.

MORE FALL DRESS GOODS.

Showing of Fabrics Yesterday by the Botany Worsted Mills.

That the coming Fall will be a season largely given over to lustrous cloths was demonstrated again in the opening of the women's wear lines of the Botany Worsted Mills yesterday. Featured prominently in the new fabrics shown by this concern are those having the draping qualities, sheen, weight and texture of silks. Seven new ranges in the line are given over to fabrics of this type. A larger degree of attention than is customary has been given the dress fabric, in the expectation that the vogue for the silken finish cloth dress will be notable.

Added to these cloths are innovations especially featured by the concern in twill and cord fabrics. Cordaire and beaunette comprise the former. They are described as "super twills" of finish quality in wolle yarn production. In the latter category are novelties in whipcords and other cord specialities.

No general estimate of price advances over last Spring or Fall was given out by the company. In the case of the well-known pile fabric arabia the new Fall price is $7.25 per yard, compared with $6.75 for Spring. This represents an advance of about 7½ per cent.

The leading new dress fabrics of the company's collection, each having the texture of silk, according to its fashion expert, are satin voilettes, satin stripeline, satin broche reps and crêpes, satinfleck grenadine voiles, peau de sole and high glaze chiffon weight broadcloths in novelty versions. There is also the fabric known as repingle superior, which is a lustrous Fall version of a similar number in the Spring lines.

In the group of dress novelties, comprising satin voilette, allaire, crêpe-cord, bird-cord, cubette, fleur crêpe tricana and brochette, the range of prices is from $2.95 to $4.50. These are characterized by stripe variations of voile, ratine, double cord or chevrons. Satin stripe and shadow blocks are used for the twills and ribbed textures, with prices here ranging from $3.37½ to $4.75. Wool crêpes and voile novelties, in stripe or invisible block and many other variations, range from $1.95 to $5.67½. Novelty reps and poplins are in similar effects.

For skirtings and practical dresses, the lines include cheviot serge novelties ranging in price from $2.75 to $5.87½. There is also a range of sports novelty skirtings.

Five coatings are shown. Arabia leads the list in an improved finish and heavier weight. Wool seal is repeated, its price being $4.87½. Broadcloths in high shade and shadow stripes are well to the fore. Fantastic Tartan broadcloths are also shown with lustrous finish. The coating price range is from $3.50 to $7.25.

Serges, poiret twills, tricotines, repingle weaves and velours are carried over as staples. Prices of serges range from $1.47½ to $3.07½, the well known 11433 being priced at $1.75. Twills are priced from $2.27½ to $3.95. A new suiting weight has been added in these cloths, No. 6020, its quotation being $3.27½, delivered, sponged and shrunk. Tricotines are priced from $2.37½ to $4.50. Tricotine is repeated at $4.50. The rep weave fabric known as repingle is also carried over at $2.37½. In velours, yalama is offered at $2.27½ and glow yalama at $2.12½.

The color range of the collection is comprehensive, eighty hues being included, sixty of which are described as new shades. Much attention has been given to those in enameled effects, particularly greens, blues and the ruddy colors with a red glow tending toward rosewood and mahogany.

EXPLAINS "BOOTLEG" LIST.

Conner in Affidavit Says Names Were Automobile Sales Prospects.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The Washington Post printed an affidavit today by James M. Conner denying that the list of names seized by prohibition enforcement agents in the recent raid on his home here, which included a number of army, navy and marine corps officers and several officials of the State Department, were those of "persons to whom I had sold liquor as alleged." The list of names was printed by the newspaper after the raid March 5, in which liquor valued at $4,000 was seized along with the list.

Conner was said to have asserted in connection with the affidavit that the names, which numbered more than 400, were listed as automobile sales prospects.

Showing Novel German Tools.

Among the novelties in German household tools that are now being shown in this market is one that combines a double-headed hammer and a wrench with several other implements. The head of the hammer is formed by screwing the jaws of the wrench together. The handle of the tool is metal and is made hollow. Inside of it are carried a small screwdriver, a chisel of similar size and three different sizes of punches. These are fitted by screwing them into the end of the handle. This device, which is really five tools in one, wholesales at $4.50 a dozen. Another tool combines a hammer with several other implements. The handle of this tool is wooden, and is also made hollow for holding the other parts of the device. These include three different sizes of screwdrivers, an auger and two punches. All of the parts, including the head of the hammer, screw into the handle of the tool, which wholesales at $3.50 a dozen.

Shirt Men Endorse Arbitration.

Among the business transacted at a meeting of the National Association of Shirt Manufacturers at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday was the passage of a resolution endorsing the work of the Arbitration Society of America. It was presented by Louis B. Tim, President of the association, and outlined the need for increasing the use of arbitration to minimize long and expensive litigation. The association pledged its aid to the society to promote arbitration, and recommended the insertion of a clause in all contracts distinctly providing the manner in which disputes may be settled in this way. Discussion of business conditions at the meeting brought out the opinion that present market conditions show little speculative trend and that the law of supply and demand is responsible for present upward price tendencies.

Aluminum Ware Situation.

Selling conditions affecting aluminum ware are described as more favorable than was the case during the better part of last year. Retailers have comparatively light stocks on hand, although their buying has been influenced to some extent by the 7½ per cent. advance which leading manufacturers of these goods made during the early part of the year. Sheet aluminum for the manufacture of the ware has been advanced three times since November by the single domestic factor which sells it, according to wholesalers here. Added to this is the fact that spot stocks of Swiss or German sheet aluminum are negligible and it is difficult to secure shipments from abroad. Competition among wholesalers is very keen, and accounts for the many bargains which are still available. Percolators, for example, are offered at extremely low prices, notwithstanding that forty-two operations are required in their making. This article affords little profit for the wholesaler or retailer, it is said, being used as the "attraction" for other sales.

New Type of Gas Heater.

Although the backbone of Winter has almost been broken, a local handler of house-furnishing goods is now offering to the trade a gas heater of the pedestal order that very closely resembles electric heaters of that type. It has the same kind of circular reflector and protective wires, but in place of the wire core of the electric heater there is a perforated clay burner. At present the heater is offered in only one size, that with a 14-inch nickel reflector, which wholesales at $60.00. It is said to give as much heat as the usual type of gas heater, not to use any more gas in doing it and to have the added feature of being able to be placed in many spots where the ordinary type of heater cannot be put.

Gray Goods Doing Better.

So far as buying activity was concerned, the local gray goods market was a bit better off yesterday than it was during the previous several days. Printcloths sales included 39-inch 68-72s at 12½ cents. June deliveries of 39½-inch 64-60s were sold at 11¼ cents, but ahead sales never in that time commanded 11¾ to 11½ cents, according to who had the goods. Further near-by business was done in Southern 39½-inch 80-48s by second hands at 9¾ cents. Other printcloth trading included sales of 38½-inch 48 squares, which moved at 8¾ cents; in the sheetings business was done in 39-inch 5-yards at 10¼ cents. A few 5.50s of that width were let out by second hands at 9 cents, but the general market on them was 9¼ cents. Second hands also sold some 72-80 pajama checks at 12½ cents for quick delivery, but the general asking price was 12½ cents.

What's New in Millinery.

Latest reports from the millinery field say that among the newest things is the use of criss-cross pleats for making crowns of Spring chapeaux, as well as for making the brims of some of them. Roll brims are the strongest intended, and there is little doubt that they will be an important factor in the season's business. Many combinations of materials are seen in the newest shapes, but this does not necessarily mean a diversification of colors. Crepes are improving in demand as a result of their combination with fibbe and tagal straws. In the colors the brown family continues to dominate, with the purple range coming second. Black and white is gaining almost daily. In the trimmings a new note is the call for Egyptian motifs brought out in celluloid and galalith ornaments.

Dress Goods Season Well Begun.

With the opening of the Fall lines by two of the leading producers in the last few days, the dress goods trade is now well advanced for the next season. Some of the smaller concerns made their showing several weeks ago. There are still a few yet to open. Sellers have had a very favorable response to their offerings. Particularly is this true of coatings of the pile fabrics group, orders for which require allotment. Apart from this in texture is the pronounced trend in dress cloths to those which have a silk bloom. This is deemed to represent an important development affecting the dress goods trade. There are those who see in it sharp competition with silk as a dress fabric.

More Withdrawals Announced.

Coincident with the reports that leading clothing firms are starting to show are their Fall lines or about ready to do so, is the larger number of withdrawals by the prominent independent woolen concerns. Actual announcement of the withdrawals of these firms was delayed owing to the big business offered which necessitated the allotting of goods. There was also the action of many of the selling agents in holding their lines open until all the customers they sold to last season had seen the lines. Notices are said to be on the way to buyers as to the quantities of goods they will be allowed to have. The selling of some of the leading worsted concerns was up to Aug. 1 only, with duplicate orders to be taken care of after that.

***

Ribbons Are Moving Well.

Much of the improved demand for ribbons now being felt is due to the increased use of them by the cutting-up trades. Wholesalers here expect that the buying from this source will increase as the Spring season advances. Wide ribbons for sashes are being used on many ready-to-wear garments, while there is a greatly expanded use of the narrower numbers for many trimming purposes. The millinery trade is employing a larger quantity of both wide and narrow merchandise than for many seasons past. The main element in the current situation which pleases wholesalers is that their stocks of the wider merchandise are being steadily reduced. Price advances are being made in various quarters, due to increased raw silk costs. These are of small proportion.

***

Advances on Fall Clothing.

Early openings of important overcoat lines show advances in prices of about the proportions expected. That interest was shown yesterday in the reported wholesale quotations on overcoats of a leading Chicago firm which began the lines $4.50 per garment above the initial figures for last Fall. This was the equivalent, apparently, of a minimum increase of about 10 per cent. On the higher priced numbers of the lines the percentage of advance would run in a higher figure. One of the clothiers' lines of suits and overcoats made by a Rochester concern, the first to open, shows a smaller percentage of advance. Aside from the interest in the matter of prices the fact that the season is beginning now and salesmen going on the road at once is deemed noteworthy. It was not expected that Fall sales activity would start as early as this. Underlying the move, however, is believed to be the realization of an intensive and longer selling period.

SALES CHECK COTTON BULGE

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—A broad demand in the first half of the session in cotton today put the market to new high levels for the season on two months, May and July, May trading up to 31.19 cents a pound and July to 30.66, and sent other months up a few points over previous highs.

In the second half of the session a great deal of realizing came on the market and caused moderate reactions, so that from advances of 42 to 52 points the market fell off until it closed not unchanged to 12 points higher, closing prices being just about even. May traded as low as 30.74 and closed at that price; October traded as low as 28.23 and closed a point higher.

The Census Bureau report of 362,924 bales consumed in this country during February was larger by total than even bullish traders expected. Highest prices were reached following the issuance of a storm warning of the Texas coast. As the result of the expected movement eastward of the disturbance overnight this morning over the southeastern portion of the Rocky Mountains, considerable buying was done on the forecast of unsettled to showery and rainy weather for the greater portion of the belt, because it was feared that planting and preparations to plant would be still further delayed.

Spot accounts were rather mixed, but locally prices were marked up 10 to 25 points to the new high record price for the season of 31.25 cents a pound for middling.

GETTING AT TRADE EVILS.

A Move to Improve Trade Relations Between Sellers and Buyers.

Ten leading questions dealing with relations between sellers and retail buyers are contained in a questionnaire that is now being sent to manufacturers and wholesalers by the Joint Committee on Trade Relations. This body was formed in accordance with a suggestion made last Summer by Jesse Isador Straus of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., at the convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, that steps be taken to bring about a condition in which properly confirmed orders would be respected as inviolable contracts by both buyers and sellers. At a conference of wholesalers, manufacturers and retailers which followed, a joint committee of twelve members was appointed to handle the matter.

Dr. O. E. Klingaman was engaged to assist the committee, and after a preliminary investigation made by him it was decided to send out the questionnaire referred to. It is a preliminary inquiry that will probably be followed by a second set of questions based on the replies to those now being sent out. A similar questionnaire has already been sent to the retail trade and replies are coming in rapidly. The whole essence of the committee's work is to bring about improved relationships in business and to eliminate the trade practices that are now complained of by both buyers and sellers. The committee is headed by A. Lincoln Filene of Boston.

Wool Values Hold at London Sale.

LONDON, March 14.—At the wool auctions today 17,113 bales were offered. The wool was of excellent selection and the sales were well distributed among home and foreign sections on the basis of recent values.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A luncheon conference will be held today at the Hotel Astor at which prominent business men will discuss with Dean Donham and Professor Roorbach of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration preparations for a course in imports to be given at that school. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the National Council of American Importers and Traders, Inc., which is co-operating in establishing the course.

Bernhard Schatsman & Co. announces they are no longer engaged in the sale of linens and neckwear, but will confine their activities to the manufacture and importation of handkerchiefs.

Twenty-four members of the Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City were present yesterday at the weekly round table luncheon of that organization at the Hotel McAlpin. The discussion was on derogatory information concerning applicants for charge accounts.

Final meetings for the season of toy buyers of domestic goods will be held at the Dry Goods Union, 432 Fourth Avenue, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

FAVORABLE CROP WEATHER.

"Corn planting made rapid progress in Eastern and Southern Texas, with favorable weather conditions, and planting was begun in Oklahoma during the week ended March 12.

"Planting was continued in Louisiana, was commenced in Central and Southern Mississippi and Alabama, and becoming active in Southern Georgia and the coast counties of South Carolina. Crops were coming up in Southern Georgia, but cool nights and dry weather in Florida delayed germinating of that recently planted.

"Some planting was done in Southern Texas and in coast counties of South Carolina, and planting was becoming active in Southern Georgia.

"Moderate temperatures prevailed throughout the principal Winter wheat belt, and moderately heavy to heavy precipitation was general in all sections except in Nebraska, Western Kansas and some eastern portions of Rocky Mountain States. Wheat shows some damage from past freezes in Ohio, but is generally in good condition, while injury in Indiana appears less than was expected. Precipitation in Illinois was beneficial to Winter grain, and conditions continued satisfactory in Missouri.

"Heavy rain or snow in South Central, Southeastern and Northeastern Kansas, with mild temperatures, caused wheat to green up in sections, and improvement was noted in north central portion of State. Plants remained dormant in the western third of Kansas. Moderate to heavy rains broke a long drought in Oklahoma and were beneficial to wheat. Favorable weather in Texas aided progress to wheat and oats, as well as in Middle and South Atlantic and East Gulf States. Oat seeding was delayed in much of the southern half of the country by rainfall. Seeding was mostly completed in Oklahoma, where crop was germinating satisfactorily. Seeding was well under way in Kansas."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Industrial Stocks Advance, Railways Hesitant — French Exchange Rises, Sterling Declines

While the preceding day's recovery in prices continued yesterday in the stock market taken as a whole, the movement was irregular. Advances of 1 per cent. or more occurred mostly in those highly speculative industrial shares which engage the attention of professional "pools" and venturesome outside speculators. Stocks of the more seasoned industrial companies moved little; railway shares stopped short in what had appeared like a promising revival of activity and strength the day before. The day's market bore much more resemblance to the exceedingly professional demonstrations of a week or so ago than to the spontaneous activity earlier in the season.

What all this shows is that the "financial public" is at any rate in a mood for speculation. If it had not been so—if the temper of Wall Street had been despondent—we should have heard much more of how the market was unavoidably reflecting such things as the clashes in the Ruhr (with the familiar implications of a "ruined Europe"), or the hardening money market, or Senator La Follette's daily announcement of what "the radicals" will do in the next Congress, or even the Stock Exchange regulation bills at Albany. The Wall Street judgment on matters of this sort is determined by the Wall Street mood—as it was at this time in 1919, when Europe's political institutions really seemed to be in peril, yet when the stock market was rising enthusiastically. Exchange on Paris made rather sharp recovery yesterday, both at New York and at Paris; sterling meantime falling a full cent, to the lowest rate since the middle of February. This might seem inconsistent. But in sterling, at least, it is always necessary to reckon with the British Government's sales of bills to purchase "dollar credits" for the American interest payments, of which the Washington dispatches have reported some $4,000,000 to be due today.

Two very striking indications of the course of American trade and industry were published yesterday. The report of railway cars loaded in the week ending March 3 not only gave very much the largest total ever reached in that week but it far exceeded the total of any week this Winter since the first week of December. Not least impressive in the detailed comparisons was the increase in loadings of general merchandise. For this the week's loadings are a high record for this year to date; their total, 543,752 cars, falls short barely 45,000 cars of the largest weekly figure ever reached and is only 20,000 cars below the high point of 1920. The remarkable traffic movement naturally throws light on the one hand upon the business situation, on the other upon the earnings of the railways.

Along with this evidence from volume of transportation comes the Census Bureau's report of cotton used by American spinners during February. It will be recalled that the January takings, reported a month ago, broke all monthly records except for March, 1916, and May, 1917. February being a shorter month, the spinners' takings naturally did not match the January total. But they exceeded by nearly 20,000 bales the highest recorded February mill consumption of the past (that of 1917) and the month's average daily home consumption was 558 bales above that of January. In these comparisons, as in the car loadings, there is a double implication; bearing on the supply-and-demand situation in the cotton market but also on the American consumer's attitude—the second implication being particularly interesting in view of the very high cotton prices. Taken together, the railway traffic showing and the textile consumption showing are more significant than the quarterly or annual balance-sheets to which so much importance has latterly been attached, but which measure past conditions while yesterday's two reports indicate the present and the immediate future.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 14, 1923.

After Stock Exchange standing loans had renewed at 5½ per cent., there was a drop in the rate for new money to 5, and finally to 4½, at which figures it ruled until close. Time money market continued quiet and steady at 5¼@5½ per cent., activity here being confined to occasional short time loans. Business money markets functioned quietly and without change in discount.

London Market.

Money in London unchanged at 2¼ per cent.; short bills ⅛ lower at 2⅝@2⅞ per cent.; three months bills ⅛ lower at 2⅝@2⅞ per cent.

Gold bullion unchanged at 88s 7d. Taking the British Mint standard price of 86s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a price of 104 1-3 at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 106, on Jan. 30. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 149¾, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 102⅞, on Feb. 21, 1923.

AMERICAN CHAIN CO. SECURITIES OFFERED

Issue of $7,500,000 Ten-Year Debenture Bonds Announced by Syndicate.

NEW D. & R. G. CERTIFICATES

School and Road Bonds Among the Other Offerings by New York Bankers.

An issue of $7,500,000 American Chain Company, Inc., ten-year 6 per cent. sinking fund debenture bonds will be offered today at 97½, to yield 6.30 per cent., by a syndicate composed of Dillon, Read & Co. and Hemphill, Noyes & Co. The bonds are dated April 1, 1923, and are due April 1, 1933. A semi-annual sinking fund is provided to retire more than 50 per cent. of this issue by maturity. Bonds, if available, will be purchased with this fund at or below 105 and interest, or, if not so available, will be called at that price.

In a letter to the bankers Walter B. Lashar, President of the company, made the following comment:

"The American Chain Company, Inc., is the largest manufacturer of chain in the world. The business has had a steady growth since its inception in 1912, with sales of approximately $500,000 in the first year and of $17,565,110 in 1922."

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Blair & Co., Inc., have purchased from the receiver of the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad, subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, $4,500,000 5½ per cent. equipment trust certificates, maturing in fifteen annual instalments from March 1, 9124, to 1938, inclusive. They are offered at 99½ and accrued dividends for average maturities, to yield 5⅝ per cent. The following statement was authorized by the bankers:

"These certificates, which cover 75 per cent. of the cost of the equipment, have been authorized by the United States District Court for the District of Colorado. They will be the obligation of the receiver and, in accordance with the order of the court, this obligation will, so long as the receivership continues, rank ahead of the $31,114,000 Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. bonds and $10,000,000 Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company cumulative adjustment income mortgage 7 per cent. bonds, and it is further provided that the obligation of the receiver is to be assumed by any new or successor company."

The Union National Corporation is offering two new issues. One of them is $175,000 Town of Hempstead, N. Y., 4½ per cent. school bonds, due from 1928 to 1957. The other is $50,000 5 per cent. school bonds of Greenburg, N. Y., due from 1924 to 1949.

Redmond & Co. and B. J. Van Ingen & Co. are offering a new issue of $493,000 Passaic County, N. J., gold 4½ per cent. road bonds, dated March 1, 1923, and due March 1, 1924 to 1943, inclusive. They are offered at prices to yield 4.15 per cent.

DEFER DIVIDEND ACTION.

New York Central Directors Await Full Meeting of Board.

Action by directors of the New York Central Railroad Company on the next quarterly dividend on its stock was deferred yesterday until a full meeting of the board could be held. It was intimated that the meeting probably would be called within a few days.

Interest was centered on the possibility of an increase in the dividend rate. The stock now pays 5 per cent. annually. None of the directors yesterday would comment on the rumors of a possible increase to 6 per cent.

Among the directors who were absent from yesterday's meeting were R. S. Lovett, who is in the West, George F. Baker, who is at Jekyll Island; Chauncey M. Depew, who is in Florida, and A. H. Harris, who is on a cruise of the Mediterranean.

Directors of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, known as the Big Four, yesterday declared a dividend of 1 per cent. on the common and the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent., both payable April 20 to stock of record March 30.

PLAN FOR REPUBLIC RUBBER

Receiver Announces Details of Program for Reorganization.

Details of the plan for reorganization of the Republic Rubber Company were received in the financial district yesterday. The corporation's receiver, C. H. Booth, has notified stockholders that it is planned to authorize $2,000,000 of twenty-year 7 per cent. bonds, $4,000,000 of ten-year 7 per cent. debentures and 50,000 shares of no par value common stock. The program involves issuance of all the bonds, $2,000,000 of debentures and 41,000 shares of common stock. Stockholders will have the opportunity of buying for $100 a bond for that amount and one share of common, or for $250, a bond of the par value of $100 and $187.50 in debentures and two shares of common stock.

In event the stockholders' cash subscriptions shall total less than $1,100,000 the Reorganization Committee reserves the right to reject all subscriptions. Rights to subscribe expire April 1. The bonds will be used to pay the obligations incurred by the receiver for the property, while the debentures will be taken by creditors in settlement of their claims.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Wilbur C. Witherstein has been elected a Vice President of the Lawyers Title & Trust Co. The organization has also been appointed transfer agent and registrar of the capital stock of the Clark Oil Company.

Green, Ellis and Anderson announce that they have organized a new department to specialize in the equipment issues, under the management of Wade H. Rothgeb.

Herbert P. Hayden, Richard T. Van Atter, Robert A. Drum and Edward C. Swanson, all formerly with the Western office of Paine, Webber & Co., have organized an investment bond house under the name of Hayden, Van Atter & Co., with offices in Detroit and Grand Rapids.

Herbert Greene, formerly of A. E. Frank & Co., has joined the trading department of Watson & White.

Interborough Rapid Transit earnings and prospects are discussed in a circular issued by J. S. Bache & Co.

Wiley R. Reynolds was yesterday elected a Director of the American Trust Company to fill a vacancy caused by the recent death of Frederick B. Francis, New York agent of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Harris, Ayers & Co. announce that Arnon L. Squires, son of the late Supreme Court Justice Squires, has become associated with their bond department.

At the stockholders' meeting, H. Murray Jacoby of H. M. Jacoby & Co. was elected a Director of the West Virginia Utilities Company.

BANK MERGER IS RATIFIED.

Stockholders Approve Combine of Terminal Bank and Hudson Trust.

The merger of the Terminal Bank of New York with the Hudson Trust Company was ratified by stockholders of the two institutions yesterday. The Hudson Trust Company, located at Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street, has a capital of $700,000, surplus and profits of $1,350,000 and deposits of $7,000,000. The Terminal Exchange Bank has a capital of $200,000, surplus and profits of $63,900 and deposits of $3,000,000, making combined resources exceed $12,000,000.

The Terminal Bank will be operated under the new title of Terminal Exchange Branch of the Hudson Trust Company. The officers of the Hudson Trust Company, headed by Frank V. Baldwin, President, and Richard A. Purdy, Secretary, remain unchanged. The President of the Terminal Bank will become Vice President; the present Vice President will remain in that position, and the Assistant Cashier will be Assistant Treasurer at the branch, which is located at Seventh Avenue and Thirtieth Street. The office force will remain unchanged.

The Hudson Trust Company Directors yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent, payable March 31 to stockholders of record March 20.

Rally in French Remittances Chief Feature—Sterling Lower on Pressure of Commercial Bills

A sharp rally in French exchange, in which Paris checks got up to 6.11 cents, compared with 6.03½ at the close on Tuesday, featured dealings in yesterday's European exchanges. The London market for Paris descriptions likewise ruled strong, yesterday's final of 77.65 francs contrasting with 77.90, the previous day. Optimistic reports from abroad of the measures which are being worked to bring about an amicable settlement of the Ruhr question, coupled with a covering movement on the part of previous sellers for the decline, combined to bring about the improvement.

Sterling was nervous and under the handicap of commercial and financial bills which were pressed for sale, London remittances dropping to $4.69½ from a previous $4.70, but finished slightly higher than the minimum. There was a good inquiry for Roman bills, also Spanish and the Scandinavians, which, with Belgium, closed with fractional gains over Tuesday. Marks were steady, with no important change in rate.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

STEEL PRICES GAIN ON HEAVY DEMAND

Ingot Production Now at a Rate Which Exceeds That of War-Peak Years.

INQUIRIES FROM ABROAD

France and Germany Recently Have Placed Orders Here for 40,000 Tons of Coke.

The upward movement in steel prices, which has been going on for several months, has been more pronounced during the past week, according to the weekly reports of conditions in the iron and steel industry. Pig iron, semi-finished steel and some forms of finished products recorded further advances during the week and the market displays increased signs of strength. In connection with the advance in prices much prominence is also given to the fact that the rate of ingot production in February, which was at an annual rate of 44,000,000 tons, is greater than the average of the war peak years 1917 and 1918. The Iron Age in its review says:

"The Steel Corporation's increase of 373,000 tons in unfilled orders last month, when its operating rate averaged close to 90 per cent., emphasized its policy of selling freely. Some independent companies meanwhile have been in the position of shipping more steel than they were currently booking, and the industry as a whole is not sold up to the extent indicated by the Steel Corporation figures.

"The situation in the Ruhr has brought out considerable further inquiry for American steel, but actual new buying on this account has not been large, in spite of reports of negotiations by German agents. Germany is buying considerable quantities of wire rods in England and is inquiring for thousands of tons of other forms of steel."

The Iron Trade Review says, in part: "Steel production is swinging into a record-breaking stride, and this accomplishment, in the face of uncertain labor supply and transportation, presents a true index of the high-pressure consumptive demand. The industry is running close to 90 per cent. of practical capacity. The Carnegie Steel Company, with 50 out of 59 blast furnaces active, and with additional stacks at Niles, Ohio; Bellaire, Ohio, and Pittsburgh ordered into commission, may soon surpass the best records of the past. In the Youngstown district at least 40 to 46 furnaces will be in operation April 1, the broadest activity in over three years. Independent sheet operations in the Mahoning Valley this week are up to 113 out of 115 mills, the highest point since the war. Notwithstanding the increased output, the drive by consumers on all sides for tonnage is unrelenting.

"Inquiries for iron and steel from foreign countries keep crowding in upon American producers. France and Germany have placed in the last week in this country orders for at least 40,000 tons of coke.

"The continued upward sweep of prices is reflected in The Iron Trade Review's composite of prices on fourteen iron and steel products. The figure this week is $44.95, which compares with $44.54 a week ago and $43.81 two weeks ago."

Predicts Shortage in Auto Bodies.

In connection with the announcement yesterday by the Springfield Body Corporation that its schedule of production had been increased to 15,000 bodies for 1923, Colonel C. S. Dame, President of the corporation, predicted a shortage before the year is ended. "The demand for closed bodies is so large," said Colonel Dame, "that we estimate that there will be a shortage of more than 60,000 high-grade bodies this season. The so-called popular automobile companies are now turning out cars with better bodies, as they found that the chassis outlived the bodies."

EXCHANGE AMENDS RULES.

Changes Made by Governors Affect Deals in New Securities.

The Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday amended certain sections of the Constitution which would permit members to deal in new securities of original issue and sold for investment for less than the usual commission, provided such sales are not executed on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

The power to determine which transactions are "legitimately" handled will be exercised by the Committee of Quotations and Securities.

S. O. OF CALIFORNIA TO OFFER STOCK

Directors Authorize Sale of 1,000,000 Shares to Stockholders at Par.

WILL REALIZE $25,000,000

Proceeds to Be Used to Extend Facilities Necessitated by Increased Oil Production.

The Directors of the Standard Oil Company of California have authorized the sale of more than 1,000,000 additional shares of the company's capital stock at par of $25 a share. Through the sale of this stock to stockholders on the basis of one share of new stock for each eight shares now held, the company expects to realize more than $25,000,000. The right to subscribe for the new stock will expire on April 25, for domestic stockholders and on May 19, for foreign stockholders.

Details of the proposed sale of stock were contained in the following telegram received at the New York office of the company from its headquarters in San Francisco:

"The Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company (California), at a regular meeting held today authorized, subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Corporations of the State of California, the sale at par of additional unissued capital stock. The proceeds of this sale are required to provide additional capital over and above the surplus earnings of the corporation after dividend disbursements, for increased refining transportation and storage facilities due to the expanding markets for petroleum products and the present enlarged production of crude oil.

"The stock is to be offered at par $25 a share to stockholders of record at the close of business March 26, 1923, in the proportion of one share for each eight shares held on said date of record. Warrants showing the amount of stock for which each stockholder is entitled to subscribe will be mailed on or before April 10, 1923, and the right to subscribe will terminate at the close of business April 25, 1923. For stockholders whose registered addresses are outside of the United States, Canada and Mexico, the right to subscribe will expire May 19, 1923. Payments may be made at Standard Oil Building, 225 Bush Street, the National City Bank or the Equitable Trust Company, 37 Wall Street."

GAIN IN ALL CAR LOADINGS.

Freight Total of 917,896 for Week of March 3 Best This Year.

Revenue freight car loadings during the week ended March 3 reached the highest point for 1923, according to reports filed with the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association and announced yesterday. The total for the week was 917,896 cars, an increase over the corresponding week of last year of 124,781 cars.

Increases in all loadings were reported over the previous week, the total gain having been 87,673. This gain, however, was due in no small part to the intervention of a holiday, Washington's Birthday. The total coal loadings reached 193,531. Merchandise and miscellaneous loadings were 345,752, a gain for the week of 60,034 cars, which reflects the upward trend of general manufacturing business.

Total car loadings for the year up to and including the week ended March 3, were 7,565,157, against 6,634,540 in the corresponding period of 1922. Loadings by weeks for this and the three previous years were:

*Loss. †Deficit.

G. A. Starbuck, President, in his report to stockholders said, in part: "Our business showed a gradual increase, encouraging but not large, until the month of June, when we reached the largest volume shipped since March, 1920. During the balance of the year shipments and bookings of new business grew rapidly. We are carrying over into 1923 a very substantial amount of unfilled orders."

PASS QUARTERLY DIVIDEND.

Loft's Directors Plan Active Extension of Retail Stores.

The Board of Directors of Loft, Inc., has decided to pass the quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock due to be declared at this time George W. Loft, President, issued the following statement:

"In passing the dividends at this time they (the Directors) have been influenced in their action by the policy of expansion adopted by the operating committees which calls for the opening in the near future of retail stores at a more rapid rate. Opening of these retail units calls for large expenditures in the shape of equipment, &c., and the management feels it to be most conservative to finance these expenditures out of earnings. The company's business has been satisfactory, the volume for this year thus far having been larger than for the corresponding period last year.

"Passing of the dividend at this time has been decided on as the most conservative course to pursue, notwithstanding the fact that in the year just closed the profits before depreciation, but after deducting income taxes, were $842,468, and after liberal allowance for depreciation were $581,825."

Southern to Spend $17,000,000.

The Southern Railway Company has contracted for $17,000,000 of new cars and locomotives, according to an official statement issued yesterday. This is in addition to equipment costing $15,000,000 purchased in 1922, making a total outlay of $30,000,000 for equipment by the road in 1922 and 1923.

McCrory Sales Increase.

The McCrory Stores Corporation reports gross sale of $1,257,224 for February, against $1,043,184 in the same month last year. Gross sales for the first two months of 1923 totaled $2,483,845, against $2,005,801 in 1922.

To Increase Jersey Gas Plants.

The Public Service Gas Company, a subsidiary of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, has begun work on improvements to four plants in Hudson County to meet increasing demand, the company announced yesterday.

Predicts Good Business Year.

W. H. Finley, President of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company, yesterday predicted a good business year. "There is a tremendous volume of business confronting the railroads which has been accumulating gradually since the war," he said.

UNITED RAILWAYS TO CLEAR OFF DEBT

Directors Announce Plan to Retire Existing Bonds and Dividend Certificates.

TO FORM NEW CORPORATION

Holdings of Philadelphia Co. Shares to Be Transferred to Pittsburgh Utilities Co. and New Securities Sold

The Directors of the United Railways Investment Company yesterday announced their plan to provide for the company's funded indebtedness and dividend certificates. Copies of the plan have been forwarded to stockholders whose approval must be obtained by a majority vote. The plan proposes that a new corporation be formed to take over from the United Railways Investment Company 480,000 shares of Philadelphia Company common stock now pledged under the United Railways Investment collateral bonds, due May 1, 1926. The proposed new company will be known as the Pittsburgh Utilities Corporation.

The object is to free the company from debt through the retirement of existing bonds and other funded indebtedness and the retirement of both classes of dividend certificates, thus removing the restrictions contained therein which prohibit the payment of cash dividends. It is proposed that the shares of the Philadelphia Company shall be delivered to the new corporation in exchange for 240,000 shares of the new corporation of no par value, which will be all the common stock to be presently issued and which will remain in the form of voting trust certificates in the treasury of the company, and senior securities not exceeding $15,250,000 par value, including collateral trust bonds of the new company secured by all or part of the Philadelphia Company's stock delivered to it, and 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the new company.

The relative amounts of bonds and preferred stock, and interest rate on bonds of the new company, are to be determined by market conditions at the time of issuance, with the view of issuing as few bonds as feasible consistent with securing for both bonds and stock a favorable price, to insure the provision of the necessary money. Capitalization of the Pittsburgh Utilities Company will be confined to bonds to be issued under its collateral trust agreement, the 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and common stock, all of which latter will be owned by the United Railways Investment Company, so that this company will have all the equity in 480,000 shares (480 per cent.) of Philadelphia common stock now pledged on the United Railways Investment bonds, subject only to the senior securities through sale of which the company will free itself of present indebtedness.

All the preferred stock received by the United Railways Investment Company under the plan of transfer will be offered first to the stockholders of the United Railways Investment Company for purchase at par and accrued dividends, share for share in proportion to their present holdings. This stock will be preferred as to assets and will be entitled to cumulative dividends at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, and after $2 shall have been paid in any one year on the outstanding common stock all remaining dividends will be equally divided between the two issues.

In the event the United Railways Investment Company shall hold in its treasury not exceeding 12,000 shares of the common stock of the Philadelphia Company in excess of the 480,000 shares to be pledged under the mortgage of the new corporation, it shall be entitled to transfer such stock to the new corporation in exchange for an equal par value of the preferred stock of the new company. This additional preferred stock may be sold by the company if necessary to provide additional funds for the payment of its funded indebtedness and dividend certificates.

The common stock of the new company and the preferred stock which the United Railways Investment Company may acquire in exchange for stock of the Philadelphia Company not to be pledged under the new collateral trust agreement shall be deposited with five trustees under a voting trust to extend for five years. It is expected that the trustees will be Moritz Rosenthal of Lyderburg, Thalmann & Co., Everett B. Freeze of the First National Bank, Alexander Wiggin of the Chase National Bank, Benjamin Guinness of the British and Foreign Trust, Ltd., and Mason B. Starring, President of the United Railways Investment Company.

The funds made available through the sale of the senior securities will be sufficient, the management believes, to provide for the retirement of existing collateral trust bonds. If an insufficient number of the bonds are deposited, however, the United Railways Investment Company may transfer to the new corporation the common stock of the Philadelphia Company, subject to a portion of its present collateral trust bonds, and through the exchange therefor of common and preferred stock of the new corporation in sufficient amount to retire, by selling such preferred stock at par, not exceeding $2,000,000 of the collateral trust bonds and to pay off its dividend certificates and other indebtedness.

The interest of the United Railways Investment Company in its California stocks will not be disturbed, and no stockholder is asked to disturb his present holding of stock, and the relative rights of both classes of stock will remain as now, Mr. Starring stated.

METHOD OF REICHSBANK SUPPORT OF THE MARK

London Foreign Exchange House Analyzes Bank's Recent Balance Sheet.

Commenting on the Reichsbank's recent support of the mark, through sale of its own foreign exchange bills, the weekly review of the foreign exchanges published by the London house of Samuel Montagu & Co. has the following to say: "In the Reichsbank's statement, the movements of 'other assets' are probably connected with the operations of the Reichsbank in the exchange market. On Jan. 23 those figured at 107,817,000,000 marks; on Jan. 31 they had risen to 169,709,000,000 and it is noteworthy that at the later date the mark quotation rose to 225,000 to the pound sterling. The following bank return, dated Feb. 7, shows a decrease in 'other assets' of 30,700,000,000,000 concurrently with a rise in the mark to 170,000 at that date.

"The reason for this new departure on the part of the Reichsbank (acting doubtless at the instigation of the Government), is difficult to fathom. For while it is throwing large amounts of its holdings of foreign currencies on the market, at the same time it is pouring out a torrent of new paper money. Its action can therefore hardly be described as one lot of deflation, but would appear to be purely a political move against France who requires large amounts of currency in the Ruhr. The German press points with pardonable exultation to the growing appreciation of the mark concurrently with the weakness of the franc, which would naturally be depressed by German sales of francs.

"Or it may be that the Government is facilitating the purchases of coal and iron by the industrial magnates, through providing sterling and dollars directly or indirectly, and at the same time depressing mark exchange. It is also conceivable that the German Government wishes to substantiate its contention that reparation payments were responsible for the depreciation of the currency and that because she is not now making such payments, the mark has improved."

AMERICAN INT. CORP. INCOME $3,108,231

The American International Corporation and subsidiary companies report total income of $3,108,231 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1922, against $5,587,196 in the previous year. Net earnings, after payment of all expenses, taxes and interest, amounted to $21,344 against $184,681 in 1921. The profit and loss deficit on Dec. 31, 1922, was reported at $6,469,284 against $5,889,457 at the close of 1921. The consolidated profit and loss account as appearing in the annual report issued to stockholders follows:

The balance sheet at the close of 1922 showed net current assets of $7,389,422 against net current liabilities of $61,581. These figures do not include the returns of subsidiary companies. The report shows that during the year the company sold 26,200 shares of its holdings of preferred stock of the International Mercantile Marine Company. The corporation's holdings now include 78,800 International Mercantile Marine preferred, 103,000 International Mercantile Marine common, 92,704 Pacific Mail Steamship, 77,944 New York Shipbuilding Corporation, 11,250 United States Rubber common and 89,744 Simms Petroleum. "These investments," according to the official report, "stand on the corporation's books at a total cost of $21,429,560. This cost exceeded the market value "based on published quotations on Dec. 31, 1922, by approximately $13,200,000." The report further says:

"There were received in dividends during 1922 from International Mercantile Marine Company $570,000 as compared with $630,000 in 1921, and from New York Shipbuilding Corporation $116,916 against $311,779 in 1921. The reduction in the amount of the dividends received in 1922 from International Mercantile Marine Company resulted from the sale during 1922 of a portion of the corporation's holdings of preferred stock of that company. The reduction in the amount received in dividends from New York Shipbuilding Corporation is due to the fact that in 1922 that corporation paid $1.50 per share dividend as compared with $4 in 1921."

It is stated that no interest is being received on the loans made to the Chinese Government, the amount of which is $1,000,461.

Regarding the operations of the subsidiary companies, the statement says: "In the case of these companies, taken as a group, there has been throughout the year a steady improvement in their operations, notwithstanding the reduced volume of business, and at the close of the year the group was operating at a profit. Their expenses have been materially reduced and the various organizations all show improved efficiency."

COTTON CONSUMPTION CONTINUES VERY LARGE

February Takings by Home Mills Break Record for That Month.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Cotton consumed during February totaled 566,924 bales of lint and 47,611 of linters, compared with 610,375 of lint and 49,804 of linters in January this year and 472,336 of lint and 42,742 of linters in February last year, the Census Bureau announced today.

Cotton on hand Feb. 28 in consuming establishments totaled 2,021,903 bales of lint and 156,054 of linters, compared with 1,986,605 of lint and 143,415 of linters on hand Jan. 31 this year, and 1,595,242 of lint and 177,656 of linters on hand Feb. 23 last year.

On hand in public storage and at compresses 2,804,494 bales of lint and 44,167 of linters, compared with 3,421,885 of lint and 45,821 of linters on hand Jan. 31 this year and 4,214,862 of lint and 121,357 of linters on hand Feb. 23 last year.

Cotton spindles active during February numbered 35,307,707, compared with 35,240,853 in January this year and 33,755,359 in February last year. Imports and exports not yet available.

According to the Census Bureau's report, stocks of cotton, in bales, exclusive of linters, were as follows on Feb. 28, 1923, compared with Jan. 31, 1923, and Feb. 28, 1922:

In warehouses	Feb. 28, 1923.	Jan. 31, 1923.	Feb. 28, 1922.

AMERICAN SUGAR CO. SHOWS GAIN IN 1922

Reports an Operating Profit of $10,083,832, Comparing With $2,177,276 Loss in 1921.

HEAVY CONTRACT LOSSES

Balance for the Common Stock Almost Wiped Out by Customers' Repudiations.

The American Sugar Refining Company, for 1922 reports an operating profit of $10,083,832 against an operating loss of $2,177,276 in 1921. After adding other income of $1,270,941 and deducting $1,000,000 for depreciation and $1,800,000 for interest charges, there remained a balance of $8,554,773 for the outstanding capital stock. After payment of regular dividends on the preferred stock, there remained a balance equal to $12.01 a share on the $45,000,000 common stock outstanding. In 1921 there was a deficit of $586,391 before payment of dividends, and a deficit of $5,311,368 after dividend payments.

In 1922 there was a surplus of $5,404,787 after payment of $3,149,986 in dividends. During the year the company deducted $5,358,145 from profit and loss account because of 1920 contracts losses, the result being that despite the favorable earnings in 1922, the profit and loss surplus on Dec. 31, 1922, amounted to $7,201,132 against $7,154,490 at the close of 1921. The earnings reported on the common stock last year as a result were almost entirely wiped out because of the repudiation of contracts by customers.

Regarding these contracts, and payment of dividends, Earl D. Babst, President of the company, in his statement to stockholders, said:

"If customers had met their obligations to your company in the same manner that your company met its obligations undertaken directly in the interest of its customers, the earnings of 1922 would be ample for the payment of dividends.

"In other words, the inventory losses of 1920-21, while large, alone would not have affected the common dividend. The repudiation of contracts, however, brought losses and uncertainties which will require at least another year to clear from the annual reports. Organized efforts to intimidate the company and to sustain these repudiations have been broken up very largely by court decisions, except in certain sections of the wholesale trade of Pennsylvania and of Massachusetts."

Other income	1,270,941	1,590,885
Total income	$11,354,773	*$586,391
Net income	$8,554,773	*$586,391
Dividends	3,149,986	4,724,977
Surplus	$5,404,787	*$5,311,368

The general balance sheet on Dec. 31, 1922, shows inventory valued at $15,371,953, against $11,310,583 at the close of 1921; cash of $6,012,380, against $5,817,581; loans of $19,500,000, against $17,750,000 secured receivables, $16,202,522, against $22,975,595, and investments valued at $34,040,685, against $34,815,335. Accounts and bills payable totaled $6,419,938, against $4,841,540.

Regarding foreign markets for sugar Mr. Babst says: "The key to the future continues to be the ability of the industry to hold foreign markets. Sugar refineries already built in the United States are more than sufficient to refine the sugar the country needs, and in addition all the export sugar Cuba can produce for years to come. Washington should give the refiners power to refine in bond, and so save unnecessary expense to the industry and to the Government."

PENN STEEL HAS NET LOSS.

$515,447 for the Year After Interest and Fixed Charges.

The Penn Seaboard Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries report a net operating loss of $177,199 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1922. After adding interest charges and other fixed expenses there was reported a net loss of $515,447. President J. B. Warren said:

"During the first half of the year 1922 the volume of tonnage obtainable for your corporation's plants and the prices at which the products had to be sold to meet competition resulted in losses which could not be offset by the general improved conditions due to higher selling prices and greater tonnage which prevailed during the latter part of the year."

The general balance sheet on Dec. 31, 1922, showed net current assets of $2,720,004 and net current liabilities of $1,421,384.

MAGNOLIA COMPANY ADDS TO DIVIDENDS

New Quarterly Payment of $1.25 a Share Puts Capital Stock on $5 Annual Basis.

SIX OTHER DECLARATIONS

Fleischmann, U. S. Lumber and Eastern Rolling Mills Among Those Announcing New Payments.

Several corporations yesterday announced increased, extra or initial dividend payments. Directors of the Magnolia Petroleum Company increased the dividend on the capital stock by declaring a quarterly payment of $1.25 a share, thus placing the stock on a $5 annual dividend basis against a previous rate of $4. The new dividend is payable April 5 to stockholders of record March 24.

Directors of the Fleischmann Company declared an intial dividend on the new capital stock and also payments for a full year ahead. The dividend, which is equal to 50 cents quarterly, or $2 a share annually, is payable April 1, July 1, Oct. 1 and Jan. 1, to stock of record March 15, June 15, Sept. 15 and Dec. 15, respectively.

The United States Lumber Company declared an extra dividend of 1½ per cent. in addition to the regular dividend of the same amount, according to reports received in Wall Street. Both dividends are payable April 2. The Lawton Mills, according to Boston advices, declared a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. on the capital stock, payable March 31 to stockholders of record March 22. Three months ago this company declared a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. and an extra payment of the same amount.

The John R. Thompson Company, according to Chicago advices, has declared three monthly dividends of 1 per cent. each on the common stock, and the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock. Heretofore the company had been paying at the rate of 8 per cent. annually on the common stock.

Directors of the Eastern Rolling Mills Company have declared a dividend of 4 per cent. on the 8 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, to pay off part of the 14 per cent. back dividends due on these shares, up to April 1. The dividend is payable on April 1.

The Board of Directors of the Hydrox Corporation declared an initial quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the company's capital stock, payable April 2, to stockholders of record March 21.

MACK TRUCK SALES.

Mack Trucks, Inc., reports gross sales of $31,070,289 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1922, against $24,849,268 in the previous year. Net profits, after expenses, depreciation, taxes, charges and other deductions, were $3,952,270, which, after allowing for regular dividends on the preferred stock left a balance equal to $9.94 a share on the 283,108 shares of common stock of no par value outstanding. After similar deductions, and including inventory deductions, the net profits for 1921 were equal to $1.16 a share on the 109,219 shares of first preferred stock outstanding. After payment of both common and preferred dividends last year, there remained a surplus of $2,632,534, thus increasing the company's earned surplus to $5,767,799, against $3,235,245 at the close of 1921.

The balance sheet at the close of last year showed net current assets of $23,048,700, against $18,537,686 at the close of 1921. Net current liabilities amounted to $2,498,126, against $1,275,068. Current assets as shown by the latest report included $4,231,044 cash, $6,245,230 accounts and notes receivable, less reserves and inventories valued at $23,048,700. Current liabilities included $1,831,215 accounts payable, $612,257 accrued accounts and $55,656 customers' deposits.

3 ROADS PLAN BOND ISSUES.

Great Northern Requests Permission to Borrow $60,000,000.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The Great Northern Railroad applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for permission to issue $60,000,000 in 5 per cent. gold mortgage bonds, of which the railroad proposes to sell $20,000,000 on the market immediately.

Approximately $58,000,000 of the issue will represent expenditures said to have been made by the railroad between 1911 and 1921 on additions and betterments. The balance will represent payments of outstanding indebtedness.

The commission was asked by the Southern Railway for authority to assume obligation for payment of interest and principal of $6,750,000 in equipment trust certificates. The securities will finance the purchase of sixty-two locomotives and 2,470 freight cars.

The Western Pacific Railroad, which also proposes to purchase new equipment, sought authority to issue $6,600,000 in 5½ per cent. equipment trust certificates.

'SAVE HIGH BRIDGE' CAMPAIGN GROWS

Parks and Playgrounds Association Joins Architects, Engineers and Artists.

FORMAL MOVE TOMORROW

Joint Committee Will Appear Before Board of Estimate to Protest Against Demolition.

A last stand to save High Bridge from being torn down and replaced with a tunnel to carry Croton water under the Harlem River at 160th Street, the Bronx, will be made before the Board of Estimate tomorrow morning by noted engineers, architects, students of history and art, builders of parks and playgrounds and others who rallied yesterday to the defense of the historic bridge. There were hurried conferences throughout the entire day among those planning the fight on the Board of Estimate's proposal to demolish High Bridge.

The necessity of removing the middle piers in compliance with orders of the War Department, which has condemned them as obstructions to navigation, can be met by remodeling the bridge in such manner as to preserve its structural safety and architectural beauty, according to engineering and architectural experts who are opposing the bridge's destruction. Formal statements giving many reasons why the old bridge should be preserved were issued by various organizations and individuals yesterday.

A joint committee representing the New York Section of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Architects, the American Association of Engineers, the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, the Parks and Playgrounds Association and allied organizations was formed yesterday to defend High Bridge when its proposed demolition is considered at a public hearing by the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate tomorrow morning.

The American Society of Civil Engineers announced that its contingent on that committee would include E. S. Jarrett, Daniel E. Moran, Lincoln Bush and Ralph Modjeski. Speaking for the New York Section, Ralph Chambers said:

"I think it would be a crime to tear High Bridge down. It will be needed increasingly in future as a link in the city's water supply system and as a highway connection between Manhattan and the Bronx."

The American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society will be represented on the joint committee by Reginald Pelham Bolton, Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall, R. Taylor Pugh and Colonel Henry L. Sackett, according to its President, Dr. George F. Kunz, who said:

"The action of our society in appointing this committee is not a hasty one, but the result of mature deliberation of over five years. It would seem unwise for any city body to act hastily in the removal of so beautiful, so historic and so useful a structure."

One of the first organizations to rally to the defense of High Bridge was the Parks and Playgrounds Association. To the members of the Board of Estimate George Gordon Battle, President of the Association addressed a letter in which he said:

"We are still of the opinion that the bridge can be retained so as to meet the proper demands of navigation and at the same time save its historic and aesthetic features."

A demand that High Bridge be spared also was addressed to the Mayor and the Board of Estimate by the American Association of Engineers, of which Frederick Lavis is President. The importance of High Bridge as "an important and desirable part of High-bridge Park," was emphasized.

Many private citizens also are expected to present protests to the Board of Estimate against the proposed razing of the bridge.

LULL IN OFFERINGS OF MUNICIPAL BONDS

Falling Off in the Last Ten Days Is Attributed to the Rush Earier in Year.

New State and municipal bond offerings have shown a falling off in total in the last ten days. This may be accounted for by the fact that such new financing entered the year 1923 with a rush, the total for January and February combined being the largest for any similar months of record. The total for February alone, with two exceptions, was the largest on record for any similar month.

February State and municipal financing aggregated $72,705,818, according to the records compiled by The Bond Buyer. This compares with a total of $89,493,482 in February last year. For the first two months of 1923 the total was $170,490,893 against $166,781,551 in the same period in 1922. Comparisons for ten years follow:

	Two Months Ended
	February.	Feb. 28.
1923	$72,705,818	$170,490,893
1922	89,493,482	166,781,551
1921	73,363,879	147,545,035
1920	38,857,993	125,505,064
1919	21,004,352	45,840,206
1918	23,386,739	41,727,736
1917	24,987,302	64,332,942
1916	35,915,303	87,326,120
1915	39,610,087	70,976,965
1914	36,807,080	111,014,513

The most prominent issue floated during February was the $3,000,000 City of Philadelphia loan bearing 4 per cent. interest, which established a new high price level for municipals. This issue was taken by investors at a price yielding 3.88 per cent. The State of Illinois sold $6,000,000 serial highway bonds which were offered to investors at 99¾. Jersey City, Los Angeles, Cleveland and the States of Ohio, Oregon, Connecticut and West Virginia, Boston and Indianapolis were some of the other large borrowers.

ABOARD U. S. HENDERSON, PANAMA CANAL, March 14 (Associated Press).—Secretary Denby and the Congressional party here for the joint naval manoeuvres, today reviewed the combined United States fleet after the Henderson had passed through the Panama Canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Lithographs Bring $2,885.

ONE TO DIE FOR THEFT FROM A. R. A. STORES

Moscow Condemns a Soldier and Sentences Thirty-Two Others to Prison Terms.

MOSCOW, March 15 (Associated Press).—A special military tribunal today sentenced to death three persons and thirty others to terms of imprisonment. The prisoners were accused of robbing the American Relief Administration and the Nansen Mission warehouses of small quantities of famine foods and medical supplies. The thefts had been going on for some time. Most of those convicted were soldiers charged with the task of guarding the stores.

After the sentences had been imposed two of those calling for death were commuted to ten years' imprisonment. The sentence of death will be carried out, however, in the case of the other person convicted, a youth 19 years old, who was accused of influencing the soldiers to steal and also with disposing of their loot.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 14.—Angora announces that Rear Admiral Chester's project to supply Turkey with all the agricultural machinery it needs has been accepted.

Admiral Chester agrees to have the machinery in Anatolia by June 1. Repair shops will be built. The Turkish Government agrees to sell the machines to the population.

D'ANNUNZIO TO DIRECT PAPER

Leases Historic Villa, Once Bonaparti st, Later Ex-Kaiser's.

ROME, March 14.—Gabriele d'Annunzio has decided to transfer his residence to suburban Rome. The Government has leased him the beautiful villa Toscolana at Frascati, twelve miles southeast of Rome, which was bought before the World War by the German banker Mendelssohn and presented to Emperor William, who transformed it into a home for German writers. The villa was confiscated by the Italian Government during the war, and has been retained by it as a portion of Germany's reparation debt.

Premier Mussolini granted the request of d'Annunzio to take over the villa. The general disposition to be in Rome in order to direct a newspaper which he is shortly to publish. The newspaper will be edited by Deputy Paolo Orano, who started his career as a Socialist but has been converted to nationalism.

The villa, prior to its purchase by the German banker, belonged to Lucien Bonaparte, a brother of Napoleon I., and afterward became the property of King Victor Emmanuel II.

BIG DRUG SEIZURE IN SPAIN.

SANTANDER, Spain, March 14 (Associated Press).—Four druggists have been arrested here in connection with the discovery of 400 kilograms [about 880 pounds] of opium, 25 of morphine and quantities of cocaine and heroin, alleged to have been destined for America.

One of the prisoners, Agustin Diaz Guemer, is said by the police to have confessed that he was working in conjunction with a man employed by a transatlantic steamship company.

FERRY NAMED FOR HEARST.

Whalen Issues Invitations for the Launching of Craft on Saturday.

William Randolph Hearst is to have a ferryboat named after him. This became known last night when prominent officials received an invitation from Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, to attend the launching on Saturday morning of a new municipal ferry to ply between Staten Island and Manhattan. The invitation stated that it had been decided to bestow Mr. Hearst's name on the new craft.

The launching will take place at the Staten Island shipbuilding yards at Mariners Harbor, Staten Island, where the boat is under construction. It is about 65 per cent. completed and is expected to be turned over to the city by May 1. The invitations also stated that Mrs. Hearst is to be the sponsor of the boat but all details as to the naming were omitted.

It has been a subject for speculation for some months just what the new boat was to be named. The last ferryboat built by the city was named the President Roosevelt, but a serious attempt was made at the time to name it the John F. Hylan.

U. S. COTTON MILLS SET A NEW RECORD

A census report that 566,000 bales had been consumed by domestic mills in February against 472,000 a year ago caused a further advance in cotton yesterday. Highest prices of the year were reached in all three old crop positions which started the heaviest realizing in some time. It was estimated that a few brokers sold between 50,000 and 75,000 May contracts supplying so much cotton that the market recoiled. Several of the larger floor operators took a quantity of this cotton early, but when the profit-taking movement continued, contracts were resold in late trading, breaking May below Tuesday's close. The advance met not only an increased supply of contracts but freer Southern offerings. Final quotations showed a loss of 3 to a gain of 10 points.

With Liverpool higher than called for and even larger consumption figures than estimated, heavy buying started at the opening. Demand proved general throughout the list, both new and old crop positions showing increased demand from sources outside of the Exchange. As a result of recent liquidations and readjustment, the market has been placed in a condition to respond more readily to news. New Orleans advanced sharply which stimulated New York. Commission house business, which increased in volume late Tuesday, expanded rapidly bringing the largest trading witnessed in ten days. Soon after the opening, all old crop months were rushed to new high records, May going through $31½ cents and July to about 30¾ cents. This buying in near positions in new high ground started sufficient covering in late months to run October over 27 cents. Demand for October and December, however, came mainly in small orders as compared with large blocks of May and July. Strength of the market reduced selling pressure on the next crop during the morning but without creating an active demand for those positions. Every slight setback in prices found contracts wanted, July particularly reflecting a more general disposition to replace contracts sold out the past week.

The advance in May and reports of an easier spot basis at Atlantic points served to start heavier liquidation in that month than had developed in several weeks. Break of 400 points in May contracts appeared in the ring, with the result of reducing the premium about quarter of a cent. Larger interests evidently concluded to realize profits on the rise of a cent from Saturday's low figures and the supply of contracts proved so liberal that prices reacted sharply during the afternoon. The fact that census figures showed over 2,000,000 bales in spinners' hands the first of the month, or half a million over last year, encouraged profit-taking on an extensive scale. The May premium had increased to about 100 points the past few days after being half that amount earlier in the month. The sharp rise in prices in three days is expected to bring out more cotton from holders in accordance with the policy pursued since May touched 30 cents. Realizing pressure in late trading caused a loss of all early gain in May, leaving final prices below previous closing though the rest of the list maintained a portion of the earlier advance. Week-end figures tomorrow will compare with heavy spinners' takings a year ago.

Ship Repair Contract for Local Yard

Workmen at the Navy Yard, in Brooklyn, were pleased yesterday when they learned that the United States Shipping Board had awarded the contract for overhauling the steamship America to Admiral Charles F. Plunkett and Captain Henry P. Butler. This means that the work, which is to cost about $1,000,000, will be done at the yard and at cost price to the Government. The work is to be completed by May 22.

Chicago Hears That Day's Business With Europe Is Done With Severe Losses.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 14.—Around 1,500,000 bushels May wheat were bought here today for seaboard account, presumably removing hedges against sales of Manitobas now in the East and afloat made to the United Kingdom and the Continent. The business with Europe, however, was done at severe losses, and around 750,000 bushels of Manitobas at Buffalo were said to have been sold to exporters at 4½ cents over Winnipeg May, c. i. f., a new low.

Futures responded quickly to buying, but the outside trade was not large enough to carry values very far, and the finish was ½@¾ cent higher. No. 2 mixed Durum for shipment at the opening of navigation sold today at 1 cent over Chicago May, free on board, Atlantic port.

General demand for cash wheat in the West remains slow, with 25,000 bushels of No. 2 hard bought at Omaha to come here, at equal to ¼ cent over May, track Chicago, and there were 100,000 bushels more offered at 2 cents over. Premiums on hard Winter on spot were slightly firmer at ½@1 cent over.

A local trader who returned today from the Pacific Coast said that Western Kansas, from the Colorado line to Dodge City, had received practically no moisture since last July, and messages from the Southwest were less optimistic over the outlook in that section on account of high winds that had blown for several days.

A leading house that has been long on corn has been a persistent seller for two days and commission houses in general seemed to have corn for sale on all bulges. On the breaks to around 73¼ cents for May supporting orders were in evidence, and at the finish today both corn and oats were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

Cash demand for corn was slightly better, but an increase in the movement to terminal markets is expected as cars are being furnished more freely down-State. Eastern cars are also in better supply.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 627,000 bushels; week ago, 957,000; last year, 839,000. Shipments were 542,000 bushels; week ago, 614,000; last year, 630,000.

Corn receipts were 988,000 bushels; week ago, 1,354,000; last year, 916,000, and shipments, 624,000 bushels; week ago, 712,000; last year 1,063,000.

Mrs. Ward G. Foster sold through George Howe her property on Washington Street, in the town of Cortland, Westchester County. The estate contains ninety acres of land, and is on an elevation commanding one of the finest views in Westchester County, adjoining the estates of Hugh B. Baker, Crosby Gaige, James C. Cleary and Dr. Bigelow. There are also a residence, garage and stables. The purchaser is Mrs. Katherine B. Clements, who intends to use same for her own occupancy. The property has been held at $40,000. The same broker also sold for the Acker estate two tracts of land on Locust Avenue, near Peekskill, to Charles A. Jost and Thomas Gilbert.

Chauncey B. Griffen sold for D. Ewer his house, in course of construction, on Greenridge Avenue, White Plains, to Paul B. Haynes. Mr. Haynes will take occupancy upon completion, May 1.

The Fish-Garmany Realty Corporation sold for George Hill two new houses just completed on Wayne Avenue, White Plains, to an investor. They have also sold during the last month eight plots in the Lester Hill section of White Plains for improvement.

The Westover Land Company, Inc., has sold four additional plots in its development at Scarsdale to local people, who plan the erection of houses for completion early in the Summer.

Prince & Ripley sold for Melvin Hutchins a Colonial house on Orchard Street, White Plains, N. Y., to a client.

Samuel Gibson, Inc., sold a new stucco dwelling on Vernon Place, Chester Hill, to John Kerin of Chicago, Ill. This property was held at $18,500, and will be occupied by Mr. Kerin. R. R. Ragetti was the broker. He also sold for John Schneider his residence at 313 North Seventh Avenue to a client, and for Oscar Johnson, builder, a new stucco residence at Marquand Place, Pelham, to Dr. Mollenhauer of New York City, who will occupy.

A. Rosen and Louis Weinstock sold a plot of ground, 100 feet on the Boulevard and 88 feet on Storm Avenue, Arverne, L. I., to Isidore Goldberg, who will improve same with stores. Mann & Schnal were the brokers.

H. Frankfort sold for Mildred Pfeffer to the J. & H. Construction Corporation the block of brick-front stores situated on the north side of Central Avenue, starting from the corner of Prospect Street, Cedarhurst, L. I. This property was held at $65,000.

James S. Graham reports the sale of building plots in Floral Park Manor, Floral Park, L. I., to Helen Etsch, Clara Frederick and Emma Weilert.

The Lewis H. May Company sold for Ida Small the eashore homestead, fronting on Beach Thirty-eighth Street, Edgemere, L. I., to Sarah Glaser, who will make extensive alterations for all-year occupancy. The property was held at $30,000.

Architect Sells Private Dwelling.

Pleasants Pennington, the architect, sold the five-story American basement house at 52 East Seventy-fifth Street on lot 15 by 102.2, to a client of Hamilton Iselin & Co., for occupancy. It was held at $60,000.

Kate E. Morgan has sold the private dwelling 243 West Seventy-second Street, between Broadway and West End Avenue, to a client of Leroy Coventry. The premises have not changed ownership for the last thirty years and the purchaser will occupy after he has made several alterations to suit his own needs. Malcolm E. Smith, Inc., negotiated the deal.

Manning & Bernhard purchased the four-story dwelling at 362 West Thirty-first Street from the Stephen S. Baker estate, which has owned the property for over thirty years. The property was sold for all cash, and the sale was negotiated by J. Lemle & Sons as brokers.

Albert Stern sold for Harold C. Mathews the two private houses at 1232-1234 Madison Avenue to a client who will alter the same into stores and apartments. The property was held at $50,000.

The four-story dwelling at 134 East Seventy-ninth Street, on lot 18 by 100, was sold by Mrs. Sidney Lisner to a buyer who will alter and occupy. Douglas L. Elliman & Co. were the brokers.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

Seven-Story Office Building on Broadway Corner Changes Ownership.

The northeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street, improved with a seven-story office building, has been bought by Bernard Reich, President of the Amri Realty Company, Inc., from the Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street Company. Negotiations were brought about by Nathaniel J. Rosenberg, as broker, H. Clifford Potter representing the sellers. Mr. Potter was on board the Mediterranean steamer Adriatic and closed the deal by wireless.

The building is on a plot 76 feet on Broadway and 86 feet on Thirty-ninth Street by 107 feet on the north side, and was held at $1,200,000. The present owners, E. Clifford Potter & Bro., Lee and J. J. Shubert and William F. Connor have held this property for eighteen years.

This is the fifth transaction in this vicinity within thirty days. The properties recently sold are the Calvert and Continental buildings at Forty-first Street and Broadway, the Van Ingen property at Fortieth Street and Broadway and the Mariborough Hotel. Negotiations are now pending for a ninety-nine-year lease of the Wendel property at Thirty-eighth Street and Broadway, according to Nathaniel J. Rosenberg.

The five-story business building at 732 Lexington Avenue, between Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Streets, held at a valuation of approximately $100,000, has been sold to Henry Hesse for investment by the Novack Realty Corporation, through Edgar A. Manning as broker.

The Mandel-Ehrich Corporation purchased the premises at 156 and 158 East Forty-second Street, a three-story fireproof store and loft building, on a plot 41.8 by 100. The purchasers plan to build two more floors to the present structure, the building having been originally planned and constructed so that additional stories might be added.

George S. Runk resold for a client, who recently bought the property from Ennis & Sinnott, the southwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Ninety-third Street, a four-story business building having a frontage of 100 feet on the avenue. The new owners intend making extensive alterations. The property was held at $55,000.

An investing client of Reis & Co. purchased from the S. S. Roberts Realty Company the three three-story, altered business buildings at 49 to 53 West Thirty-eighth Street. The properties have a frontage of 51 feet and a depth of 100 feet. They are under lease to one tenant.

Buy Site in Garment Centre.

As a site for a commercial loft building, Joseph Weiner has purchased from Frederick Brown, the operator, the two old four-story tenements at 269 and 271 West Thirty-eighth Street.

The property has a frontage of 41 feet and is 98.9 feet deep, about 96 feet east of the northeast corner of Eighth Avenue. Frederick Fox & Co. negotiated the deal.

Big Building Plot Assembled.

Charles I. Taylor has assembled a plot for what will probably be a commercial structure on Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Streets, just west of Fifth Avenue.

Through Joseph P. Day Mr. Taylor purchased from Grenville Kane, trustee, 27 West Forty-seventh Street, a four-story building, on a lot 23.10 by 100.5; also 32 West Forty-eighth Street, owned by Mrs. Florence Bryant De Peyster, a four-story and basement building, on a lot 20.6 by 100.5, and 34 West Forty-eighth Street, owned by the Van Ingen estate, who were represented by Messrs. Horace S. Ely & Co. This property is a four-story and basement building, on a lot 20.6 by 100.5.

The parcel collected intercommunicates from Forty-seventh to Forty-eighth Street, and covers an area of 8,500 square feet, lying between Fifth and Sixth Avenues.

Trading in Brooklyn.

Harold E. Wittemann, builder, bought from David Isacowitz 929 to 931 Flatbush Avenue, at the junction of Church Avenue, a three-story store and office building, which adjoins the entrance of the Central Market of Flatbush, now being erected by Mr. Wittemann.

The building in this purchase was held at $125,000, and Charles A. O'Malley was the broker.

Oliver B. Allard as broker sold a parcel of lots in East Kingsboro, a large tract of land lying east of Ocean Avenue and south of Kings Highway. The parcel consisted of two entire block fronts on Avenue P, between East Twenty-fourth Street and Bedford Avenue. The purchaser will improve this property with one and two family houses.

Louis W. Osterweis sold for a client to Antonio Cirria the two-story frame business and dwelling house at 145 Central Avenue, on a plot 25 by 100. Frederick W. Kroehle Jr. and Peter Mancuso were the brokers.

Edward C. Cerny sold for John O'Hearn to Frank Steo for investment the six-family brick apartment on plot 25 by 100 known as 424 Thirty-ninth Street.

The two-story dwelling on lot 20 by 100 at 346 First Street, near Sixth Avenue, was sold by John Pullman Real Estate Company for Mrs. Margaret C. Rogers to a client for occupancy.

Meister Builders, Inc., have sold to an investor the corner of East Twelfth Street and Crawford Avenue, a two-family house on a plot 30 by 100. They also sold to Sarah Hoolof, who purchased for investment, 1,502 Forty-second Street, corner of Fifteenth Avenue, and 4,205 and 4,209 Fifteenth Avenue, a three four-story apartment on a plot 100 by 100, accommodating thirty-two families, with a rental of $20,000, and held at $150,000. This is half of the parcel purchased a few days ago. P. Varvarra was the broker in this transaction.

Mortgage Loans Placed.

The J. L. Ryan Corporation recently negotiated mortgage loans as follows: Permanent and building loan of $32,500 at 6 per cent. for three years on a six-story walk-up being erected on the southwest corner of Bedford Avenue and Morton Street, Brooklyn, for Bockar & Eisen; $42,500 for twelve years at 6 per cent. on six one-family frame and stucco houses on the north side of Fifteenth Street, west of Roosevelt Avenue, Woodside, L. I., for the F. D. & S. Construction Company, Frank Seligman, President; $52,000 for twelve years at 6 per cent. on four two-story four-family houses on the west side of Twentieth Avenue, adjoining Fifty-ninth Street, Bensonhurst, for the Eldertsbane Construction Company; $48,000 for three years at 6 per cent. on two-story stores and apartments, corner of Roosevelt Avenue and Forley Street, Elmhurst, for the K. L. M. Construction Company, Inc., Morris Kaiser, President; a building loan of $60,000 on two-story stores and apartments on the north side of East 188th Street, between Camberling and Belmont Avenues, the Bronx, for the Chelsea Construction Company, Inc., Harry Chevron, President.

Richmond Hill Buyer.

Frank J. Magerle sold the six-room detached cottage for J. E. Hoyt situated at 11,003 Ninety-first Avenue near 110th Street, Richmond Hill, to a client, who will occupy.

THE BRONX MARKET.

Builders Sell Six Houses Valued at $650,000.

Murray Maran purchased from the original builders, Newmark & Jacobs, six 55 by 100 foot houses at the corner of Harrison Avenue and 180th Street, consisting of three and four room apartments, renting for $115,000 and held at $650,000.

This is the first sale of the premises. Jacob & Emil Leitner, Inc., acted as brokers.

Wolf Forman Company, operators, bought from Isaac Portman the five and one-half story tax-exempt apartment house at 2,100 Davidson Avenue, near 180th Street, size 100 by 90, consisting of eight apartments on a floor of five three-room and three four-room, with an aggregate rental of $34,000, and was held at $310,000.

M. Rosenthal, operator, purchased from Holzman Brothers, Inc., a six story and basement new-law walk-up, on lot 50 by 100, at 584 and 585 East 137th Street, showing an annual rental of about $14,000. The property was held at $82,000.

Pomarici & Merlino have sold for William Wald to William J. Higgins the five-story apartment house known as 2,390 Creston Avenue. It was held at $90,000 and rents for about $14,000. The house contains twenty suites.

The Rev. Hyman Silberman acquired through Moses H. Rothstein, his attorney, the premises at 2,010 Valentine Avenue, being a five-story apartment house on the northeast corner of Valentine Avenue and 179th Street. The premises is an up-to-date apartment house, occupied by twenty-five families, and shows a gross rental of about $16,000, and was held at $90,000.

Davis Brown sold 2,903 Grand Concourse to the Segas Realty Company, Inc., through Levinthal & Silverman, brokers. The premises consist of a five-story 50-foot house, containing eighteen rooms on a floor, and is in one of the best locations on the Concourse. Isaac Hyman represented the seller.

The Elm Garden Apartments

with electric elevators and every convenience

In interior planning the individual apartments reflect full appreciation of the comfort needs and living requirements of the modern family. The fine Colonial living room, with its log-burning fireplace, adjoins the dining room, which in turn opens directly into the sun parlor. Thrown together they give you a splendid suite of rooms for entertaining.

The sun parlor is a delightful feature. Its three great French windows overlook the landscaped garden. The kitchen is scientifically planned and equipped to eliminate steps and simplify work. Every room is an outside room.

These delightful garden apartment homes of 5 and 6 rooms, 2 bathrooms, are offered on the Jackson Heights Plan of Tenant-Ownership on liberal terms to those with acceptable business and social references.

Residents at Jackson Heights have the facilities of the golf course, tennis courts, children's playgrounds, gardens, etc.

If you are paying $1800. to $3000. a year rent, half of it goes in the landlord's bank account. Under the Jackson Heights Plan of Tenant-Ownership you pay from $1800. to $3000. a year and half of it applies to the ownership of the apartment. Let us tell you about it.

SALESMAN.

We want a high-pressure salesman of the aggressive, energetic type who can present a legitimate proposition in a high-class manner and get the customers' signatures on the spot. To such a man we offer a money making proposition with headquarters at our main office and a private office to work at in a large part of Manhattan. This is not a stock-selling proposition but is confined strictly to lining up live dealers under a chain store plan of operation. We will pay the right man about $15,000 commission per year. This is a rare opportunity for a salesman who can really sell, it will enable him to get out of the stock-selling or peddling business and get into a clean, profitable and honorable business in which he can build himself into the big-gest kind of a reputable businessman. He will have every means of a large corporation at his command to help him close big deals. If you can measure up to these standards and prove that you are honest and ambitious, see Mr. Klauber, 9th floor, 231 West 57th St.

SALESMEN.

We can and will prove to you that you will average $200 weekly if you are really a high-class salesman. The work consists of securing opinions, references, testimonials and sales for the Official Source Records, on which we are doing advance publicity work. Commission basis. You are cordially invited to call and investigate. See Mr. Stearns, between 10 and 3.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 14.—The disturbance that was off the Southern New England Coast Tuesday night moved rapidly northeastward to Newfoundland and another disturbance of marked intensity was central over New Mexico Wednesday night. Pressure increased decidedly Wednesday over the Eastern States, and it remained high from the northern Pacific Coast eastward to Minnesota and over the Canadian Northwest. This pressure distribution has been attended by precipitation, mostly in the form of snow, within the last twenty-four hours in the southern lake region, the upper Ohio Valley, the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, the upper Mississippi Valley, the Plains States and the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions.

The weather became colder Wednesday in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, the Rocky Mountain and southern plateau region, while there was a reaction to higher temperature in the Mississippi Valley, the upper lake region and in the interior of the West Gulf States.

The southwestern disturbance will move northeastward during the next two days and it will be attended by general precipitation over the States east of the Mississippi River except Southern Florida. However, the weather will remain generally fair in New England and the South Atlantic States until Thursday night. The temperature will rise in the upper Ohio Valley Thursday and Friday and in the Middle and North Atlantic States Friday, while colder weather will overspread the lower Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the East Gulf States Friday.

GIRL TO ACCUSE BABE RUTH TODAY

BALL PLAYER TO FIGHT CASE

Mrs. Ruth Says Whole Thing Is Absurd and Approves Husband's Course.

The complaint charging "Babe" Ruth with the fatherhood of Dolores Dixon's expected child and asking $50,000 and costs will be filed in the New York Supreme Court today, George Feinberg of 171 Madison Avenue, Miss Dixon's attorney, said yesterday. According to the lawyer, Miss Dixon, who is 19 years old, an orphan, without brothers or sisters, is being kept in seclusion. Feinberg said that previously Miss Dixon had been living with Mrs. Barbara V. Escoe, at 583 Riverside Drive, who was appointed the girl's guardian ad litem by Supreme Court Justice Faber in Brooklyn on Nov. 13, 1922.

"Ruth and Miss Dixon were introduced by mutual friends in the early Spring of 1922," Feinberg said. "He used to be with her four and five times a week, taking her out frequently in his car. I have also been told that Mrs. Ruth was acquainted with Miss Dixon."

Feinberg describes Miss Dixon as fair, chestnut-haired and with "cherubic features." She was a saleswoman in a department store at the time she met Ruth. To avoid publicity, the lawyer said, he personally served the summons on Ruth at the Elks Club in New York on Nov. 13, 1922. He told Ruth what the charge was, and Ruth, he said, appeared surprised, but remained silent.

After Hyman Bushel, Ruth's counsel, served his notice of appearance, Feinberg admitted making an attempt to settle the case outside of court. Bushel said yesterday that Feinberg asked him to name a figure, but Bushel would not consider a settlement. Bushel added that his investigation showed that the allegation in the complaint was untrue. He has until April 20 to file his answer, which, he said, would be a complete denial of the charge.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—Mrs. Ruth said today:

"The whole thing is absurd. Mr. Ruth told me all about the case as soon as he learned of it. I am glad he's going into court and fight the case."

Ruth was asked what his next step in the case would be.

"I can't do anything until I get back to New York," he replied. "Then I'll go into court. It will not take me long to dispose of the girl's charges."

-Easter and Sartorial Spring

NEW YORK'S formal turn-out for spring is barely two weeks off. Ours—but a journey to Broadway at Ninth . . . Here, sartorial spring is at its height. All the smart woolens are in. Irish homespuns, English worsteds, Belgian serges—from over there. New cheviots and herringbones—from over here . . . All the smart ideas in style are ready. The "Guards" version of the top-coat; the "plus-fours" version of the knicker. The plainish sport jacket, and the widening trouser bottom . . . The emphasis, more than ever, is on correctness. The custom tailor type of correctness. Rightful materials, tasteful fitting, and careful finishing. . . . Men-about-New York consider it none too early to get measured now. We invite your inspection. Cutaways and topcoats for Easter. Entire wardrobes for Spring.

Combat the Film Tonight

Millions have already done that. The glistening teeth you see everywhere now show the results that come.

Start now to fight that film on teeth. Do it to be dainty, to be safer. Do it because dentists the world over advise it. Do it for your sake and your family's sake. Learn what this method does.

Film—your great enemy

Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. Those thin coats dim the luster of the teeth.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. That's why tooth troubles were almost universal.

Two new discoveries

Dental science has in late years found two ways to fight that film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods by many careful tests. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. These two film combatants were embodied in it for daily application.

Other essentials

Other effects were found to be essential. So Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Go prove it now

Go get this free tube and watch the change it brings. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

The test will be delightful. What you see and feel will be a revelation. Cut out the coupon now.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.
